RT BOOK CLUB

May's book of the month is Hands of Time by Rebecca Struthers. Find out more at radiotimes.com/rtbookclub

From the Editors

It was 1985 when the Pet Shop Boys released their first hit single, West End Girls. From that moment they have occupied a unique space in the pop landscape, writing unashamedly catchy songs, working with legends of the music business and packaging it all up in an aesthetic that wouldn't look out of place in a modern art gallery.

Who better, then, to send to meet Neil Tennant and Chris Lowe to talk about their 40-year career at the top of pop than RT's David Hepworth, who was Tennant's boss at Smash Hits at the point when Tennant decided to swap writing about music to making it. Turn to page 16 to read about the key to the duo's success - and to discover what happened the day they met Frank Sinatra.

Elsewhere we talk to Suranne Jones about her latest drama Maryland, and hear from Rachel de Thame who is preparing for a week among the flowers and gardens of the Chelsea Flower Show by rediscovering the horticultural claims of the humble weed.

We also hear from Whoopi Goldberg, who dropped by to talk to Radio 4's John Wilson about her astonishingly varied and at times controversial career. But, she explains, one message unites everything she has done: "All of my work has been, 'This could be you, so pay attention!'" Certainly she has never been short of the critics' attention - she's one of a handful of stars to have won an Emmy, a Grammy, an Oscar and a Tony award.

And with awards in mind, we caught up backstage with the winners of the Arias - the broadcast industry's annual awards show that now includes the world of audio. With Radio 4 winning station of the year, it would appear that intelligent speech radio is going from strength to strength - which is music to our ears...

THE ARIAS 2023

AND THE WINNER IS...

RADIO IS OFTEN described as the most personal form of media, providing voices that comfort, inform and entertain us. This year has been no exception, and 12 months of brilliant broadcasting and speech programming were marked this month by the Audio and Radio Industry Awards – the Arias.

This year is the 40th anniversary of the awards and, fittingly, Tony Blackburn was the recipient of the 2023 Pioneer Award for his almost 60-year career in broadcasting. Sadly, illness meant he was unable to attend in person, but RT was there to talk to some of the other winners... LAURA RUTKOWSKI

ROB DELANEY WINNER BEST AUDIOBOOK OR READING ►

American comedian and actor Rob Delaney wrote the memoir A Heart That Works about his son Henry, who was diagnosed with brain cancer when he was one and died at the age of two.

"This is unique among awards because it's for a book I wrote about my son who died, so I'm unable to compare it to any of the other nominees. I don't know what awards mean, especially because of what I had to do to get it. Like I don't want it, but at the same time I'm very grateful that people listened to the book. Maybe because of its intimate nature, a lot of people have responded pretty strongly to my reading of it. My story of loss is no worse, no better than anybody else's – it's honest.

"What I really liked about the process [of writing the book] was how much it helped me appreciate Henry's brothers and his mother. I knew Henry would be the hero and everyone loves hearing about him, but for me it was very helpful to organise my thoughts about the other people in his life and realise how much I love them too.

"How do I feel? Terrible. Does this award mean something good? Yeah, it does. I feel sad, but I'm aware that this will make a few more people read or hear the book, and that's good." LR

TONY LIVESEY

WINNER RADIO TIMES MOMENT OF THE YEAR BBC Radio 5 Live ►

Radio Times readers recently voted their Moment of the Year the final on-air conversation between 5 Live presenter Tony Livesey (right) and Deborah James when he couldn't face saying goodbye... James, host of the podcast You, Me & the Big C, died last year of bowel cancer aged 40.

"This award is really in honour of Dame Deborah James – she was showing all that bravery and I was just too scared to put the phone down," says Livesey. "Deborah and Rachael Bland, who with Lauren Mahon created the You, Me & the Big C podcast, are two of the most amazing women you could ever meet in life – this is for them.

"What is bittersweet is that Debs isn't here to get it. I was invited to her funeral and I didn't go, because I wanted to be on the radio that day telling people to check their poo, which was her message to everybody. An ambulance man told me he had taken somebody to hospital who had heard my broadcast – they discovered they had bowel cancer and their life was saved. I've won nothing before, so I'll stare at the award for the first six months; then it'll be in the downstairs loo to remind me to check my poo!" LR

▼ ROSIE JONES PRESENTED THE AWARD FOR BEST AUDIOBOOK OR READING TO ROB DELANEY

Comedian Rosie Jones presented Rob Delaney with the award for Best Audiobook or Reading. She also narrated the audiobook of her children's book, The Amazing Edie Eckhart, about a character who has cerebral palsy, just like her.

"I was so lucky to give out the award to my good friend Rob. His book A Heart That Works is incredibly special and deserves to be recognised. I'm so proud of him.

"Having cerebral palsy, I never thought radio and audio would be an option for me, because when I was little and turned on the radio, no one talked like me, and when you add on a strong Yorkshire accent, you definitely wouldn't get my voice on radio! To my younger self, I would say, 'You can, and you should be on radio, because we need to hear different voices.'

"Now, I'm proud of how I talk and I do a lot of radio and podcasts and I read my own audiobook – I want to show that you should celebrate whatever you sound like.

"We can always do better in terms of representation. Seeing the winners and all the brilliant diverse voices, that's what we need more of. It's getting better, but we cannot rest on our laurels. I still get abuse for how I talk, but I don't do it for those people – I do it for disabled people, diverse people, queer people, for women, who have had their voices ignored and overlooked." LR

CRAIG CHARLES ▲
WINNER BEST MUSIC ENTERTAINMENT
SHOW BBC Radio 6 Music

Craig Charles began hosting his eponymous radio show on weekday afternoons at the end of 2021. After winning his award at the Arias (pictured above with his team), he also DJ'd the after-party.

"It's a young show in radio terms, and we've been working so hard on it to make it special every day," says Charles. "I've been on the radio for so long and I've never been nominated for anything before. Terry Wogan was my cheerleader in the early days of my career. I used to do a poem on his chat show on the telly and I asked him what it was like broadcasting to nine million people a day and he said: 'I don't, Craig, I just broadcast to one.'

"It's taken me about 30 years to get it right by the way. I'm a slow learner. The winning formula is putting together a good team. I might be the face on the tin, but it's the team behind me that makes me sound a lot more intelligent and cooler than I am. They're the swans paddling underneath the water, I'm the ugly duckling face!" LR ▷

Nadia Jae has interviewed stars such as Idris Elba and Ed Sheeran on her show, she has had gigs presenting on television, and she also performs DJ sets, including at the Brit Awards.

"This is my first Arias and I'm just happy to be nominated alongside some incredible hosts. The Pioneer Award went to Tony Blackburn [to mark his 60 years in broadcasting].

If it wasn't for him starting this in the 1960s, breakfast shows wouldn't be what they are. Being able to do radio every Monday to Friday is a dream come true." LR

RICK EDWARDS & RACHEL BURDEN ►

WINNER BEST SPEECH
BREAKFAST SHOW

5 Live Breakfast – BBC Radio 5 Live

◀ Rachel Burden has presented 5 Live's weekday breakfast show since 2011. In 2021 she was joined by Rick Edwards as co-host after her programme partner Nicky Campbell moved to a later slot.

"A year after Rick turned up we've won an award, and it is not, let me tell you, that easy!" she says. "He's not even a proper radio presenter! We came together about 18 months ago and, with the help of our brilliant team, put together a whole new show. We didn't know each other at all before that, and I think, and I hope, that we have given our show an identity that our listeners enjoy every day."

Co-host Rick Edwards responds: "I'm still not a proper radio presenter, but Rachel makes it very easy, so it doesn't feel like it matters that I don't know what I'm doing. And that may be the nicest thing I've ever said to her!" LR

NILE RODGERS ▼

WINNER BEST MUSIC SPECIAL

Apple Music Radio

"My name is Nile Rodgers and I am so humble and so grateful for this award." Although he wasn't in the room, but talking via video from the USA, Nile Rodgers's grace and charm filled the theatre.

It's partly that charm, and Rodgers's immense insight, that makes Deep Hidden Meaning – a show where he and a guest "break down the essence of a song" – such a compelling listening. Guests have included Rod Stewart, Debbie Harry and Bryan Adams. "Deep Hidden Meaning is important to me as it focuses on songwriters, without whom there would be no music business." Bravo to that.

WINNER THE 2022 SPECIAL AWARD, FOLLOWING

THE DEATH OF THE QUEEN Daily News Reportage for BBC News

Jonny Dymond and James Bryant won a special award for the radio news packages that aired in the ten days between the death and funeral of Queen Elizabeth II in September last year.

"It is an odd award to win, the coverage of a death," says Dymond. "But it's a fairly rum trade that we're in. It was reportage, it was what was in front of us and trying to tell people what it was like to be there – what it sounded like, looked like and felt like. In a sense, it's the easiest form of radio, and in another, it's quite hard. But it's just about taking people there, which is the joy of radio – a medium I love." LR

▼ HELENA MERRIMAN & ELOISE WHITMORE

WINNER BEST NEW RADIO SHOW

Room 5 – BBC Radio 4

In 2018, Helena Merriman (left with sound designer Eloise Whitmore in blue) was told she had otosclerosis, a degenerative hearing condition.

In Room 5 she interviews people whose lives were also changed by unexpected diagnoses. "Starting a new radio show is hard, so it means a huge amount to win," says Merriman. "With Room 5, we tried to put people into the worlds of others. We've had hundreds of emails. It's created a real community." LR

GRAPEVINE

The TV stories that are getting us talking...

WRITE-OFF

Everyone from President Biden to Snoop Dogg has been weighing in on the US writers' strikes. So expect delays on dramas, including Netflix's Stranger Things, Apple TV's Severance, Disney+ series Abbott Elementary and Paramount+'s Yellowjackets. Among the Game of Thrones prequels, one – A Knight of the Seven Kingdoms is paused, but series two of House of the Dragon is still going ahead.

WORDY WORSLEY

Move over Victoria Coren Mitchell – Channel 5 is lining up an Only Connect rival with Lucy Worsley (right) in charge. New show Puzzling will test contestants on lateral thinking, language, visual intelligence and more. In a twist, teammates don't know each other and each member of the winning team fights to be the overall victor. Cut-throat.

BOWIE ON THE BEEB

BBC4's season of rarely shown archive dramas is to screen one of the most avant-garde pieces to play on BBC1. Introduced in 1982 as "a star vehicle for a big star", Baal – Alan Clarke's adaptation of Bertolt Brecht's debut play starring David Bowie (right) – will screen this summer and features songs, split-screen monologues and frozen stage tableaux to bewildering effect.

WHO'S THE DADDY?

An upcoming Netflix series from the producers of C4's recent Paula Yates documentary Paula sets out to explore the extraordinary case of a man accused of fathering more than 500 children. The three-part series, Fertility Fraudster (which is a working title) looks into claims levelled against Dutch YouTuber Jonathan Meijer, who has been threatened with a six-figure fine if he ever donates his sperm again. ROBIN PARKER

TEN QUESTIONS WITH

ESME AND PATRICK

The Great British Sewing Bee judges Esme Young and Patrick Grant reveal the show's most memorable moments, backstage Boggle championships – and why Ziggy Stardust is a style icon.

As The Great British Sewing Bee turns ten, judges Esme Young and Patrick Grant reveal the show's most memorable moments, backstage Boggle championships – and why Ziggy Stardust is a style icon.

In ten years of Sewing Bee, how has sewing changed?

PATRICK Data suggests a lot more people are buying sewing machines – something like 400 per cent more. After the second series I had a really nice letter from a haberdashery in Essex. They were on the verge of going out of business before Sewing Bee, and now they've rented bigger premises and are running classes.

ESME People stop me in the street and tell me they're going to buy a sewing machine. I always ask them if they sew and they say, "No, but I want to." That's so positive. Sewing is really good for your mental health.

What's the best piece you've ever seen on Sewing Bee?

PATRICK Esme dressed as Sonny Bono – with that moustache she looked more like Des Lynam!

In this series there are two spellbinding transformations that are next-level couture brilliance. The winning garment is spectacular.

ESME I loved the Party Week challenge in the

IMPRESSED
Esme loved the sewers' version of Swanky Modes' Amorphous Dress series eight final when they had to replicate the Amorphous dress by Swanky Modes [the brand she co-founded in 1972].

What's been the biggest surprise?

PATRICK The prolonged success of the show and how every year we find another dozen people who are just as brilliant as the ones before. Sometimes we'd see our viewing figures and say, "Hang on – more people watch us than Game of Thrones!"

ESME: For me it's the transformation challenges – in series five they turned unused festival tents into dog coats.

And most unusual design?

ESME Maybe the outfits inspired by David Bowie in the made-to-measure challenge in Music Week, series eight (inset, above right). My friend is a record producer, and David Bowie once came to a Notting Hill Carnival party we threw. I sat on the window ledge with him and as people passed by below, they'd look up and say, "Oh my God!"

PATRICK This series we have a new theme called Art Week, and two contestants produce clothing that could honestly be pieces from an Alexander McQueen catwalk.

Has your judging style changed?

PATRICK I used to be harsher, but when Esme arrived [replacing May Martin as a judge in 2016], I softened, because I knew Esme was going to come along with a bulldozer and drive it through their hopes and dreams!

ESME I hope my criticism is constructive – people tell me it is! Patrick has been really supportive of me, and he made joining so much easier for me.

How does Sara Pascoe's presenting style differ from Joe Lycett's and Claudia Winkleman's?

PATRICK You don't need Google or Wikipedia when Sara's around, because she knows everything. She reads about four books a day. Sara's similar to Joe in that she's a standup, but they're all funny people. Claudia is hilarious. We used to play very competitive games of Boggle with the crew. She was better than me, which was annoying.

Do you hang out when you're not filming the series?

PATRICK Yes, we're pals. I gave Esme a lift to Birmingham to watch Joe's Friday-night TV show on Channel 4. We try to catch up every six to eight weeks by going to dinner or an event – we went to the final of The Piano, which Claudia was hosting.

CHRISTIAN'S
ZIGGY STARDUST INSPIRED CATSUIT

FOR ZIGGY...

The design for a catsuit inspired by David Bowie is one of Esme's favourite makes on Sewing Bee

Do you ever get on each other's nerves?

ESME We definitely don't get on each other's nerves.

PATRICK She's on my nerves all the time! No, we share a dressing room and I listen to Esme's choice of music at lunchtime, which is very good. She's into her 1960s and 70s music and I now have a playlist on my phone called "Esme's Tunes".

ESME We have a very good relationship. Patrick and I love dancing as well.

How successful would you be on other shows like Bake Off or The Great Pottery Throw Down?

PATRICK I taught pottery to kids at an American summer camp, so I've done a bit of ceramics. I do like baking, so I think I'd be OK.

ESME I'd be absolutely terrible.

I like cooking and I once went to a pottery class more than 50 years ago, but I wouldn't apply.

PATRICK What we should do for Children in Need is stage a triple header where we all compete on each other's shows. Esme and I would judge the sewing round, with Prue, Paul, Keith and Rich sewing, then we'd be bakers and potters.

ESME I'd do it for Children in Need, but not for fun.

In a cost-of-living crisis, do we need to make do and mend?

PATRICK We have to be happier with fewer items of clothing. Fashion is such a huge contributor to the overall climate crisis; it's responsible for around 10 per cent of all greenhouse gases and over 20 per cent of the world's insecticide use. And 35 per cent of ocean microplastics are discarded fibres from synthetic textiles. We have to educate people about sustainability.

ESME Another issue of cheap clothing is that when you buy something new you get a high, but it doesn't last long. I decided two years ago I wouldn't buy any more new clothes. I make clothes to wear on Sewing Bee. TOBY EARLE

design film posters

SCREEN ART
Matt Ferguson
(below), and his
for the poster

As Star Wars Episode VI: Return of the Jedi celebrates its 40th anniversary, Matt Ferguson, who designed the poster to celebrate the film's return to the cinema last month, tells us about his art.

HULK HELPS OUT I was working in a music shop in Sheffield, around the time that Marvel movies were starting to take off, which inspired me to get into drawing. I made a poster for The Avengers and put it up online. By chance, it was seen by [Hulk actor] Mark Ruffalo, who wanted a copy! That started a dialogue with the studio, who hired me to make an alternative poster for the home release. I've worked with Disney/Lucasfilm and Marvel for over a decade now.

DRAWING DR STRANGE I like to boil my designs down to one specific scene or element. With my Doctor Strange in the Multiverse of Madness poster, I put Wanda [Elizabeth Olsen] at the heart of it, surrounded by broken shards of glass, each featuring a different Doctor Strange in a different universe.

BE CREATIVE It's common for poster designers not to have seen the movie. There are stringent rules around using someone's likeness on a poster, too – each actor has to approve it. There are occasions where the studio has an idea of what they want, but I'm able to work with creative freedom.

BACK TO BLACK Darth Vader's helmet has nice graphic shapes and, as he's essentially all black, you can play with silhouette and contrast and it always works.

KEEP IT CLASSY The recent trend in blockbuster film posters seems to be all the actors piled on top of each other in a semi-circle. Rather than main-release posters, where you're trying to reach as wide an audience as possible, which usually means putting the famous actors front and centre, I usually work on alternative posters. Mine are aimed at a smaller group of people, which means I can be more stylistic. Alternative poster art often harks back to classic movie posters, so there's an element of nostalgia.

VIEWPOINT

CAN TRUTH SURVIVE WAR?

Ukraine's spring offensive will test news reporters' skill, says Jeremy Bowen

REMEMBER HOW THE war in Ukraine dominated every news bulletin for weeks after the Russian invasion at the end of February last year? It felt as if every detail was vitally important. Then the war started to recede from the top of the news agenda. Other stories reasserted themselves. That is because news comes – and goes – in cycles. The Russia-Ukraine war didn't become less important. It did become more familiar, and as a war of movement turned into a war of attrition, it became harder for journalists to find new angles.

This spring and summer the war will come roaring back into the bulletins and front pages, if and when Ukraine launches its much-anticipated offensive. Journalists will be working hard, often in dangerous places, to report the truth about what's happening.

It will not be easy. Good and honest journalists will be trying to navigate their way past the obstacles that stand between them and the truth. How much gruesome detail is enough? How should reporters narrow the distance between themselves and the story? Is it possible to be a journalist and an activist? I'd say no. George Monbiot, a winner of the prestigious Orwell Prize for Journalism, disagrees.

Of course, some people believe there is no such thing as truth, as we all believe in our own versions of reality. I think that's a discussion to be had after we have digested the news of the day. For journalists, it's possible to talk about the best obtainable version of the truth. That is a formulation favoured by Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward, the Washington Post reporters whose investigation into the Watergate break-in

'Impartiality doesn't equal being neutral'

brought down the US president, Richard Nixon, in 1974. "Best obtainable" means explaining to our audiences what we do and how we do it, being transparent, accurate and empathetic.

Journalism should be the truth business, and our audiences need to believe our stories, and if they don't, we might as well stay at home. Empathy is vital, because we are dealing with human beings, often at their worst moments.

Our reporting at BBC News is underpinned by impartiality. Other news organisations – though not all – have a similar creed, although sometimes they give it other names, like objectivity. Impartiality is not an end in itself. It is a technique, a tool, that we use to get as close as we can to the best obtainable truth about a story.

Impartiality doesn't equal being neutral. CNN's chief international anchor Christiane Amanpour talks about her slogan, of "truthful, not neutral".

I came upon a speech made in 1965 by Sir Hugh Greene, then the BBC's director-general. Impartiality, he said, did not mean being neutral about basic moral values: truthfulness, justice, freedom, compassion, tolerance. Of course, the media landscape has been utterly transformed since he was surveying it in 1965. BBC2 had only just launched, and the tech tycoons behind social media were not even born. In 2023, taking out my phone and sharing my truth on Twitter, just because it's my opinion, would not be impartial journalism. Impartiality means showing the analysis and reportage that produced a judgement about an event.

In a world in which information hurtles our way every second, professional journalism is more necessary than ever. In almost 40 years at the BBC, reporting from dozens of countries, I can honestly say most journalists I've met are interested in getting to the truth.

THE RADIO TIMES AT 100

Continuing our countdown to the centenary of Radio Times in September, with a weekly look back at some of the magazine's landmark issues...

THIS WEEK IN RT... 23-29 MAY 1970

It was a crowded cover, drawn by Julian Allen, this week 53 years ago. But why were the cast of Dad's Army, Morecambe and Wise, Cilla Black, Frankie Howerd, Dave Allen and Vera Lynn dressed in Commonwealth Games blazers? Because they were all appearing in a Royal TV Gala Performance, before Her Majesty the Queen, in aid of the British Isles countries competing in that year's Games, which were to be held in Edinburgh.

A dozen members of the Walmington-on-Sea platoon turned out for the Dad's Army sketch, about supplying the guard for Buckingham Palace. "Does that mean to say we'll be wearing red coats and busbies?" asked Private Pike. You can imagine what Captain Mainwaring's answer to that was... MARK BRAXTON

WHY GO PUBLIC?

Does tell-all TV make us sympathise more with wayward celebrities? I'm not so sure

■ WOULD YOU WATCH a responsible, well-researched documentary about addiction, hosted by someone eminently qualified but not in the public eye? Possibly... if you had a personal connection to the issue and a need to know more. Now, would you watch a documentary about the addiction problems of a former boyband star (Matt Willis) who is married to a talented TV presenter (Emma Willis), with heartfelt contributions from them both? It's a definite yes from me – and I won't lie about it.

Let's face it, there's nothing we enjoy more than discovering that life is less than Instagram-perfect behind the scenes. That sounds cruel, as celebrities suffer in the same way as the rest of us. But a glimpse of the Willis family home leaves you in no doubt that they are, in many ways, very fortunate people.

'I can see Matt has suffered. But I feel really sorry for Emma'

Many viewers of Matt Willis: Fighting Addiction will be more familiar with the subject's wife, Emma, than the man himself. She is a regular on TV screens – a dependably unflappable host you could trust with just about anything. The couple met when she interviewed his band, Busted. They've been together for 18 years and married days after he left his first stay in rehab. The fact that she opens the programme – for once struggling to find the right words – sets the tone for the rest of the film. She is leafing through a diary in which she has detailed Matt's habits: wine, vodka "and more". She remembers driving around the area's pubs desperately trying to find him. Presumably she may also have been preparing to host a cheery light entertainment show around the same time. You'd never have known; Emma seems the very model of competence. Matt says he's now been to rehab four times and last relapsed when their youngest child was ten months old.

I can see he has certainly suffered. But I feel really sorry for her. And Matt knows he has put her through it: "I hurt her so many times. I don't know where to begin."

BUT THAT'S THE question: did he need to begin? Or more specifically, did he need to do so in public? We are getting used to this sort of show. Too used, perhaps. We have no right to any of this information. No person – famous or not – is obliged to share it with us. But Matt duly bares his soul and goes back to his childhood home to speak with his brother about their "messy" domestic situation and the times he took drugs and drank at the playing fields. His unhappy start, he believes, is the root of his problems.

There's jeopardy, too. He's going back on tour in autumn and knows there will be temptation when he's away. Emma looks pained – this is where it went wrong before. And now he's made this programme, I'm not sure the pressure will be any less.

RELIVING IT
Emma and Matt Willis speak about his addiction troubles

There are echoes of a similar recent BBC documentary – Freddie Flintoff: Living with Bulimia (available on iPlayer). Here was another charismatic, gifted man from a world of blustering machismo who was insecure and unhappy. It was a tough watch – and attaching a famous name to such an unglamorous project was probably the best way to guarantee it would be made.

In fairness, I learnt a lot about the condition – and so did Flintoff. As he said, "Apart from my own experience, I know nothing about it." He took us to the toilets at the cricket grounds where he'd thrown up; he explained the planning that went into it, the joy he felt when the weight fell off. By the end of the programme he, like Matt Willis, was determined to seek the right help. Unlike ordinary viewers who will have to do battle with NHS waiting lists, though, they both have a decent chance of getting it.

AN OPEN BOOK
Andrew Flintoff was honest about his experience of bulimia

Matt Willis: Fighting Addiction is repeated on Tuesday 11.05pm BBC1 and is also on iPlayer

RADIO TIMES PODCAST

Listen to The Radio Times Podcast where every week Kelly-Anne Taylor is joined by a celebrity guest to talk all things TV.

IN THE SUMMER of 1983, I was the editor of Smash Hits. The magazine was at the time entering its imperial phase, at the zenith of which it would sell a barely believable million copies every fortnight.

In those early days the editorial team, being friends as well as workmates, would invariably address each other as “man”. This was done regardless of sex. The central vowel would be extended to “maaan” in order to make it clear this was a joke.

Forty years later, Neil Tennant of the Pet Shop Boys, who at the time was a member of that team, ambles into the reception of a workspace above Marylebone Station and greets me in precisely the same fashion.

“Maaan!”

The receptionist appears momentarily flus-tered. They have clearly grown up with a national playlist in which Pet Shop Boys hits like West End Girls remain evergreen, has probably noticed their It's a Sin providing the title for an acclaimed TV drama about Britain in the Aids era and may even have been spotted doing all the actions along with Go West when the band headlined last year's Glastonbury. I forget how famous the former assistant editor really is.

The same might be said of Chris Lowe, who arrives ten minutes later. In the early 80s, Chris was the young architecture student who would turn up at the end of our working day, waiting for Neil to be free to come and play. We knew the two of them made music. Nobody dreamt it would ever amount to more than a hobby for them and an excuse for leg-pulling from the rest of us.

In the summer of 1983 I was in New York on business. At the same time Neil had wangled a trip to interview Sting of the Police, who had attended the same Newcastle school as him.

During the same trip Neil engineered a meeting with Bobby Orlando, an independent producer of dance records who was based in New York. Neil's enthusiasm for the works of Bobby O was another office joke.

When we met up that evening at the Gramercy Park Hotel, Neil brought extraordinary news from Bobby O. “You'll never guess. He wants to record one of our songs!”

It was a sunny day. We ordered cold beer and potato chips. Then we laughed and laughed and laughed from sheer giddy delight.

“Of course I remember,” says Neil when I bring it up. “We had a hoot. And my entire life changed.”

Didn't it just? Reel Stories, in which Dermot O'Leary talks Neil and Chris through clips from their subsequent 40 years of adventures in pop,

WE WERE NEVER BEING BORING

Neil Tennant and Chris Lowe on the secret of the Pet Shop Boys' 40-year success story, why they say no to royals, being backstage with Sinatra and the day their lives changed for ever from the early days when they fielded calls from kids on Saturday-morning telly to the later days when David Bowie would call them at home, is a reminder that, while their lives may have changed, their personalities haven't.

THE RT INTERVIEW BY DAVID HEPWORTH

Because they became members of the pop aristocracy in their mid- to late 20s, roughly the age at which pop stars of earlier generations would retire, there's a part of them that remains forever the bemused fan and detached observer.

They insisted on not knowing which clips had been picked before the Reel Stories recording, hence their unfeigned delight and mild embarrassment when Neil sees himself, teeth unfixed, back in the Smash Hits office and Chris watches his cameo in Neighbours.

"I remember as a kid watching old films on Sunday afternoons and my mother would say, 'It must be very odd for film stars to see what they looked like 30 years ago.' Since the arrival of YouTube we've all got used to seeing our old selves."

At the same time it's a journey back into a time when we didn't choose our own media diets and leave everything else at the side of our plates. "Saturday-morning kids TV was not just for kids. It was also for students with hangovers," recalls Neil. "And me. You watched hoping you might see a crack in a pop star's image. Wouldn't you like to see Dua Lipa on a Saturday Superstore now?"

Chris feels they made a big mistake when they ported children's TV to a children's channel. "They put it in a ghetto. It's the same everywhere. If you switch to MTV these days, you first have to choose which sort of MTV you want."

OPPORTUNITIES

A pre-fame Neil Tennant working for Smash Hits and, right, with Chris Lowe in the Pet Shop Boys' early days, taken around 1985

'We even got told off by Barbara Windsor for not waving. We just don't wave'

NEIL TENNANT

◁ can be trusted in the company of grown-ups, Neil was asked to speak to BBC management about the prospect of reviving Top of the Pops but feels that ship has probably sailed. "I interviewed the producer 40 years ago when it was celebrating its 20th anniversary. He said people liked it because it was like a horse race. Most people thought that was crass, but he was absolutely right."

"When does the chart even come out now?" wonders Chris.

Forty years tied to pop music's mast has afforded Neil and Chris ample time to watch formats come and go. In the late 80s, they appeared on an ITV reboot of the London Palladium franchise where they irritated their mothers by refusing to wave from the carousel at the end. "We even got told off by Barbara Windsor," says Neil. "We just don't wave. It's in our book of rules," he says, referring to the notional handbook they periodically invoke. What else is in it? "No royals. No sitting on sofas on chat shows." Why? "It causes man-spreading."

"We prefer an upright chair," adds Chris, primly.

THE CONVERSATION TURNS to the fact that Newcastle, where Neil comes from, is very different from Chris's hometown, Blackpool. "North-east musicians are less reserved and more earnest. Musicians from north-west England don't say much and have a different sense of humour," says Neil.

Chris demonstrates. "We went to a studio the other day where there was a whippet. It went straight to Neil. Geordies all have whippets."

As a pair of essentially reserved Northern gentlemen whose on-stage demeanour has more in common with Gilbert and George than Wham!, their odyssey has been on one level a journey to see how far it might be possible to progress in pop while avoiding personal embarrassment.

"Nobody told us anything when we started," says Neil. "In the end you just wait to see what you'll do and what you won't. When we did the Roskilde Festival in Denmark in 1997 in front of 70,000 people, I'd never even been to a festival. Chris said to me, 'What are you going to do?' I didn't know. Turns out you get the mic in your hand and you hear yourself saying, 'Roskilde!'

And you think, 'Oh, we're doing that.'"

The 20th-century half of their career took place in the world of physical product, of four chart-topping singles, when a number one record meant something. The second half has not been so much about the wax. "We had the highest new entry of the new millennium," laughs Neil. "Went in at eight and dropped out the following week. I quite admire the bloody-mindedness of people who will pretty much do anything for a hit. We gave up on that more than ten years ago. When streaming came in, we thought, 'Well, we had a good go.'"

When they began 40 years ago there were no pop stars who had been around for 40 years. You had to go back to the Second World War and names like Vera Lynn. Even Frank Sinatra had retired and then come back. Neil and Chris got a chance to study the latter backstage at the Albert Hall in 1989 when he appeared with their new friend Liza Minnelli. "He came out of the star dressing room with a glass of bourbon," says Neil, "and went down the ramp with a chuckle."

"He looked just like Frank Sinatra," adds Chris reassuringly.

They've met a lot of famous people over the years and have something to say about all of them. Much of this is Neil's feature-writer's eye, which remains undimmed. He remembers being introduced to Sammy Davis Jr. "He called us 'you cats', which was quite a moment."

When he had lunch with two intimates of the late Noël Coward, he was delighted to note they called each other "ducky". "It was like being in Blithe Spirit."

Neil, who lives among his books in west London, bristles with theatrical references. Following our chat, he's on his way to the National Theatre to see The Motive and the Cue starring Mark Gatiss. He has high hopes but it will have to go some to outstrip The Wagatha Christie Trial, which, he assures me, in a characteristic rhetorical flourish, underscored as ever by a rap on the table with his index finger, is "almost my favourite night ever in the theatre".

OLLY ALEXANDER 2022 ◀

◀ from Mikhail Gorbachev in 2003, the man who brought down the Wall and changed our world tapped Neil on the arm to make sure he didn't trip over a monitor. "You could tell he was a nice person. Putin would have let me fall."

This summer they are back out in Britain and Europe with their Dream-world greatest hits tour. This will attract the customary coalition of chin-stroking pop scholars, habitués of London nightclub Heaven and sensibly dressed couples from the shires who grew up to the sound of their hits. They agree that pop music always starts out sounding happy and ends up sounding slightly sad because it has been filtered through the audience's past, which is somewhat longer than it once was. There is a new compilation album called Smash, which will arrive in the bewildering range of formats that the diehard fan-collectors demand.

NEIL IS 68, Chris is 63, which means they are entering pop's Third Age. When I ask whether they've ever considered the idea of retirement, they've clearly not discussed the subject. This may account for the fact that, as Neil observes, "silence falls over the room".

"I always assume it will happen when it happens," he says after a pause.

"It's not like this takes up an awful lot of your time," adds Chris in what must be the Penny Black of pop star one-liners. "We tour but we don't do these year-long tours without any breaks. And the albums have got a lot quicker to make."

The advent of AI may be about to make that an even quicker process. The 15-year-old daughter of their manager recently amazed them by asking the bot to come up with a song in the style of the Pet Shop Boys. AI duly obliged.

Leaving aside for a moment the fact that we are told AI might be as consequential as the discovery of fire, Neil feels this technology might also be handy in making pop records. "There's a song that we wrote a chorus for in 2003 and we never finished because I couldn't think of anything for the verses. But now with AI you could give it the bits you've written, press the button and have it fill in the blanks. You might then rewrite it, but it could nonetheless be a tool."

Speaking of the kind of technology that would have been impossible to imagine when the Pet Shop Boys began, they have both been mightily impressed by Abba Voyage, the "virtual residency" show in which the Swedish hitmakers are represented by avatars capturing them in their youth and beauty for an audience born too late to have witnessed the real thing. Neil found it, he says, "quite moving".

Have the Pet Shop Boys thought about doing something similar? "Well, as we say, 'They're all looking at it,' but I think Abba is a unique phenomenon. They're perfect for that presentation because their sound was striving for perfection, they were only together for a short while, then they disappeared in a way that nobody else has disappeared. The idea that everybody always liked Abba is not true. Nobody talked about them for years. It wouldn't be the same with, say, the Beatles."

"So the answer is, we'll probably do it," adds Chris, deadpan.

There is the possibility of further touring with their near-contemporaries New Order. This revolves around the decision-making process between the five members of that comparatively populous group. Have the Pet Shop Boys kept going as long as they have because there are only two of them?

"Yes, definitely," says Neil. "In a band you have to start with four or five people who like each other and make the decisions. And people's lives are complicated. With us, there are only two who have gone through the whole thing for 40 years. That's a strong bond."

It's easier for two people to reach the kind of swift agreement you need to take sudden left turns such as taking part in a tribute to Alan Turing at the Proms or recording a piece for The Archers in an episode where the factual Pet Shop Boys stepped in at the last minute to rescue the fictional Loxfest. Neil only wishes his mother had been around for the day in 2014 when they did both. "I suppose you never stop trying to please your parents."

That sounds like the title of a Pet Shop Boys song.

Smash: the Singles 1985–2020 is released on 16 June via Parlophone.

SURANNE JONES AND Eve Best couldn't be more different. Both are terrific actors, of course, but they tend to operate in distant fields. Jones excels at everyday characters put under pressure: a traumatised DCI in Vigil, a wife exacting her revenge in Doctor Foster, the 19th-century diarist Anne Lister in Gentleman Jack. Best, meanwhile, is a celebrated stage actor whose TV appearances are fewer, but always memorable: she breezed into Nurse Jackie as a glamorous British medic and rides a dragon as Princess Rhaenys Targaryen in House of the Dragon.

Despite their contrasting CVs and physical differences – Jones, 44, dark-haired, slighter and shorter; Best, 51, taller with a tumbling blonde mane – the pair make brilliant and believable sisters in the new ITV drama Maryland. Becca (Jones) and Rosaline (Best) were once close, but are now estranged. After their mother Mary is found dead on the Isle of Man, the sisters discover she had been leading a double life they knew nothing about and, as decades of resentment and jealousy surface, they are forced to rethink their relationship.

'I believe we're sisters even if we don't look alike'

SURANNE JONES

The three-part series – created by Jones with screenwriter Anne-Marie O'Connor, whose credits include Trolly and Hullraisers – is the first co-production for TeamAkers, the production company Jones runs with her writer/producer husband Laurence Akers. I ask her why she recruited Best. "I have always wanted to work with Eve. She brings this subtlety to her role in Maryland that makes you up your game. When I watch it, I believe that we're sisters, even though we don't look the same."

Best, talking to RT during a break in filming on the second season of House of the Dragon, says she only met Jones properly a week before the shoot. "Chemistry is something that you have no control over, but with Suranne it felt very easy. Because we were fighting so much on screen, we were very nice to each other the rest of the time."

Both actors have a sibling. Best

Sister act

Suranne Jones and Eve Best play estranged sisters who stumble on a dark family secret. But how do you create on-screen chemistry when you've never met before?

declines to discuss hers, but Jones says she has very good relationship with her brother Gary: "We're very different. My brother is sweet, calm and very kind." What does that say about her? She laughs. "Oh, I'm a bit wilder and expressive. Spontaneous and creative."

Deception is something Jones has explored before – who can forget the dark fury she exhibited in the dinner party scene in Doctor Foster? – but a mother deceiving her daughters is even more agonising than a cheating spouse, and betrayal and grief form a pretty potent mix.

Jones concurs. "I lost both my parents over a period of five years, so I know about grief. As for the deception, I guess it's about fear. It certainly resonates. People are always asking if there's going to be a third series of Doctor Foster." Not at the moment is the answer, if you were wondering.

ON THE QUESTION of betrayal, for some reason I imagine Jones is a very honest person. "Oh, totally honest! My husband thinks I'm the worst liar. If anyone cheats at a game, I get cross. I like things proper. People say it's a Virgo trait. I've got a perfectionism thing going on, which is good and bad, because I want everyone to be good and nice. But that's not life, is it?"

Maryland also stars George Costigan as the sisters' father, Dean Lennox Kelly as the man who finds a way to break down Becca's barriers, and Stockard Channing – yes, Betty Rizzo from Grease! – as a friend of Mary. Best was beside herself about working with Channing: "I screamed so loudly when I heard. I didn't tell her because I was too embarrassed, but I watched Grease when I was seven and Rizzo was my trailblazing pin-up. When I was at Oxford, the university paper ran a column asking students who their idols were and other students said Winston Churchill or whatever. I said Rizzo."

Did Channing have any idea what she meant to Best? "Not at the time. I sent a message to her via the producers of Maryland, because I thought she must know." Has she heard back?

"Not yet, but she was very sweet on set and it must be very confusing for her, at 79, to be a hero for a certain generation of women."

Even though she didn't declare her love for Rizzo, Best was bereft when the Maryland shoot finished.

"It was a very particular project. It was made on such a small scale and we all worked so closely together, with a great deal of love. It was very special." And now, of course, she's back to riding dragons. Best laughs. "That is a lot of fun."

As for Jones, she has recalibrated the way she works since pulling out of a West End production of Bryony Lavery's stage play Frozen, in which she played the mother of a missing child, in February 2018. The following year she told The Guardian that a combination of the death of her mother when her son was only a few months old and a series of challenging roles tipped her over the edge. Now she tells me that life has changed.

"Something seismic happened when I was doing Frozen and I never want it

'When I was at uni my idol was Rizzo from Grease'

EVE BEST

to happen again. Life is different for me now. I've worked my way through lots of issues around grief and trauma and I've come out the other side. I know when to slow down. When to calm down. I know I can't control things, but I have things in place."

Jones set up TeamAkers to have more control over her work. "TeamAkers is about telling great stories and creating roles that I wouldn't otherwise be offered." So nothing to do with a shortage of roles for women over the age of 40? "That was the case when I developed Scott & Bailey with Sally Lindsay over a decade ago. I think – I hope – that we've moved on from that."

TeamAkers says it aims to make content that "resonates with the viewing public", which Maryland certainly will. While Best is still nostalgic for Rizzo, Jones is considering the objective of Maryland – and she, too, was looking back. "I wanted to do a northern story and make the old-fashioned television I watched when I was growing up." AMY RAPHAEL

Wild at heart

Forget manicured perfection – let weeds run riot in your garden, says Rachel de Thame

INTERVIEW BY AMY RAPHAEL

LAST YEAR, WHEN Rewilding Britain won Best Show Garden at the RHS Chelsea Flower Show, it caused quite a stir. How could a scruffy garden take overall gold? Where were the manicured lawns, the fastidiously designed flowerbeds and the tinkling water feature? The Rewilding Britain garden was, in fact, a pioneering feat of future-facing brilliance. It showed that rewilding benefits people as well as nature, it celebrated beavers as superstars and embraced native plants and – gasp – weeds.

As the dictionary definition of “weed” as “a valueless plant growing wild” seems increasingly out of touch, the controversy is set to grow. This year, the RHS Chelsea Flower Show is making an even bolder move, rebranding weeds as “resilient plants” – able to adapt to climate change and essential for pollinators, such as bees, butterflies and birds. But changing the horticultural habits of a lifetime requires resolve, even for sustainable gardeners like Rachel de Thame.

“I’m still learning,” says de Thame, who will be part of the BBC’s team of presenters at Chelsea. “I wanted a fruit cage in my garden, but my husband had had enough of DIY so I left the area alone. Watching the weeds come in has been a revelation. I’ve got buddleias that have seeded, all sorts of grasses and wildflowers and primroses that have migrated from other parts of the garden. It’s so beautiful, like a little mini meadow. I’m now happy not to have a fruit cage.”

There are, however, those who think embracing weeds is somehow ‘woke’. “It may seem like that to some, but it’s just about being aware and accepting that we, as humans, are not the only important beings in the environment in which we live,” she adds.

FLORAL FEAST
Gardeners’ World presenter Rachel de Thame loves the addition of weeds to her garden

The rehabilitation of weeds is a timely reflection of the movement in the garden community that refers to weeds as “weed heroes” or even “superweeds”. Cleve West, winner of six RHS gold medals at Chelsea, will this year design a garden – for the charity Centrepont – that makes a feature of weeds. Jilayne Rickards, another RHS gold medal winner, will be using bramble and thistles in her design.

Horticulturalist, designer, writer and Gardeners’ World presenter de Thame is very open about her lifelong relationship with weeds. When she was growing up in London, her father had the kind of suburban garden that was typical of the era. "Rockeries were very fashionable at the end of the 1960s – they were decorated with mini conifers and saxifrage. As a child, it was my job to keep that area free of weeds."

Was she the kind of child who plucked dandelions – a great source of pollen for insects – from the lawn because they were classified weeds? She laughs. "It's a very good question. As a child

'Why is public money used to get rid of a froth of cow parsley?'

I thought dandelions were fascinating and absolutely beautiful. Then I learnt they were weeds and shouldn't be growing in the garden, so war was waged on them." Is it a matter of control as much as anything, in the sense that a garden without weeds has been traditionally viewed as a garden well cared for? "I think it's absolutely that. A lot of people still want their garden to look cared for and, for many, that means pulling out all the weeds. But I really do think there's a compromise to be found."

Gardening in the climate emergency is all about adapting. There's already No Mow May, which allows wildflowers to flourish, therefore providing food for pollinators, tackling pollution and locking atmospheric carbon below ground. There's "no-dig" gardening, which leaves plants to die back naturally and stops the soil structure, including organisms like worms, from being disrupted. And now there's learning to love weeds, which is all about understanding their value. Nettles, for example, are an indicator that the soil is rich in nitrogen and therefore healthy.

When de Thame attended the English Gardening School in the late 90s, the status of weeds was already beginning to change. "It was just bubbling as an idea back then. There was an awareness of the issues around using insecticides and other chemicals in the garden and an understanding that insect numbers were already depleting – although the emphasis on TV gardening shows was still on neat gardens. I read something just the other day about killing your weeds and it felt old-fashioned. I'm vice-president of Plantlife, the international conservation charity, and the zeitgeist is very much along the lines of putting nature first."

In place of well-manicured gardens doused in insecticide, the new era of garden design is all about embracing a more holistic approach in which we share our gardens with nature. "If you have aphids or greenfly on your plants, ladybirds will eat them. Peacock butterflies lay their eggs on nettle leaves. Having said that, it's hard to love weeds like ground elder, horsetail and bindweed, all of which are hard to get rid of."

IT'S DOUBTLESS BECAUSE of these tricky, overbearing plants that some old schoolers can't get their heads round weeds. There has been criticism of councils who ban the use of harmful glyphosate herbicides and instead let weeds grow wild on pavements, or who leave grass verges to grow and wildflowers to flourish.

De Thame acknowledges that it's hard to get the balance right. "Pavements obviously have to be free of obstructions for pushchairs and wheelchairs, but Plantlife has been campaigning about grass verges in the last decade or so because they are essential for pollinators. I was driving on a motorway the other day and the central area dividing the carriageways had been mown. Why on earth is public money being used to get rid of a froth of cow parsley?"

Back in her own garden in the Cotswolds, de Thame is leaving the dandelions and other weed heroes – "there are so many beautiful weeds" – to do their job and keep the ecosystem healthy. "Insects are amazing and I'm so glad that my garden has more weeds in it now than ever. They make my heart sing."

Joe Swift looks ahead to Chelsea – see page 134

RACHEL'S WONDER WEEDS

▽ LESSER CELANDINE

It has lovely, little starry yellow flowers.

▽ HERB-ROBERT

With its dusky pink flowers, it's like a beautiful geranium.

▽ ROSEBAY WILLOWHERB

Often seen on railway sidings.

▽ RED CLOVER

Really important for pollinators, but it can colonise.

▽ CREEPING BUTTERCUP

I like the creeping buttercup, but it's not for everyone.

▽ BRAMBLES

A difficult one, because you're lucky to have blackberries, but they root at the tips and march along land quickly. It can be thuggish; so keep on top of it.

▽ STICKY GRASS

Great because you can pull it out if it's bothering you.

MAKING WHOOPY

She's controversial, outspoken and groundbreaking. But her tough early life in New York made Whoopi Goldberg the woman she is today, John Wilson discovers

THE WHOOPY ENTOURAGE sweeps into Studio 80A of Broadcasting House to record an episode of the series This Cultural Life. There are managers, make-up, minders, a couple of nervous-looking PRs and, at its centre, draped in an electric blue crushed-velvet robe, flashing her gold nail varnish and wise-cracking with the crew, the woman herself.

One of only 18 people to have won an EGOT – all four of America's big showbusiness awards, Emmy, Grammy, Oscar and Tony – Goldberg clearly relishes the lights, camera and attention. So, I ask, as her crowd settles upon the BBC, when did she first realise that she could command a room? "About two weeks ago!" she shoots back. "I'm always shocked that people come and see me do stuff. I never thought I was going to become a famous movie person."

Born in 1955, Goldberg has appeared in over 100 films since her 1985 debut in Steven Spielberg's The Color Purple. Her hits include Ghost and Sister Act, and she has hosted the Academy Awards four times, but she is no ordinary star and the PRs are quick to remind me of their stipulations for our conversation. We won't be discussing the royal family (I had no intention anyway, thanks), and her daytime talk show, The View, is very much off limits.

Her career in both film and television has been unconventional and, occasionally, controversial, which is why, after all, ABC signed her to The View. In March she used the show to call for gun control after yet another horrific mass shooting in the US. But in 2022 there were also headlines in response to problematic comments she made about the Holocaust. She later apologised but was suspended from the programme for two weeks and that, I strongly suspect, is the reason behind the pre-conditions slapped on our interview.

Well, fine. This Cultural Life is about the formative influences and experiences that have driven the careers of some of the world's leading creative people and Goldberg is relentlessly creative. She recently announced that she'd been working on a graphic novel called The Change about a post-menopausal black superhero, telling the press, "Do you know who is really going to save the Earth? Old black women."

I want to understand that tendency to shoot from the hip, to go back to her solo stage shows of the mid-80s, when Goldberg inhabited a series of comic characters, mostly outsiders, in search of love and empathy. I want to know why Whoopi, now 67, is the way she is.

Some of the answers, it turns out, can be traced back to her youth in a New York City housing project, having left school in her early teens. "I couldn't take high school," she recalls, when the entourage have been safely dispatched and we can relax a little. "My mother encouraged my creativity. She said, 'You cannot just run the streets. But I will find the places where you can go, museums, public lectures, all kind of crazy stuff.' And in the 60s, you could do that because stuff was free. So my interest in learning was lit by her saying at the end of every day, 'What you learned today?'"

Moving to San Francisco "for a guy", her early career was forged in the radical 1970s theatre scene. It was here that she developed a solo stage show, playing comic versions of the very real characters she had grown up around on the streets of New York. It was a tough world where

'I'm always shocked that people come and see me'

STARTING OUT

On stage with her one-woman The Spook Show in the US in 1984

every laugh was hard-earned, but from it emerged the talent that now commands the front pages.

Her one-woman series of monologues, The Spook Show, moved to New York in the early 80s and she became a Broadway sensation. Search online and you can find a blurry recording; it's an uncomfortable watch. She transforms into a junkie burglar called Fontaine who visits the Anne Frank House in Amsterdam. She switches to become a baby-voiced 14-year-old Californian girl who describes performing an abortion on herself. Then she contorts her voice and limbs to play a woman with an unspecified disability, who is looking for romance.

OSCAR WINNER

She won an Academy Award in 1991 for Ghost (with Demi Moore, above)

D ID SHE FEEL a need to be transgressive, at the risk of offending people? "Well, I wish I had been that deep!" she replies. "Sometimes people said, 'Well, maybe you shouldn't say that.' But a friend of mine who was paraplegic said, 'I'm very mad at you.' I said, 'Why?' And he said, 'Because you never do us.' So I wrote this piece about a young lady who is not quite paraplegic, but is differently abled. She has disabilities which don't allow her always to think of herself as a hot young woman."

It's a performance that would be hard to get away with today, I suggest. Would she still be willing to play that character if she was starting out now? "Yeah!" she shouts without hesitation. "Because you tell me what's wrong with it?"

She has always cared enough to risk offending people and maybe she always will. Facing away from the adjoining studio, where we've corralled the Whoopi entourage,

I imagine anxious glances are being exchanged as we edge towards the heart of the matter. "The things that I've done, there's always been a reason," says Goldberg. "All of my work has been, 'This could be you, so pay attention.' That's always been my motive."

MICHAEL McCONVILLE was just 11 years old when his mother was abducted from the family home in the nationalist Divis Flats area of Belfast. She was dragged from her home by the IRA, in front of her ten children, in December 1972. Her disappearance led to speculation that she was taken after being seen by neighbours helping an injured British soldier, or that she was an informer. It would be another 31 years before Michael discovered where his mother Jean was buried.

Michael's father had died from cancer just 11 months before his mother was kidnapped and after her death, his younger siblings were taken into care. "I lost everybody I had in my family," says McConville. "Our family was split up and spread out into the winds." Social workers kept the children together for "six weeks and then they started splitting us up into different homes. We were very close before this happened but afterwards we didn't know each other."

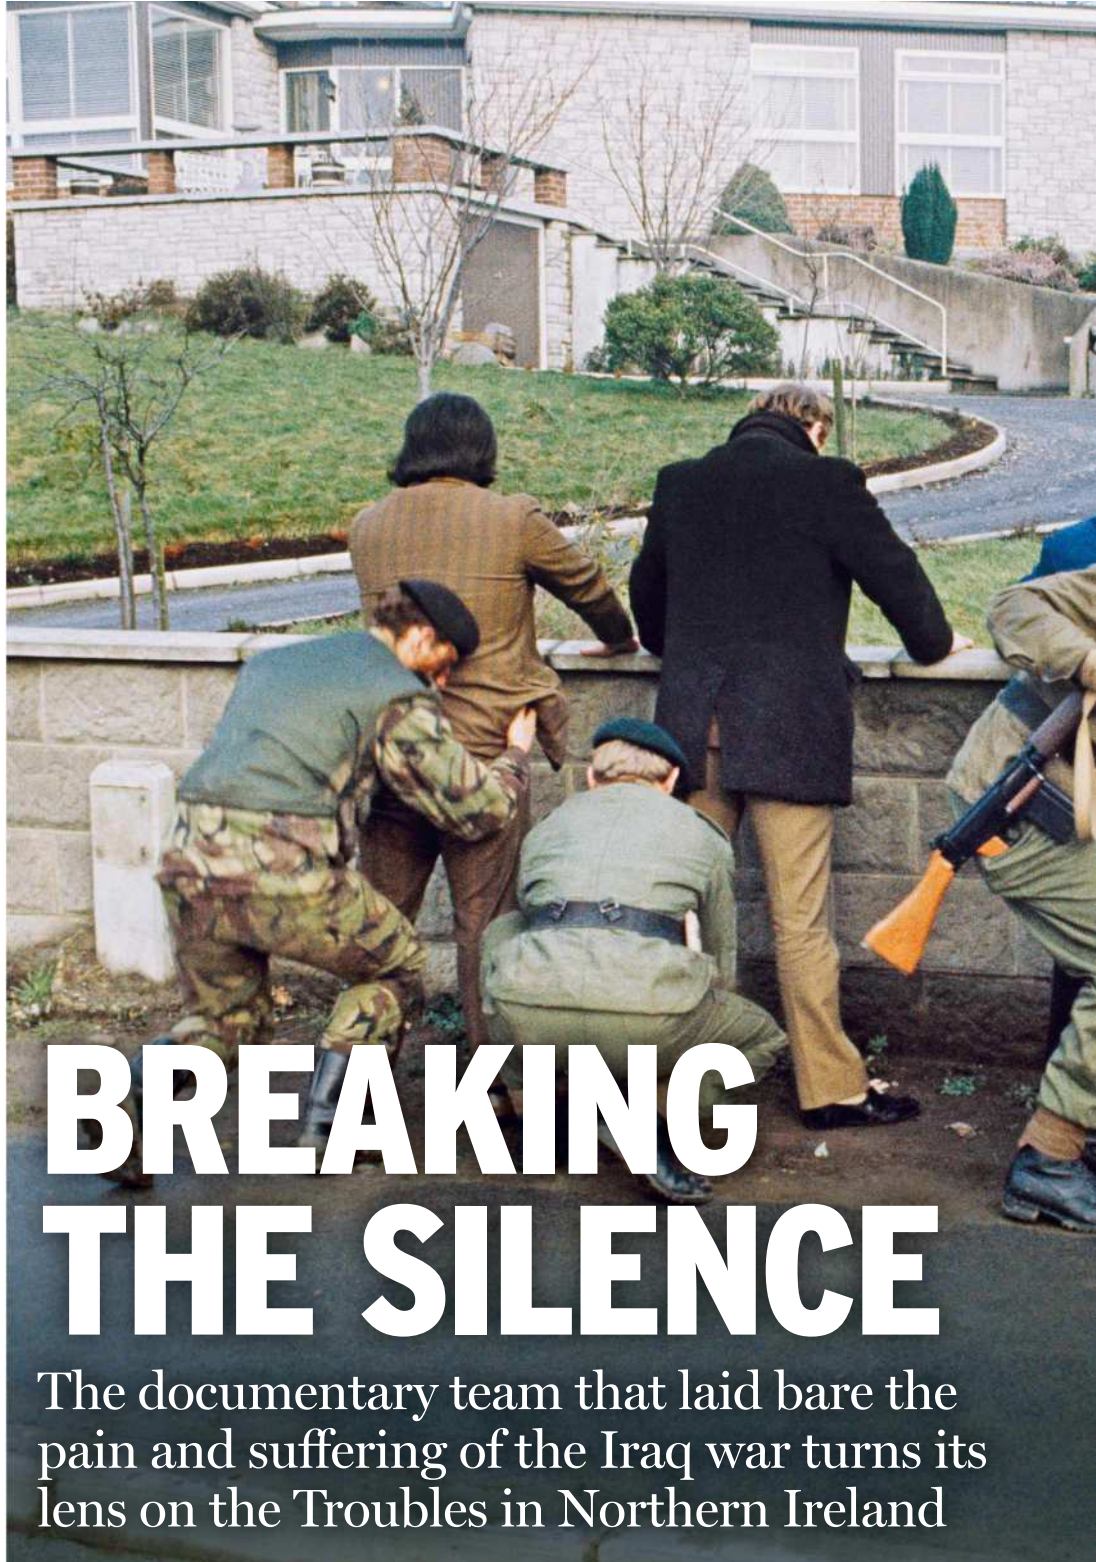

Jean, who had been brought up as a Protestant but converted to Catholicism when she married McConville's father Arthur, made the headlines for a few weeks, with her bewildered and scared children appearing on the news to recount her abduction. But the cycle of violence in Northern Ireland pushed out the orphaned family and their mother who had disappeared. The IRA denied they had kidnapped her. Gossip spread around the community that she had run away with another man. "The IRA spread an awful lot of rumours about my mother which we all know weren't true," McConville says.

HE TELLS HIS story alongside more than 20 testimonies in Once Upon a Time in Northern Ireland, a five-part BBC documentary series where the people who lived through the 30 years of the Troubles recount their stories in their own words.

Jean was one of the Disappeared, who had been abducted, murdered and secretly buried by Republicans. But the series hears stories from all sides of the sectarian divide and spans the origins of the Troubles from late 1960s Derry, through the bloody 1970s and the IRA hunger strikes of the 1980s to the Good Friday Agreement in 1998. Even-handed and absorbing, it sheds light on what motivates people to take up weapons against their neighbours, the complex web of fear and pride, and the devastating effects, through the decades, on those who are caught up in the violence.

More than 50 years after Jean's abduction, McConville "can't understand why these people came and took our mother away". He can remember her going to the aid of a wounded British soldier outside the family home, which led to tensions with neighbours. "The soldier was crying out, outside our door. In the Divis Flats, in the bedrooms you could hear everything."

"My mother said to the neighbours, 'I didn't know it was a British soldier – it was somebody's son and I like to think if it was my son somebody else would have went out.' It could have been an IRA man outside the door, she didn't care who it was, she was going out to help him."

The children of Jean McConville finally found out what had happened to their mother in 2003, when her body was discovered in the Republic of Ireland, close to the border. She had been shot in the back of the head. The IRA had previously given some information about the location of the body, but police found nothing. Then, when a storm washed away part of an embankment at the beach, Jean's body was discovered.

It's still not clear why the IRA kidnapped this widow and mother. Despite some arrests, nobody has ever been charged in relation to her abduction and murder. After 31 years, Jean was reburied beside her husband, bringing some comfort to her family. "Now we have a grave to go to, now we know where she is," says McConville. "The hardest part of anybody being disappeared is not knowing where they are."

Three years after the discovery of Jean's body,

'In England there is a lack of interest in the Troubles'

DIRECTOR, JAMES BLUEMEL

the IRA issued a statement that claimed she was working as an informer for the British army. Her family has always denied this. There was no apology from the IRA, only an expression of regret for "the suffering of all the families whose loved ones were killed and buried by the IRA".

The Disappeared

JEAN McCONVILLE

"It was one of the main things we were robbed of – of our childhood but also of our kids having a grandmother," says McConville. "It affects my kids and my brothers' and sisters' kids as well. It just keeps going on and on. Where does it end? This is another reason politicians have to move on, to help the next generation and the generation after that."

James Bluemel, the director of Once Upon a Time in Northern Ireland, spoke to Republican and Loyalist paramilitaries, housewives, mothers and daughters, British soldiers, police officers and many others affected by the Troubles, giving each of them time and space to tell their story. "Getting that natural flow and making that journey from memory to mouth as short as possible is really key – to let people speak in their own words," he says.

BLUEMEL HAD TAKEN a similar approach in his highly acclaimed 2020 documentary series Once Upon a Time in Iraq. "It was relatively easy to get access to those Iraqis because no one had asked them, 'What do you feel about this?' Before you got to the end of that sentence they were telling you.

It was very different in Northern Ireland, building up that trust took a lot of work."

He says some people he interviewed about the Troubles needed a lot more time than others, "especially people who have not spoken before who are wondering, 'Is it safe to speak?' Traditionally those people rarely speak out, which means their stories often get neglected."

His aim with the documentary is for a better understanding of what went on during the 30 years of violence in all parts of the UK. "In England the attitude towards the Troubles is often one of wilful fatigue; there is a lack of interest in the subject and a feeling that it's too complicated to understand and nothing to do with us... something that just happened over there between two warring tribes," he says. "That just isn't the case."

He hopes Once Upon a Time in Northern Ireland will promote a better sense of understanding among the region's still-divided communities. "In Northern Ireland people have entrenched ways of thinking and perhaps it's difficult to come out of those and to have empathy with someone else who has a different point of view," he says.

"I'm hoping that as you watch the contributors talk about their stories, in that personal way that they do, empathy grows, and you might find yourself seeing the world through a point of view you have not really considered. That's not to say you will agree with them, but you might understand them a bit. I'm hoping this series will increase a little bit of kindness towards others. It would be great if that happens." TONY GREW

UNLOCK THE FINANCIAL POTENTIAL OF YOUR HOME

GET YOUR NEW GUIDE
BY RT'S
PAUL LEWIS

Could your home's equity be a valuable asset in helping you enjoy your later years?

Your home is likely to be your biggest asset, and with property prices rising over the last decade, it's possible that you have a considerable amount of wealth tied up in your home. However, this wealth is difficult to access without selling or downsizing. For homeowners aged 55 and over who are looking to boost their finances, equity release could help.

WHAT IS EQUITY RELEASE?

Equity release is a way of accessing the wealth that has built up in the value of your home, while continuing to own the home you love. The money released is tax free and can be taken as a lump sum or in smaller instalments. You can choose whether to make repayments, as the money that you release, plus the interest that you accrue, is repaid when you die or go into long-term care and your property is sold. Plus, some plans allow you to pay off a portion of the interest each month, meaning you can reduce the amount of debt that is being rolled up.

Once you've repaid your existing mortgage you can choose how to spend the money, whether that's on home improvements, a gift to loved ones or simply supplementing your day-to-day finances.

SAFEGUARD YOUR INHERITANCE

All equity release plans come with a no negative equity guarantee, which means that you can never pass on the debt to your estate, providing the property is sold for a reasonable amount. There are also plans that allow you to safeguard a percentage of your property value so that you can still pass on an inheritance to your loved ones.

GET ADVICE

We're pleased to be working with Age Partnership+, who are part of the UK's number one equity release adviser*, to offer an equity release service. Through our service, your dedicated adviser can provide you with a personalised illustration so you can understand the features and risks and find out how much you could release. They will help you understand if equity release could be right for you and they will tell you everything you need to know, including the effect on the amount of inheritance you can leave and if your entitlement to means-tested benefits could be affected now or in the future.

Your adviser will review a wide range of plans from the whole of the market to find the most suitable solution for your individual circumstances. It's important to know that equity release may involve a home reversion plan or a lifetime mortgage, which is secured against your property. Your quotation is free and you are under no obligation to proceed. Only if you choose to proceed and your case completes would a fee of £1,995 be payable.

CHAMPIONS CUP FINAL

ALL THE FUN OF THE FLAIR

Will rugby union survive?
Only if it's played like this,
says Simon Barnes

ONE DAY I'LL write a history of British sport and I'll call it The War on Talent. So much of British sport, especially when it's played by a team representing England, has been marked by a profound suspicion of individual ability and flair, allied to an exaggerated respect for self-effacing competence. The book will showcase talents who have suffered this way, such as David Gower, Glenn Hoddle and Stuart Barnes, among others.

It's only thanks to the many talented foreigners we've imported into Premier League football and the stars of Indian Premier League cricket that real skills on display no longer shock us. This Saturday's showcase rugby union Champions Cup final between the Irish side Leinster and French cup-holders La Rochelle turns another spotlight on flair in sport that's not only recognised, but celebrated.

'Union's existential crisis as a professional sport continues'

It gives us a great opportunity to see rugby union played in a less costive fashion than England teams often manage. This will be the second great Irish/French meeting of the year, after February's brilliant Six Nations finale that the Irish won on their way to a grand slam.

The Champions Cup final will be played in Dublin between the same teams who contested last year's showpiece in Bordeaux, where La Rochelle were the victors. In fact, this will be the French side's third successive final (they were beaten by Toulouse in 2021), but home turf changes things and Leinster are an improving team. This year's final has every promise of being a cracker – and, best of all, it's live on ITV1.

For once, club rugby is going mainstream, and that gives rugby union a chance to claim that it really is a major sport after all. (Average attendances in the Champions Cup are not quite as good as those in football's third tier.)

FLYING HIGH
La Rochelle's Matthias Haddad claims the ball under pressure from Jimmy O'Brien of Leinster in last year's final

The final, however, will certainly bring in a serious crowd and will be played not only with all the passion you would expect, but also with generous quantities of individual ability. The French, in particular, believe that rugby is about an equal balance between power and skill, and at fly half La Rochelle's Grégory Alldritt is a tactical kicker of daring and imagination.

I don't mean tactical kicker in the English – or rather England – sense of hoofing the ball to the opposition every time things look interesting. I mean kicking as an exploration of different lines of attack, a shift of emphasis that opens the whole field to a different pattern of running.

La Rochelle's head coach is the former Ireland fly half Ronan O'Gara, while another former Irish player, Donnacha Ryan, coaches the forwards. O'Gara has proved a good fit as both tactician and motivator. According to prop Uini Atonio, he is "the key piece we needed". I wonder if a top French team will ever employ an English coach to lead them to glory?

Leinster won the semi-final against Toulouse 41-22 and, since four of their five tries were scored while the French side were down to 14 men,

La Rochelle will know that any indiscipline will be punished.

But the bad news for Leinster is that their key player, fly half Johnny Sexton, is still injured. Hooker Dan Sheehan was quick to point out that Leinster have the strength in depth to cope with such a loss. And Ross Byrne, who must now run the game from fly half in Sexton's absence, claims (as they all do) to be completely unfazed. "The only thing I can control is my performance and doing what's best for the team," he says. We'll see how unfazed he is when the La Rochelle pack is bearing down on him and his next decision could win or lose the game...

Rugby union's existential crisis as a professional sport continues in this World Cup year, with clubs going into administration, audiences failing to match ambitions, the difficulty of escaping niche TV coverage and the terrifying problem of head injuries. However, this match has the potential to show us the best the sport can offer: a thrilling mixture of power and individual skill.

I, SPY
CIA agent
Luke (Arnold Schwarzenegger) has one last mission to complete

COMEDY FUBAR

All 8 episodes available from Thursday

A silly comedy spy thriller, utilising the unique acting talents of Arnold Schwarzenegger. He's Luke, a 65-year-old CIA veteran who is still pulling off outrageously dangerous overseas operations right up to his retirement – a dedication to the cause that has compromised his family life. He has an almighty shock in store when he accepts one last mission to South America to rescue an asset in peril. The show doesn't take itself seriously in the slightest: any false notes in the performances, plotting or dialogue can be taken as part of the whole jovial cacophony. JACK SEALE

PROPERTY

The Parisian Agency: Exclusive Properties

Series 3 available Wednesday

This reality doc has always been a cut above similar shows following elite estate agents on the west coast of America: the super-expensive Parisian flats and houses marketed by the Kretz family are simply far classier, and the agents themselves have much smoother swaggering charm. Season three sees the agency expand to other countries including Britain, but the goal of achieving the right price – normally in the several million euros bracket – remains the same. Ageing dad and boss Olivier, meanwhile, has a succession problem to solve. JS

DOCUMENTARY

Anna Nicole Smith: You Don't Know Me

Available now

A celebrity who was famous for being herself long before such things became the norm, Anna Nicole Smith had 15 years in the limelight before her early death in 2007. The model, actor and TV presenter was much talked about, chiefly for her marriage to octogenarian oil tycoon J Howard Marshall, but was never someone the public could say they knew well. This feature documentary aims to correct that, looking behind the blonde-bombshell exterior and talking to those who actually knew Smith first-hand. It paints a picture of a lonely life. JS

COMEDY DRAMA

Platonic

Episodes 1–3 available Wednesday

Reuniting the stars and director of the 2014 movie Bad Neighbours, this new romantic-ish comedy plays like a romcom across a series. Rose Byrne is Sylvia, a bored California mother who reconnects with her old friend Will – played by Seth Rogen, which indicates he could be a slobby wildcard. However, it soon becomes clear that Sylvia is as irresponsible and unpredictable as her old buddy, and their new adventures are going to disrupt her family life. Do Will and Sylvia love each other? There are a lot of cheeky, semi-improvised laughs before you need to worry about that. JS

NATURAL HISTORY

Prehistoric Planet

Series 2 episodes releasing daily from Monday to Friday

A second season of a natural history programme that has a very simple unique selling point: it's introduced and narrated by David Attenborough and it looks and sounds just like any other wildlife programme, but it's about dinosaurs. Stunning CGI footage combines with the latest palaeontological research to hazard an educated guess at how various species would have lived, before rendering it in images that are virtually indistinguishable from film of real animals. First, we visit the lush islands of what is now southern Europe, 66 million years ago. JS

DRAMA

High Desert

Episode 4 available Wednesday

As we rewind to 1986 and see an altercation involving wannabe PI Peggy (Patricia Arquette, above with Rupert Friend) and her parents, it offers a window into their relationship. As a teenager, Peggy was just as volatile, impulsive and reactionary as she is now... with similarly wayward results. With her marriage in a similar state to her wrecked car and Bruce (Brad Garrett) yet to be impressed, her spirit remains undimmed. The humour is unashamedly weird, its plot meanders and yet it remains endearing.

WARTIME DRAMA

A Small Light

Episodes 7 and 8 available Tuesday

FINAL EPISODE The final two episodes of a perfectly judged drama about Anne Frank, her family, and the efforts of Dutch activists Miep (Bel Powley, above) and Jan Gies to keep them safe in Amsterdam. As the dreaded day comes and the Franks are taken away, Miep desperately tries to bargain for their freedom but is soon left facing a bleak wait for the end of the war. The story's coda, with the residents of the city enjoying the odd miraculous reunion but an awful lot more bad news, is like the series as a whole: delicate, mournful, but laced with hope. JACK SEALE

REALITY

The Kardashians

Series 3 episode 1 available Thursday

They're back! Thank goodness. The third season of Disney's version of the reality juggernaut following America's favourite celebrity clan starts, however, under a cloud: Kim has split up with comedian Pete Davidson, her boyfriend, AND divorced music megastar Kanye West, her estranged husband. Into this already highly emotional situation come health scares, arguments about a wedding and a general air of tension between Kris, Kourtney, Kim, Khloé, Kendall and Kylie, as they question their whole set-up. Are they really a family, or just co-stars? JS

The Full Monty ★★★★★ 15

Available now

A sequel series that reunites the original cast arrives on Disney+ next month, so why not revisit director Peter Cattaneo's full-frontal smash-hit 1997 comedy drama? Robert Carlyle (above) plays a divorced dad who forms a strip act with his fellow unemployed Sheffield steelworkers while trying to maintain joint custody of his son. Perfectly performed by the ensemble cast, this poignant tale is jam-packed with wonderful moments – the would-be Chippendales of the North absent-mindedly gyrating to Hot Stuff in a dole queue is simply inspired. ALAN JONES

PSYCHOLOGICAL THRILLER

The Clearing

Episode 1 available Wednesday

From Australia, a highly atmospheric psychological thriller inspired by the real New Age group the Family. Teresa Palmer (above, who starred in A Discovery of Witches) plays a woman whose youth was spent as a member of a cult with a mysterious female leader (Miranda Otto, who you may recognise from Peter Jackson's The Lord of the Rings film series) and an army of spookily blond children – an organisation which may now be linked to the disappearance of a schoolgirl. Guy Pearce co-stars in a drama that scores strongly on creepy, crepuscular visuals. JS

INSECTOPIA
Ant-Man (Paul Rudd) and the Wasp (Evangeline Lilly) really push the boundaries

SUPERHERO ADVENTURE

Ant-Man and the Wasp: Quantumania ★★★★★ 12

Available from 17 May on Disney+, from Monday on DVD/Blu-ray

Paul Rudd returns as the Avengers' insect-sized superhero in his third – and best – solo outing. Rudd's Scott Lang is pinged into the subatomic "Quantum Realm" along with his techie daughter (Kathryn Newton), his crime-fighting partner the Wasp (Evangeline Lilly) and her scientist parents (Michael Douglas and Michelle Pfeiffer). What follows is a rollicking, Star Wars-inspired adventure with all manner of freaky aliens and psychedelic visuals. This is tremendous fun, and a great way to kick off the next phase of Marvel's ever-more-epic cinematic saga. JAMES MOTTRAM

FOOD

James May: Oh Cook!

Series 2 episode 1 available Wednesday

The Grand Tour presenter's first food show was a hoot when it debuted in 2020: May can't cook, and doesn't appear to enjoy cookery shows very much. What he does like, apart from eating good food, is cheekily dismantling the clichés of the genre, cheerfully telling us every time something is faked or finessed for the cameras. But the host's intelligence and curiosity mean we get a lot of solid tips on cooking that other shows might skate over. Season two tackles French, German, Mexican and Japanese cuisine, as well as picnics and vegan food. JS

THRILLER

Europa ★★★ 12

Available now

This nightmarish drama follows an Iraqi man, Kamal (Adam Ali, above), who attempts to cross the border from Turkey to Bulgaria, only to be intercepted by armed men. Kamal escapes into the forest, and what follows is a near-wordless chase, as he tries to evade being caught and killed, while witnessing what happens to his less fortunate compatriots. The action is brilliantly conveyed, although the lack of analysis or insight means that too often the viewer is left feeling like a helpless spectator to the unfolding horrors.

SCI-FI

Reminiscence ★★★ 12

Available now

Hugh Jackman heads up this sci-fi thriller as an ex-soldier in the not-too-distant future who has developed a machine that enables his clients to access reruns of their memories. When a nightclub singer (Rebecca Ferguson) calls upon his services, she opens a can of worms involving crooked industrialists and violent drugs kingpins. Writer/director Lisa Joy combines hard-boiled detective fiction with occasionally syrupy melodrama, and while the film owes a debt to Christopher Nolan's Inception, it is a much more accessible movie. FINAL EPISODE

The fifth and final season has played fast and loose with its timeline: as well as following the later career of Midge (Rachel Brosnahan), the Jewish housewife who has left uptown Manhattan behind to become a stand-up comic, flashforwards and occasionally whole episodes have catapulted us from the 1960s to the 90s. Brosnahan (below) and her co-star Alex Borstein have helped make the show a fast, funny delight. JS

Series 1 and 2 available now

Chalk-and-cheese detective dramas are nothing new, but this French one, featuring autistic criminal records clerk Astrid Nielsen and DI Raphaëlle Coste (Sara Mortensen and Lola Dewaere, above centre), is special. The second series starts with a proper locked-room mystery, but it's Mortensen's incredible performance and on-screen relationship with Dewaere that makes it so watchable. It also subtly explains what it's like to be neuro-atypical better than a documentary. JANE RACKHAM

A NEW BEAT
DI Annika
Strandhed
(Nicola Walker) is like a fish out of water

DRAMA

Annika 9.15pm BBC1 Full series available on iPlayer

NEW SERIES

Haunting music plays as the gruesome remains of a corpse are pulled from the swirling dark water at night: it could be the start of an episode from The Killing or The Bridge. It's not, but Nick Walker's crime series based on his Radio 4 drama is every bit as good. First shown on Alibi, it stars the wonderful Nicola Walker (no relation) as DI Annika Strandhed, a slightly unconventional single parent who's come over from Norway to head up the Scotland Marine Homicide Unit, although none of her colleagues seems happy with her appointment.

She's sharp, has a very dry sense of humour that others don't seem to find funny and uses literary and historical references to help her solve crimes (there's a lot about Moby-Dick in this episode). But what makes this series so unusual is that throughout, Annika breaks the fourth wall, sharing her observations on the case and her messy life.

Although Annika isn't your typical brusque-but-brilliant Scandi-noir detective, she's a character with whom you'll want to spend some time.

HISTORY

The Lancaster Bomber at 80 with David Jason

6.30pm C4 Catch up via C4 streaming

In the second half of the Second World War, the huge payloads dropped by the hulking Lancaster bomber became a deadly weapon in the fight against Nazi Germany. Eighty years since one of the most famous aircraft in military history first left the ground, David Jason narrates the story of how the Lancaster was created and built, and how it helped to decide the war – controversially so, since the strategy of bombing cities such as Dresden caused colossal loss of life.

Historians and writers including Alexandra Churchill and Leo McKinty offer their insights in this documentary, first shown in 2021, along with those of the veterans who flew Lancasters on their far-flung, dangerous missions. JACK SEALE

Pointless Celebrities

7.35pm BBC1 Catch up via iPlayer

You've never heard so many groans as when Alexander Armstrong announces a UK geography round. Phil Tufnell, who's a jackpot winner, can't even concentrate on his chat with Xander he's so flummoxed by the prospect. None of the celebs – an odd mix, some of whom you may not recognise – need worry, though, as most get impressively low scores.

There are more groans about the round that requires the contestants to delve into their English literature O-level/GCSE memories. However, you do wonder how Armstrong and Richard Osman keep straight faces when someone announces they're gambling with a risky guess... and give – maybe this is just me? – an answer that surely everyone knows? JR

Casualty

8.25pm BBC1

Catch up via iPlayer

When it comes to the new arrivals, it's staff nurse Jodie Whyte who's enduring the most amount of trauma in the shortest period of time. In the previous episode, she was left holding an explosive device that was about to detonate. And now, while on a night out, she gets her drink spiked by a sexual predator.

It's a plotline that's played out before on Casualty – relatively recently, in fact, when one of Jodie's predecessors in the ED, Jade Lovall, was seen being targeted back in 2021. But with recent real-life reports having revealed that there were 5,000 reports of spiking made between September 2021 and August 2022, it's obviously an issue that still needs addressing. DAVID BROWN

NEW SERIES

Nurse Ester (Nina Ellen Odegaard) is bubbly, caring, demanding and about to turn 40. She has a fancy-dress party planned where the only rule is that everyone has to dance. She's also about to receive a cancer diagnosis that shakes her optimistic worldview to its foundations.

Starting with a double bill, this seven-part Norwegian drama might carry echoes of the beloved US show The Big C but isn't afraid to chart its own idiosyncratic path. Yes, it deals with a potentially bleak subject, but does so in a vibrant, frequently silly, often defiantly rude way, balancing bittersweet moments of pain for Ester and her oddball friends and family with scenes of spectacular joyfulness. CERI THOMAS

History's Greatest Myths 9.00pm Sky History

Catch up via Sky Go/Now

Popular culture has a canny knack of triggering bizarre conspiracy theories. The most notorious of all is that the Moon landing was faked. Film director Stanley Kubrick must have been amused by claims that he shot the famous footage on a soundstage.

This programme also explores whether Orson Welles's pseudo-documentary radio adaptation of The War of the Worlds really caused mass panic, and reflects upon the need of some people to believe that celebrities such as Elvis faked their untimely deaths to escape from the pressures of fame. Does The King still walk among us? Of course not, but the cause and effect of fringe delusion is a fascinating subject. PAUL WHITELAW

The 1% Club

9.20pm ITV1 Catch up via ITVX

"How many bricks are missing from this wall? Where are Pink Floyd when you need them?" The high-concept quiz is proving an addictive Saturday-night treat – not to mention a talking point, as its logical brainteasers get viewers competing at home.

Lee Mack makes the perfect host, with 100 contestants effectively forming a stand-up audience for him to bounce off. Which is bad news for the poor punter who happens to be named Matt Hancock.

As the stakes rise, Mack's quick wit punctures the tension. See if you can beat the winners – and just as importantly, your sofa companions. If you can crack tonight's fiendish final question, you're smarter than 99% of the population... MICHAEL HOGAN

MUSIC

Later... with Jools Holland

9.50pm BBC2 Catch up via iPlayer

It feels like there are a lot more solo artists in post-pandemic times. Where have all the bands gone? Two of tonight's singer/songwriters hail from Ireland, although there's a contrast between the multi-platinum-selling Hozier and the haunting, timeless voice of Lisa O'Neill. One sounds like a sold-out Croke Park stadium, while the other is an intimate PA set up in the corner of a pub. Both have their place, but I know where I'd rather be.

It's nice to see music photographer Jill Furmanovsky featured, while tonight's only group are Thee Sacred Souls, a collective of musical mediums who do a sound job of channelling the spirits of Marvin Gaye and Curtis Mayfield. GARY ROSE Books: p132

Pet Shop Boys: Reel Stories 9.05pm BBC2 Catch up via iPlayer

This fabulous gallop through the career of electro duo Pet Shop Boys follows their usual pattern in interviews: frontman Neil Tennant more vocal – with a delivery that's more arch than Marple – and keyboardist Chris Lowe chipping in with occasional mickey-takes. Stories include meeting in a hi-fi shop, being inspired by and later working with David Bowie, and appearing in Moscow and on Neighbours.

There are two natural climaxes to the programme. The actual end, where the group enjoy new audiences thanks to both Glastonbury and the adoption of their 1987 hit for Channel 4's devastating drama It's a Sin. And, earlier, their glorious collaboration with Dusty Springfield after her 18 years in the wilderness: What Have I Done to Deserve This? was an 80s pop apogee.

Neil's face lights up on seeing Dusty on the screen again, and at the memory of when "someone takes your song and makes it ten times better". A new compilation is at 7.35pm; their 2019 Hyde Park gig is at 10.35pm. MARK BRAXTON See feature: page 16

FILM REVIEWS

FILM OF THE DAY

Bad Boys for Life ★★★

9.00-11.25pm C4

15

COMEDY THRILLER This third instalment in the action franchise finds detectives Lowrey (Will Smith) and Burnett (Martin Lawrence) older but still on the case, as they hunt down a deadly Miami drug baron. Despite the long break since 2003's Bad Boys II, the film manages to capture the old magic thanks to the bond between the stars. The plot is nothing exceptional, but there's a slightly more reflective tone this time around. Overall, Bad Boys for Life is both a victory lap and a suggestion that there may be more cases left for this partnership. VICTORIA LUXFORD (US 2020, violence, swearing, HD)

Newsies: the Broadway Musical ★★★★★ 9.55am-12 noon BBC2 (not in N Ireland) PG

MUSICAL Stage and screen team up in this gorgeously mounted production of the hit musical about a group of newspaper boys who form a union. There's all the gloss you'd expect from a Disney production, but the script doesn't avoid harsh realities, either. Jeremy Jordan is terrific as lead "newsie" Jack Kelly, as is Kara Lindsay as the reporter covering the story. VL (US 2017, some violence, HD)

The Spiderwick Chronicles ★★★★★ 12.40-2.25pm C4 PG

ADVENTURE Goblins, trolls and griffins populate this refreshingly cute-free fantasy. Freddie Highmore has a dual role as twins who move into a creepy mansion with their sister (Sarah Bolger) and mum (Mary-Louise Parker), where they discover a hidden world. Children who enjoy being scared will find it gripping. JAMIE RUSSELL (US 2008, some violence, HD)

Great Expectations

1.00-2.55pm BBC2 PG

DRAMA David Lean's adaptation of the Charles Dickens novel is one of his masterpieces. It's a carefully pruned version of the book that excises entire characters but retains Dickens's magical spirit in the tale of orphaned Pip (played as an adult by John Mills) who comes into an unexpected fortune. Followed by another classic period tale, The Remains of the Day. ANDREW COLLINS (UK 1946, BW)

The 'Burbs

2.10-4.15pm C5 12

COMEDY When the Klopeks move into a run-down house in his spick-and-span suburb, one-man neighbourhood watch Tom Hanks starts to fret. This light-hearted movie is an askew parable about small-town America, with Hanks as the ultimate conformist surrounded by weirdos. First in a Hanks double bill, followed by The Terminal. ADRIAN TURNER (US 1989, edited for language, violence)

Journey 2: the Mysterious Island ★★★★★ 7.05-9.00pm 5 Star PG

ADVENTURE In this slice of family fun, Josh Hutcherson and Dwayne Johnson crash-land (with Luiz Guzmán and Vanessa Hudgens) on author Jules Verne's mythical island. There they discover huge lizards and hidden treasure – and Hutcherson's grandfather (Michael Caine).

The plotting is perfunctory, but the scenery is stunning. ALAN JONES (US 2011, HD)

Bad Neighbours

9.00-10.55pm ITV2 15

COMEDY Zac Efron plays a neighbour from hell in this outrageous romp. His adversary is new dad Seth Rogen, who, along with his missus (Rose Byrne), begins a campaign of dirty tricks to shut down Efron and his frat parties. The big laughs come when director Nicholas Stoller just lets the actors bounce off each other. STELLA PAPAMICHAEL (US 2014, swearing, sex scenes, nudity, drug abuse, HD)

Fast & Furious

10.30pm-12.35am ITV1 12

ACTION The fourth film in the fast-car franchise sees a tragic death bring Vin Diesel out of exile and back to LA, where he is forced to join up with his former enemy, FBI agent Paul Walker, to nail the killer. The movie ropes in all the old hot-rod movie clichés in a tired turbo-drive through the action motions. Fast Five is showing on Tuesday, see review p77. AJ (US 2009, violence, swearing, sex scenes, HD)

The Mercy

12.20-1.55am BBC1 (starts 1.05am in Scotland) 12

DRAMA In 1969, sailor Donald Crowhurst vanished at sea after mentally unravelling during the first nonstop race around the world. As Crowhurst, Colin Firth tries to rehabilitate the reputation of a man history hasn't treated kindly, pitching from affable optimist to desperately unstable. It's a compelling story, told with compassion. TERRY PAYNE (UK 2017, swearing, HD)

GARDENING Countdown to RHS Chelsea Flower Show

6.00pm BBC1 Catch up via iPlayer

Even if you already have a ticket for the world's most prestigious garden show, it's still wonderful to get a proper look at the displays in SW3 without having to jostle with the crowds on Main Avenue. Chelsea is always a massively popular event with gardens designed by horticulture's biggest stars and up-and-coming talent.

This year's theme is how gardens and gardening contribute in a positive way to our health with show gardens that aim to be mentally rejuvenating or calming. There's something for everyone with a secluded garden designed to celebrate and contemplate the recent coronation as well as smaller spaces with suggestions for balcony planting and even one inspired by London's disused train platforms. Sophie Raworth and Joe Swift give us a guided tour tonight, but coverage continues all week.

TRAVEL

Stanley Tucci: Searching for Italy

6.15pm BBC2 Catch up via iPlayer

The insouciant style and charisma of Stanley Tucci; the occasional lapse into Italian; glorious locations; a little history; and a lot of mouth-watering, glorious food. It's no wonder that this gem of a series was devoured by so many when it was first shown on BBC2 in 2022. If you didn't see it then, you're in for a treat.

The American actor's culinary journey starts in Naples where his love of food is evident in every scene. He enthusiastically tastes pizza (of course), Amalfi lemon dessert, a rabbit stew and zucchini pasta. But he also discovers a wonderful charitable tradition called caffè sospeso, where locals buy an extra coffee to be given to someone less fortunate. JR

Chateau DIY: Living the Dream

8.00pm More4
Catch up via C4 streaming

This Château DIY retrospective reminds us of the British families who renovated beautiful properties in France. Since 2005, the 16th-century Château de Lalande in the Loire has been home to former opera singer Stephanie Jarvis. She's lovingly restored its crumbling interiors and tattered turrets to their former glory, taking inspiration from her late father's artwork.

Her biggest challenges included converting a derelict barn into a gorgeous apartment for her mother Isabelle, revamping the entrance hall on a tropical theme and hosting Isabelle's wedding in her very own chapel. The results might well have you vert de jalousie. MICHAEL HOGAN

The Man Who Played with Fire

8.00pm Sky Documentaries

Full series available on Sky Go/Now

Jan Stocklassa continues to "pull at the threads that [author] Stieg Larsson left behind" about the February 1986 assassination of Swedish prime minister Olof Palme.

Interviews with a mercenary and intelligence agents from Sweden, America and Russia paint a picture of a liberal politician that senior figures in the US feared was trying to align Sweden with the USSR. Everyone has a different opinion about the murder, so conspiracy theories (including one claiming the Swedish police were responsible for Palme's death) and contradictory statements muddy the waters, making this tale as complex and fascinating as any of Larsson's crime novels. JR

DRAMA

Ten Pound Poms

9.00pm BBC1

Full series available on iPlayer

The cost of relocation to Australia may have been a mere £10, but the emotional price for the Brits abroad is already much higher than they anticipated. An hour in and there are more secrets swirling around here than in a week's worth of Home and Away, with Terry (Warren Brown) seen agonising over his part in last week's car accident in the bush, and Kate (Michelle Keegan) deciding to confide her reasons for emigrating from the UK.

But writer Danny Brocklehurst is not just concerned with melodrama. He also has plenty to say about the way that white Aussies such as the blunt and bestial Dean (David Field) treated Indigenous Australians like sub-human outcasts. DAVID BROWN

Malpractice

9.00pm ITV1
Full series available on ITVX

SERIES FINALE In TV dramas, there's a shorthand way of showing how far a professional person has fallen: stick them in a hoodie with the sleeves pulled down over their knuckles. And at the start of this episode, that's just where we find a rheumy-eyed Lucinda (Niamh Algar). It's a sure sign she's on the edge.

To hammer home the point, we then get a senior colleague branding her a liability, the grey at his temples pulsing with disgust. Hopes will of course be high that Malpractice is grinding down Lucinda to build her back up. No spoilers, but the final scenes are effective. Happy, though? Well, there's no jogging-wear... DB

Depp v Heard

9.00pm C4 Catch up via C4 streaming

NEW SERIES It was a six-week trial that had more twists than a Hollywood film. Last year, Johnny Depp went to court, suing ex-wife Amber Heard for defamation; she filed counterclaims for damages. The confluence of A-list stars and advances in technology meant every gory detail of their testimony was livestreamed online.

This series doesn't offer new insight but, instead, splices the pair's courtroom evidence with clips and commentary from those who were dissecting the case online at the time. This was a trial that played out as much on the internet as it did in court. Continues tomorrow at 10pm.

DRAMA

Mobile 101

10.55pm C4 Full series available on C4 streaming from Friday 19 May

NEW SERIES Not your usual Scandi-noir offering, this Finnish tech thriller set in the late 1980s chronicles the rise of Nokia to become a global titan in the mobile phone industry.

The story is told through the eyes of several company staff members: idealistic lawyers Katarina and Aki are fighting a patent infringement case; engineer Risto is secretly designing a smaller handset; and the company's financial officer Jorma is battling a shareholder coup. Viewers who find multiple characters and unfamiliar Scandinavian names a struggle will be relieved to hear that each character is clearly introduced with an on-screen graphic. JR

THE FIGHT GOES ON
John Shipton (far right) is determined to support his son Julian Assange

DOCUMENTARY

Ithaka: the Fight to Free Assange

10.20pm ITV1 Catch up via ITVX
"I'm attempting in my own modest way to get Julian out of the s**t," sighs the WikiLeaks founder's father John Shipton in this heartfelt, partisan yet still affecting doc. The retired builder has moved from Australia to fight against his son's extradition from the UK to the US.

The film follows Shipton and Assange's wife Stella as they travel across Europe to harness support, asserting that Assange (who is in Belmarsh prison) is the victim of concerted efforts to discredit him.

While it neatly retells the facts of Assange's life, this is clearly not the place to look for an unbiased account. Shipton, however, emerges as a fascinating figure in his own right: spiky, passionate and committed but also struggling with his demons. As he talks about his background, it's easy to see why he refuses to abandon his son now. CERI THOMAS

Legend

7.00am Special Unit 2.8.00 Meteorites! ★★ Disaster thriller. Tom Wopat, Roxanne Hart (1998, PG) 10.00 Star Trek: the Next Generation: five episodes 3.00pm Shark Season ★★ Cheap and cheesy thriller. Michael Madsen (2020, 15) 4.45 Megalodon ★★ Low-budget take on shark flick The Meg. Michael Madsen, Dominic Pace (2018, 15) 6.30pm Five Golden Dragons ★★ Hokey crime thriller about a secret sect in Hong Kong. Robert Cummings, Rupert Davies, Margaret Lee (1967, PG) 8.30 The Twilight Zone TV sci-fi. 9.00 The Devil Rides Out ★★★★★ Christopher Lee comes to the rescue (for a change) in this trashily enjoyable horror (1968, 15) 10.55 Dr Jekyll & Sister Hyde ★★ Bizarre bisexual take on the split personality classic with Ralph Bates and Martine Beswick. (1971, 15) 12.50am Habit ★★ Slow-burning, sexually explicit horror that's gory and visually striking, if a bit underwritten. Elliot James Langridge, Jessica Barden (2017, 18) 2.45-4.30am Fright Fest ★★ Generic, self-referential slasher movie. Dylan Walsh (2018, 15) Legend F'view 41 F'sat 137 Sky 148 Virgin 149

Supernova ★★★★★
10.00-11.30pm BBC2 (not in N Ireland)

DRAMA This story of later-life love between a middle-aged couple follows laconic English pianist Sam (Colin Firth) and his partner Tusker (Stanley Tucci), a more gregarious expat-American. As they drive through stunning Lake District scenery on their way to stay with old friends, the couple's warm bickering gradually makes clear that one of them is terminally ill, and this get-together is to be their last. While the story lacks an element of surprise, Firth and Tucci are on top form, making this journey from director Harry Macqueen one well worth taking. ANDREW COLLINS (UK 2020, swearing)

and the Secret of King Midas

11.00am-12.40pm Film4

ADVENTURE This animated Indiana Jones-style riff on the Midas legend is rattling good fun, with amateur archaeologist Tad and various sidekicks battling baddies to find a collar with magical properties. The film is fast-paced enough to amuse (and occasionally slightly scare) even the most easily distracted youngster. DAVE ALDRIDGE (Sp 2017, HD)

The Railway Children

2.50-4.35pm BBC1

DRAMA Told with quiet intelligence and wry humour, this is one of the finest children's films ever made in the UK. The story follows three Edwardian siblings as they relocate to Yorkshire with their mother (Dinah Sheridan) in the wake of their father's wrongful arrest for treason. Jenny Agutter is simply magnificent as Bobbie. DAVID PARKINSON (UK 1970, HD)

The School of Rock

2.50-5.00pm C4

COMEDY This wonderful musical stars an outstanding Jack Black as an unemployed rocker who poses as a supply teacher and enlightens the pupils of a posh school to the joys of rock 'n' roll. Joan Cusack is excellent as a prim headmistress, while director Richard Linklater avoids the schmaltz that can ruin these kind of films. ADAM SMITH (US/Ger 2003, some swearing, HD)

Thunderball

4.00-6.30pm ITV1

SPY The James Bond series went truly comic strip with this gadget-filled romp. Playing 007 for the fourth time, Sean Connery is still getting a kick out of the part, with a worthy foe in Adolfo Celi's nuke-stealing Spectre agent. Director Terence Young has pacing problems posed by filming underwater, but the visual effects won John Stears an Oscar. DP (UK 1965, edited for violence, HD)

Daddy's Home Two

6.55-9.00pm Film4

COMEDY Will Ferrell and Mark Wahlberg return as rival "co-dads", but this time it's a four-way father face-off, as the duo are joined by their own dads (touchy-feely John Lithgow and tough guy Mel Gibson) for Christmas. Some of the language and themes don't suit the festive frolics, but there are plenty of laughs along the way. DAVE ALDRIDGE (US 2017, edited for content, HD)

Pitch Perfect 2

8.00-10.15pm ITV2

COMEDY Three years after Pitch Perfect came this sassy sequel, sending the Barden Bellas a cappella troupe off to an international contest. Anna Kendrick returns as Beca, along with Rebel Wilson, who was a standout in the first movie. Elizabeth Banks directs as well as reprising her fun role as a commentator. The film starts strongly, then waffles badly before regaining its mojo in an invigorating competition climax. DA (US 2015, some swearing, HD)

Hancock

9.00-10.50pm E4

COMEDY Relishing a chance to play against type, Will Smith stars as Hancock, an alcoholic, clumsy superhero, who costs the city millions every time he goes into action. Jason Bateman plays Ray, a PR expert who offers to help the hero smarten up his act. The movie shows a lot of invention and wit before it takes a turn for the melodramatic. STELLA PAPAMICHAEL (US 2008, violence, swearing, sexual references, HD)

Second Act

12.05-1.50am C4

COMEDY Overlooked for promotion, assistant store manager Jennifer Lopez uses street smarts and a fake CV to nab a consultancy job with Treat Williams's top cosmetics company. The film is slickly produced, with some gigglesome lines, but various ludicrous twists make it increasingly difficult for Lopez to live her lie convincingly, and her star power can't paper over all of the cracks. DA (US 2018, swearing, sexual references, HD)

NEW SERIES

Sisters Becca (Suranne Jones) and Rosaline (Eve Best) don't exactly live in each other's pockets.

One's in Manchester and the other in London, and the emotional gulf is wide, too, something we glean when they reunite and Becca comments on her sibling's new hairdo. "It's been like this an age," comes the reply.

But the pair are now back in each other's orbit after their mother dies unexpectedly on the Isle of Man. And when I say unexpectedly, I'm talking about the location of her demise. This, you see, is the big mystery, as Becca and Rosaline have no idea why their mum was there and living what appeared to be a second life.

This understated study of strained family relations (airing nightly until Wednesday) obviously has secrets to divulge, some of which are likely to be up the sleeve of Stockard Channing. The Grease star is playing island neighbour Cathy – and because she gets the prestigious "and Stockard Channing" spot at the end of the opening credits, we can presume her presence will be pivotal.

Succession

2.00am (early Monday), 9.00pm
Sky Atlantic Catch up Sky Go/Now

Last week's US presidential election episode showed the weaknesses, the sheer ineptitude of the Roys in the raw, but also their staggering, world-shaping influence through pernicious news network ATN. It was a multiple car crash that flung several parties onto rough terrain, especially Shiv, whose deceit has been rumbled.

Where does it leave everyone? Well, in this penultimate episode, heading to Logan's funeral. The dreaded event has at last arrived in a final series that's elapsed in all but a few days. The theme of parenthood is still heavy in the air, with Tom not crediting Shiv's revelation that she's pregnant, and Ken doubting his own worth as a father: "Maybe the poison drips through." PATRICK MULKERN

RHS Chelsea Flower Show

3.45pm BBC1, 7.30pm BBC2
Catch up via iPlayer

We're guaranteed a bumper crop of celebrities on the opening day: last year, Dames Judi Dench and Joanna Lumley, Ainsley Harriott and drag queen Daisy Desire were there. But the rest of us can still get twice-daily BBC coverage.

All week horticultural royalty including Monty Don, Joe Swift, Carol Klein, Adam Frost and Rachel de Thame will be pointing out inspiring ideas, clever planting and beautiful blooms, and there'll be features on garlands, barbecues, and container plants. Tomorrow the medals are revealed, while on Friday the People's Choice award winner will be announced. JANE RACKHAM

Great Coastal Railway Journeys

6.30pm BBC2 Catch up via iPlayer
Michael Portillo isn't a man troubled by train strikes. While the rest of the country wrestles with cancellations, he's back for a fresh series of sedate seaside sojourns. He begins on the Isle of Man, taking the Manx electric railway to the capital, Douglas.

From there it's on to Tynwald – and the world's oldest continuous parliament, which unsurprisingly he takes a keen interest in. He fishes for queen scallops at Port St Mary and visits the island's former capital, Castletown, where he meets traditional dance group Perree Bane. "I'm no Bill Bailey," he proffers. And he's not wrong: his moves err more on the side of John Sergeant, but he certainly gives it a good go.

Steeltown Murders

9.00pm BBC1
Full series available on iPlayer

DNA testing has now concluded that Geraldine Hughes and Pauline Floyd were murdered by the same person who ended Sandra Newton's life. And when three deaths are linked in such a fashion, it's grimly apparent the person responsible is a serial killer.

It's a key moment in the case and leads to the early 2000s version of detective Paul Bethell (Philip Glenister) going with his gut when it comes to his prime suspect: taxi driver (and Sandra's stepfather) Dai Williams. It's an understandable reaction, as the older Dai is played by Keith Allen, an actor who always gives the impression that he's fast ticking down to total combustion. But, in this instance, will the science match Bethell's instincts? DB

Saving Venice

9.00pm BBC4 Catch up via iPlayer
Venice has, for obvious reasons, always been vulnerable to flooding. But that threat has worsened considerably in recent years due to rising sea levels. This programme follows various teams of scientists and restorers as they do everything within their power to save the beautiful city from ruin.

It's a painstaking process: every grain of sea salt has to be removed from the ancient monuments. There is, however, hope. Some scientists believe that revolutionary engineering methods should be able to work in tandem with a natural environment that's existed for 1,600 years. If properly protected, the lagoon's marshy islands can function as flood barriers. PAUL WHITE LAW

Police: Suspect No 1

9.00pm Channel 5 Catch up via My5
During a night shift in Norfolk, the police are called to investigate the violent assault and robbery of a man walking home after an evening out. The seriously injured victim has little recollection of what happened – and the secluded spot where he was attacked isn't covered by CCTV – so DC Weir and his team have to rely on DNA testing and scouring footage from nearby areas for clues.

All indications point to two local criminals, one of whom is known to regularly visit a local pharmacist. That's how they hope to catch him, but with the suspect well versed in the law, DC Weir knows that even if they do, he will face a frustrating interview full of "no comment".

My Name Is Reeve

11.05pm C4
Catch up via C4 streaming

Paralympic athlete Oscar Pistorius shot dead his girlfriend Reeve Steenkamp in 2013, firing through a bathroom door. He claimed he thought she was a burglar.

This powerful and frequently distressing three-part documentary rightly refuses to put the spotlight on Pistorius and instead switches the focus to Steenkamp and her family. This first episode intersperses gruelling reconstructions of the crime and trial with sweet accounts of her life, revealing her as a person rather than a victim. It also shows the appalling emotional damage that her death has inflicted on her parents, Barry and June. CERI THOMAS

DOCUMENTARY

Once upon a Time in Northern Ireland

9.00pm BBC2 Full series available on iPlayer
Just like the Bafta-winning Once upon a Time in Iraq, James Bluemel's latest series forgoes the politicians and generals to hear from citizens in a conflict zone: how life goes on and how it can be suddenly, violently, ended. He begins in 1968, a relatively stable period of Irish history about to be shattered when the brutal suppression of Catholic civil rights protests by British authorities opens the door for the revived IRA to recruit the young and disaffected.

Crucially, accounts are sought from both sides, including former Paras and "the best rioter in Derry". This first edition of five brings the story up to the aftermath of Bloody Sunday, when reconciliation became seemingly impossible. With the Good Friday Agreement once again a political football, this is another humane warning from recent history.

9.00 Steeltown Murders

2/4. In 2002, DCI Bethell continues to reassess the cases of three murdered teenagers 29 years before. With the swabbing operation set in motion, he's intent on cornering the now aged Dai Williams – Sandra Newton's stepfather – who didn't have an alibi. Meanwhile, in 1973, the young Paul Bethell is adamant that the force should be connecting Sandra's case to the other two recent murders of 16-year-old girls, but he and Phil are put on tapings instead. Bored by repetitive procedures, Paul's frustration seeps into his home life. A box set and a documentary about the case are on iPlayer. See page 60.

Do the Right Thing

15

DRAMA Spike Lee's fierce drama focuses on one sweltering day in Brooklyn where simmering racial tensions are about to explode. The focal point becomes a pizza parlour run by Danny Aiello, who refuses to replace his old Italian photographs with pictures of black heroes. The ensemble cast is exemplary and Lee effortlessly meshes his dozen-odd storylines together without losing sight of his central theme. This exhilarating, funny and still timely classic receives a rare Freewiew airing in the week of the third anniversary of George Floyd's murder. JOHN FERGUSON (US 1989, violence, swearing, nudity)

Hatari!

U

ADVENTURE This amiable safari romp from director Howard Hawks is long and plotless, but a wonderful ride nevertheless. The success of the picture speaks volumes of the camaraderie between Hawks, star John Wayne and writer Leigh Brackett, which only long-term collaboration can produce. Filmed fully on location in Tanzania, the real sense of fun is infectious. TONY SLOMAN (US 1962, HD)

Fanny

3.00-5.40pm

Talking Pictures TV
DRAMA Stripped of its songs, Joshua Logan's reworking of his own 1954 Broadway hit is largely underpowered. But this rare Freewiew showing is worth catching for the cast: Charles Boyer is slyly charming as the waterfront bar owner who competes with sailmaker Maurice Chevalier for the affections of waif Leslie Caron, after her lover leaves her pregnant. DAVID PARKINSON (US 1961)

Tora! Tora! Tora!

3.45-6.35pm Film4

U

WAR This is a meticulous account of the preparations for and execution of the Japanese attack on the US naval base at Pearl Harbor on 7 December 1941. The battle sequences are magnificent, but with three directors from both the US and Japan on board, the film's even-handedness makes it impossible to judge the true impact of the happenings on either nation. DP (US/Jpn 1970, HD)

Spider-Man 3

8.00-10.30pm Sky Showcase

12

FANTASY Peter Parker (Tobey Maguire) encounters an alien substance that brings out his dark side, in Sam Raimi's second sequel to his 2002 hit. Visually, this comic-book spectacle can't be faulted, although the cluttered plot and too many villains – including a truly impressive rendering of Sandman – leaves it feeling unfocused. SLOAN FREER (US 2007, violence, swearing, HD)

The Running Man

9.00-11.05pm 5 Action

SCI-FI This futuristic thriller centres on a TV game show that puts convicts on a lethal combat course. Arnold Schwarzenegger plays the former police helicopter pilot who is forced into the game of death when he rebels against his superiors. It's a long way from the original Stephen King novel, but the action sequences have plenty of panache. JF (US 1987, violence, swearing, HD)

Office Uprising

9.00-10.50pm

Horror Xtra (Freesat 138, Sky 317, Virgin 192)

15

COMEDY Office politics escalate into all-out zombie apocalypse in this raucous comic horror. Munitions firm Ammotech is locked down when its staff begins to turn into murderous maniacs. It's up to a slacker from accounts (Brenton Thwaites) to save the day. The corporate satire quickly descends into gonzo gore, but some lively action and fun performances keep things moving. DAVE GOLDER (US 2018, violence, swearing, drug abuse)

The Great Buster

12.30-2.35am Sky Arts

PG

DOCUMENTARY Former critic Peter Bogdanovich directs this personal reflection on the Great Stone Face, although he saves the best stuff until last. Buster Keaton's career suffered during the sound era, but the film's closing segment celebrates the silent masterpieces made between 1923-28, when the comic blended situations and stunts to thrillingly hilarious effect. DP (US 2018, BW/col, HD)

Book Club

1.55-4.00am Film4

COMEDY A sparkling cast leads this nimble bit of escapism about four ageing friends who still have plenty of fun. Jane Fonda, Diane Keaton, Candice Bergen and Mary Steenburgen meet up every week to discuss a novel. Their latest choice, Fifty Shades of Grey, soon makes an impact on each of their lives. Sequel Book Club: the Next Chapter is showing in cinemas now. KAREN KRIZANOVICH (US 2018, swearing, HD)

DOCUMENTARY

Inside Kabul: Storyville

10.00pm BBC4

Catch up via iPlayer

Storyville documentaries typically blossom via a combination of exclusive, intimate footage and, since their running time usually exceeds 90 minutes, the scope for in-depth exploration. Being wholly (if basically) animated, Inside Kabul is a departure. And since it lasts for just 30 minutes, it's a blink-and-you'll-miss-it one at that.

The film comprises only the voice-note testimonies of two young female friends in Kabul as the Taliban returned to power in 2021. They each make very different decisions. Carrying only a backpack ("I could only carry my body, without my soul"), Marwa immediately flees with her husband to a refugee camp in Abu Dhabi, where she awaits a move to Europe. Much more interestingly, the Taliban on their first night in power visit Raha's family, but they choose to stay in Kabul. From the moment the music is turned off at her cousin's wedding when the Taliban enter the reception, Raha faces increasing restrictions as the Taliban's "silly, stupid and frustrating rules" rapidly shrink her world, finances and spirit.

FATEFUL DAYS

Animation brings to life recorded voice accounts of two women whose lives were turned upside down by Taliban rule

DRAMA

Waterloo Road

8.00pm BBC1 All episodes on iPlayer, plus series 1–11

The actor Alicia Forde has just one TV credit to her name: her role here as Kelly Jo Rafferty. So it's worth noting that, among a large ensemble cast (many of whom are soap veterans), she's managed to become a series highlight. Tonight, the boisterous yet vulnerable Kelly Jo is well and truly in the spotlight as she attends the meeting that's set to reveal if she has ADHD. But might her mum Debs and auntie Nicky end up offering the opposite of support?

Elsewhere, there's a lot of soul-searching going on, with Kim fretting over her abilities as headteacher and Donte seen struggling with relationship issues after he catches the eye of two members of staff. DAVID BROWN

FOOD

MasterChef

9.00pm BBC1 Catch up via iPlayer

It's one thing cooking dinner for a few friends in your own home when you know where everything is and how it works, have time to prepare and – in my kitchen anyway – you have a glass of wine in hand. It's something else when you're working with a team in a strange environment, against the clock, to serve a celebratory feast for 120 emergency responders.

That's tonight's stressful challenge for the eight semi-finalists and we've frequently seen what producing industrial quantities of food can do to cooks at this stage of the competition, but Thursday's challenge is a new one. Gregg Wallace and John Torode announce they must cook a dish that's "so wrong, it's right". It sounds like a recipe for disaster to me. JANE RACKHAM

Forensics: the Real CSI

9.00pm BBC2

Catch up via iPlayer

Just over a year ago, in broad daylight, armed robbers dramatically reversed a truck into a jewellery shop on a busy Birmingham high street, stealing £300,000 of gold and escaping in less than a minute. The forensically aware ram raid gang left no real evidence at the scene while the getaway vehicles were either stolen or had false number plates.

However, CCTV footage showed that they then switched cars and, as we see in this documentary, the abandoned vehicles gave the police their first lead. This time the robbers weren't so savvy, leaving a sledgehammer, sticky tape and potential DNA behind, which forensic co-ordinator Rachel Hughes was optimistic would solve the case. JR

DRAMA

Maryland

9.00pm ITV1 Catch up via ITVX

Radical adjustments are being made to Becca and Rosaline's family tree after their mother's death, with branches lopped off and others bolted on. But what's deep-rooted in the sisters' relationship is the underlying tension between them, and it's these long-standing grievances that go from unsaid to very-much-said in episode two.

In the lead roles, both Suranne Jones and Eve Best are believably brittle as these two siblings who have gone through life employing different coping strategies for disappointment and trauma. And now, of course, they're also dealing with the fact that their mum wasn't at all the person they'd thought she was. Expect further revelations in tomorrow's finale at 9.00pm. DB See feature: p22

SITCOM*Colin from Accounts10.00pm BBC2Catch up via iPlayer

There have been plenty of obstacles for Ashley (Harriet Dyer) and Gordon (Patrick Brammall), yet until now their age gap hasn't been one of them. But as Ashley turns 30, she's having doubts. Dating someone in their 40s is making her feel like she's skipped a decade by proxy. That gulf only widens when Gordon tries, and fails, to fit in with her horrendous millennial friends at a party – one of whom sarcastically remarks to him: "Your boomer is showing."

It leaves their will they/won't they feeling more "won't" than ever, and a tear-jerking cliff-hanger leaves everything hingeing on next week's finale. FRANCES TAYLOR

DRAMA*Perry Mason10.05pm Sky AtlanticCatch up via Sky Go/Now

Investigator Paul Drake has discovered a kink in the case: the Gallardo brothers, who Perry is representing, are guilty. And Paul has the firearm to prove it. This ace twist from last week's episode flips the entire season on its head and now leaves the team with a big decision to make. Do they reveal what they know to the DA's office? Or continue to act on behalf of Rafael and Mateo, guided by the principle that everyone is entitled to a defence?

It's a quandary that leaves Perry feeling hamstrung as he can't very well put the siblings on the stand to ask them questions about a crime he knows they committed. So where exactly does he go from here? DB

DRAMA*Rain Dogs10.40pm (10.45pm Wales;11.10pm N Ireland) BBC1Catch up via iPlayer

Even though it's the present, you'd be forgiven for thinking Rain Dogs is firmly in the past. From the vintage cars to the VHS tapes and dingy browns that fill rooms, throughout the series it's felt as though you could almost smell the 1970s – and its nicotine-laden walls.

Since arriving at Sunset Park on a wagon (literally) – Costello (Daisy May Cooper) has now fallen off it. More than 500 days of sobriety have crumbled along with her book deal – and her despair has a distressing culmination. But the door is rightly propped ajar for a potential second series. FT

Ben Fogle meets Montserrat local James
"Scriber" Daley

DOCUMENTARY*Ben Fogle and the Buried City9.00pm Channel 5Catch up via My5

As you'd expect, this exploration of the apocalyptic volcanic eruption on Montserrat in the 1990s is more akin to Ben Fogle's glimpse inside Chernobyl than his usual delves into alternative lifestyles.

Its odd title paints Ben as some kind of action-movie star (arguably more Tintin than Indiana Jones), and his initial chopper ride over the island's lush canopy to its sulphur-spewing peaks does have a whiff of Sam Neill arriving at Jurassic Park about it. "It huffs and puffs like a wolf," says the pilot as they soar over the island's volatile Soufrière Hills.

But it's on the land where the disaster's human impact is felt most intimately, and there's a sad and eerie beauty to the remnants of the former capital, Plymouth, which was devastated by the cascading pyroclastic flows. GARY ROSE

Erin Brockovich

9.00-11.35pm Great Movies

DRAMA Based on a true story, Steven Soderbergh's movie is compulsive viewing, thanks to his ace in the hole, Julia Roberts. She earns every cent of her $20-million salary – and carried off an Oscar – as spirited heroine Erin, a divorced mother of three who lands a job in the office of small-time lawyer Albert Finney. There she stumbles across evidence that a power company has wrecked the health of a local community with contaminated water. Finney's lovable lawyer and the perfectly pitched script are the icing on the (occasionally fruity) cake. ALAN JONES (US 2000, swearing)

The Wrong Box

U

COMEDY This quirky film owes more to the Swinging Sixties (when it was made) than to the Victorian era in which it is set. John Mills stars as a man trying to bump off brother Ralph Richardson in order to secure the family inheritance. It's slackly directed by Bryan Forbes, but the cast is excellent, with Michael Caine joining Peter Sellers and Tony Hancock, plus Peter Cook and Dudley Moore in their prime. TONY SLOMAN (UK 1966, HD)

Khartoum

1.30-4.15pm

PG

DRAMA Charlton Heston stars in this epic about General Gordon's last stand, when Sudanese warriors, led by the Mahdi, gave the British Empire a serious jolt. Heston's portrayal of Gordon is finely studied, and contrasts with that of Laurence Olivier, whose Mahdi is all eye-rolling fanaticism. ADRIAN TURNER (UK 1966, edited for content)

Strange Invaders

3.00-4.50pm Legend

SCI-FI An affectionate tribute to 1950s alien invasion movies, this film has a simple premise that evokes memories of It Came from Outer Space, as

Paul Le Mat's professor teams up with reporter Nancy Allen to investigate a small town after his wife disappears. Director Michael Laughlin's rarely shown film falls somewhere between homage and pastiche. AJ (US 1983, edited for language)

Forbidden Cargo

4.15-6.00pm

PG

CRIME Customs agent Nigel Patrick tries to stop drug smugglers from polluting our shores in director Harold French's cosy but rather unexciting thriller. Patrick is supported by a cast of British stalwarts that includes the ever-delightful Joyce Grenfell (as a aristocratic bird-watcher), Elizabeth Sellers, Jack Warner and Terence Morgan. AT (UK 1954, BW)

Alien: Covenant

15

HORROR This entry in the Alien prequel series picks up years after the events of Prometheus, with the colony ship Covenant journeying to a new planet, only for events to take a grim turn. Fans will realise that no new ground is being broken here, although this episode is bloodier and gorier than its predecessors. TERRY STAUNTON (US 2017, violence, swearing, brief nudity, HD)

The Titan

15

SCI-FI Sam Worthington stars as a soldier recruited into a training programme that evolves humans to adapt to life on Titan, a distant moon orbiting Saturn. Despite its grand opening, Lennart Ruff's movie is slow and peculiar, and Worthington is hampered by a heavy layer of ludicrous make-up. Tom Wilkinson is the one saving grace as the shady head of the mission.

VICTORIA LUXFORD

(UK/US/Ger/Sp 2018, violence, swearing)

Fast Five

(not Border, Scotland)

ACTION Reuniting various returning cast members, this souped-up entry in the Fast and Furious franchise cranks up the spectacle to absurd levels. Vin Diesel and his cohorts plan a mega-heist in Rio, all the while evading agent Dwayne Johnson. Director Justin Lin overdoes the big swooping shots, but that's the one major blot on the high-speed fun. AJ (US 2011, violence, swearing, HD)

Vice

15

SATIRE Christian Bale stars as US Vice President Dick Cheney, the power behind George W Bush's throne, in this sharp biopic from Adam McKay (The Big Short). McKay employs audacious gimmicks to emphasise the VP's control over the presidency, and Steve Carell as Donald Rumsfeld, Sam Rockwell as Bush and Amy Adams as Cheney's wife, Lynne) fill out the impressive cast. TES (US 2018, swearing, HD)

The Great British Sewing Bee

9.00pm BBC1 Catch up via iPlayer

"So much has happened since we were last together," says Sara Pascoe. "A new king, a new prime minister and the baby I was gestating is married and working in finance." It's not been quite that long, but it's nice to have you back, Sewing Bee.

It's too soon to work out which of the 12 stitchers could be your favourite and who you'd like to use as a pin cushion but they're an interesting and diverse bunch: sewing is clearly no longer the preserve of middle-aged, middle-class ladies.

The challenges this week are all about classics with a twist and judges Patrick Grant and Esme

Young are as picky as ever. "This looks a bit wobbly... that sleeve is upside-down... there's a raw edge to the hem..." they sniff about their first efforts. Halfway through the made-to-measure task, one person breaks down in tears of frustration when her work goes horribly wrong, but – and this is so typical – the whole room helps her finish her garment. JANE RACKHAM Ten questions: page 10

NATURE

Oak Tree: Nature's Greatest Survivor

7.30pm BBC4 Catch up via iPlayer

It never quite registers when you're told a tree is old. But if an oak was a sapling during the English Civil War, that does paint a picture. History is only one offshoot of this magical nature watch, first aired in 2015, that branches out into entomology, evolution and even architecture.

George McGavin takes one example, a 400-year-old oak in Wytham Woods, Oxford, and studies the year-round threats to its existence, from gales to acorn weevils. It's gracefully filmed, with clever music choices and packed with facts about miraculous processes. It's poetic, inspiringly educational and, in our modern world of new builds and driveways, almost required viewing.

The Ant and Dec of the property world, Kirstie Allsopp and Phil Spencer are still going strong after 23 years of savvy house-hunting. This week, they're helping couples in the West Midlands. Kirstie takes on designers Karen and Richard, who have a whopping £1m-plus budget. Despite making nine offers, they keep falling at the final hurdle. Kirstie soon realises that their ultra-specific wishlist doesn't fit the local market.

Phil, meanwhile, is working with Camilla and Liam, who've spent two years trying to buy their own house so they can start a family. Slight snag: nurse Camilla works nightshifts, so properties are often sold before they can even view them.

Natural History Museum: World of Wonder

8.00pm Channel 5 Catch up via My5

It's a historical footnote now, but in 1872 HMS Challenger left Sheerness for a four-year journey that would take its 200-strong crew 80,000 miles. When Challenger returned in triumph, its hold was full of marine specimens, including a 12-metre-long squid. Fast forward to today and the Natural History Museum's Andrea Hart is curating an exhibition of the forgotten tale. It's the centrepiece of the third episode of a part fly-on-the-wall, part promo series.

Elsewhere, we hear of mammoths rampaging down what would become the Old Kent Road, while Sir Patrick Vallance, government health adviser during the pandemic, finds out something remarkable about bats.

11 Minutes: America's Deadliest Mass Shooting

9.00pm, 9.45pm BBC2

LAST EPISODE

While the immersive qualities of this four-part documentary are undeniable, time is also found for more thoughtful analysis as it concludes. Survivors reckon with the continuing grief and trauma of being caught up in the actions of one man at a Las Vegas music festival, with one paramedic conceding that he "probably cried more that night than in my whole career". Still, as unlikely as it seems, the series ends on a note of cautious hope.

As for the wider implications of the mass shooting, for every advocate of greater gun control there remain an alarming number of people unable to join the dots. GABRIEL TATE

Havana is an extraordinary young woman who's wise beyond her 16 years. She requested to be taken into care three years ago, has had six placements, and is still looking for her "forever family". She has the air of someone ten years older but her desire to trace her father (or even just have a photo of him) is a stark, heartbreaking reminder that she is just a kid seeking love and acceptance.

Kane, now 19, has been in care for 13 years and is also looking for answers. Specifically, he wants to know why he was taken into care when he was six, but will the reports in his case file affect his strong bond with his mum? KAY RIBEIRO

Painting Birds with Jim and Nancy Moir

9.00pm Sky Arts

Catch up via Sky Go/Now

You may not know that Jim Moir and Chris Packham are friends, but you'll be glad that they are – it makes this last episode the best of the series. They hang out and chat at Leighton Moss RSPB reserve in Lancashire, while painting the reedbeds in front of them. "For me, making things is good therapy," Packham says, echoing the series' simple joy in creation.

They are hoping to spot the plump little ball of colourful fluff that is the bearded tit, and the moment that they do – with hands to face in shocked delight – is a beautiful thing to witness. MB

My Name Is Reeve

12.05am C4 Full series available now via C4 streaming

The final episode of the series about the life and death of Reeve Steenkamp is by far the most traumatic of the three. As part of paralympic athlete Oscar Pistorius's parole process, a meeting has been arranged between him and Steenkamp's father Barry. The accounts of what happened are shudderingly raw and moving.

Does Barry Steenkamp get the closure that he's been longing for? Does Pistorius finally give him the truth? The answers to both are complex, with the encounter clearly rocking Barry to his core. Especially at the end when Pistorius asks to shake his hand... CERI THOMAS

Maryland

9.00pm ITV1

Full series available on ITVX

Maryland is effective in its depiction of a marriage turned stagnant and family ties that have unravelled. But it's less credible when it comes to the actual logistics of how Mary managed to sustain her double life and keep it concealed from Becca and Ros. I hardly live like a corporate jetsetter (let's face it, many of my work hours are spent sitting down watching ITV dramas), but keeping track of domestic commitments can still be a headache. Multiplying that by two? Forget it. And in this last episode, there's frustratingly little in the way of real explanation on the topic of Mary's dissembling.

So it can, at times, be hard to buy into elements of tonight's resolution – though, as I say, the showdown between Becca and husband Jim is potent, particularly when it comes to Suranne Jones's portrayal of a woman whose identity has been lost in the daily drudge. DAVID BROWN

DAY

Die Hard 4.0 ★★★★★

9.00-11.40pm 5 Star

12

ACTION Twelve years after Die Hard with a Vengeance, Bruce Willis returned as John McClane in this unabashedly retro blockbuster. As a cyber-terrorist (Timothy Olyphant) threatens the US, McClane is once more the wrong guy in the wrong place at the wrong time. Willis enjoys a witty rapport with Justin Long's cowardly hacker, and among the impressive set pieces is a fighter jet playing chicken with an 18-wheel tanker truck. Loud, relentless and very entertaining, this throwback to 1980s excess is gleefully aware of its own ridiculousness. JAMIE RUSSELL (US 2007, violence, swearing, HD)

A Thunder of Drums ★★★★★

11.30am-1.30pm TCM

WESTERN This well-made adventure stars Richard Boone, fresh from TV series Have Gun Will Travel, as a growling fort commander, and the dashing George Hamilton as a conscience-stricken lieutenant. The Big Circus director Joseph M Newman is clever enough to know how to get the most out of the familiar material. TONY SLOMAN (US 1961, HD)

Tomorrow ★★★★★

3.00-5.05pm

Talking Pictures TV

DRAMA Director Joseph Anthony has Robert Duvall firing on all cylinders in this powerful adaptation of a William Faulkner story. It's about a farmer who helps a pregnant woman (Olga Bellin) after she turns up at his place of work. The film is rarely shown on Freeview and is well worth seeking out – Duvall has said it's one of his personal favourites. DAVE ALDRIDGE (US 1972, BW)

Witness in the Dark ★★

6.45-8.00pm

CRIME Wolf Rilla conjures up a pleasing sense of menace in this drama, as he subjects blind Patricia Dainton to the murderous machinations of a prowler. Much depends on contrivance and the script is rather predictable, but Dainton's performance is superior to those in most British B-movies of the time. DAVID PARKINSON (UK 1959, BW)

Men in Black ★★★★★

SCI-FI This box-office smash stars Tommy Lee Jones as the agent who recruits cop Will Smith into a top-secret organisation responsible for regulating all alien activity on Earth. Great special effects, inventive alien designs and the leads' hip, hilarious double act make director Barry Sonnenfeld's Lethal Weapon-style buddy picture a zippy pleasure. ALAN JONES (US 1997, violence, swearing, HD)

The Wild Affair ★★★★★

9.00-10.50pm

12

COMEDY In this pleasantly tame affair, engaged secretary Nancy Kwan decides to have a final fling, taking advantage of the opportunities offered by an office party. After a slow start, the atmosphere is infectious, mainly due to a wealth of comedy talent including Terry-Thomas, Bud Flanagan and Gladys Morgan. DAVID MCGILLIVRAY (UK 1965, sexual references, BW)

Looper ★★★★★ 9.00-

15

SCI-FI A steely Bruce Willis embarks on a time-travelling revenge mission in this intelligent, fast-paced thriller. Set in 2044, the film stars Joseph Gordon-Levitt as a hitman chasing Mob targets sent back through time from 30 years in the future. But when his older self (Willis) appears, and promptly escapes, Gordon-Levitt must find and kill himself before the Mob does. DAMON WISE (US 2012, violence, swearing, nudity)

Fight Club ★★★★★

10.55pm-1.45am Film4

DRAMA Chuck Palahniuk's 1996 novel is boldly adapted for the screen in this satire from director David Fincher. The result is a shocking and amusing macho fantasy, in which insomniac office worker Edward Norton and seditious soap salesman Brad Pitt form a fight club as an outlet for their aggression. Fincher brilliantly plays with cinematic conventions and the cast puts in superlative work. AJ (US 1999, violence, swearing, sex scenes, nudity, HD)

Deep Blue Sea ★★★★★

11.40pm-1.45am 5 Star

15

THRILLER Three genetically mutated sharks stalk the marooned members of an underwater research facility in this popcorn-friendly sci-fi from director Renny Harlin. Thomas Jane, Saffron Burrows and LL Cool J struggle gamely with the mundane dialogue, but the movie remains afloat through sheer nerve, technical prowess and some excellent shock moments. AJ (US 1999, violence, swearing, HD)

Whoopi Goldberg: This Cultural Life

9.00pm BBC4 Catch up via iPlayer

Whoopi Goldberg's rise from the New York projects to multi-award-winning highest paid woman in Hollywood ("for about ten minutes") is the stuff of legend. Yet, as John Wilson discovers here, she is not overly prone to self-analysis, preferring to don a cloak of self-deprecation: "I'm always shocked when people come to see me."

As a result, we learn little about Goldberg herself. There's an appreciation of the pivotal role Graduate director Mike Nichols played in bringing her from club circuit to Broadway; a downplaying of any potential race issues and an absence of regrets. For all that, she's an engaging raconteur, not least when she recalls performing her one-woman show for an audience including Michael Jackson at Steven Spielberg's private theatre. The Color Purple follows at 9.30pm.

INTERVIEW

Amol Rajan Interviews Brian Cox

7.00pm BBC2 Catch up via iPlayer

After interviewing newsworthy figures such as Richard Branson, Piers Morgan and journalistic titans Woodward and Bernstein, sitting down for a chat with the actor Brian Cox might initially sound a bit lightweight. As he isn't actually Logan Roy, it's not as if Rajan can try to wrinkle out accounts of scandal or deceit from the Succession actor.

That said, the 76-year-old star of stage and screen has no end of stories to tell, ranging from behind-the-scenes tales from the hit drama to talk of his early days as the son of a shopkeeper in Dundee.

SOAP

EastEnders

7.30pm BBC1 Catch up via iPlayer

There's talk this evening of finding treatment in America for the terminally ill Lola, but thanks to that flashforward scene to Christmas 2023, viewers know this plotline is heading in only one direction. Yes EastEnders, we did clock that framed picture of Lola at the edge of shot on the Queen Vic bar. It can only have been placed there as a tribute, am I right?

It's all such a shame, as Danielle Harold and Jamie Borthwick (who plays Lola's supportive husband Jay) have formed a convincing on-screen partnership. And it's not just Jay who'll be left devastated when Lola does eventually die. DAVID BROWN

Strike: inside the Unions

9.00pm BBC2 Catch up via iPlayer

Over the past year barely a week has gone by without the disruption of industrial action in this country: transport workers, the postal service, border control staff, teachers, nurses and doctors have all been on strike over pay and conditions.

Mick Lynch, general secretary of the National Union of Rail, Maritime and Transport Workers, has been one of the most vocal – and articulate – critics of the government's stance on pay and he, along with Pat Cullen of the Royal College of Nursing, are among those talking in this two-part documentary about the reasons they went on strike and the effect on their members. JANE RACKHAM

ENTERTAINMENT

Taskmaster

9.00pm C4

Catch up via C4 streaming

History teaching in our schools is clearly in a dire state based on this episode, which sees five adults try and fail to give one-minute lectures on random years from the past. Sure, we all might struggle to summon facts about the 1100s under the gimlet gaze of Taskmaster's assistant Alex Horne – but surely anyone should be able to muster a monarch or two? A vague idea of which events may or may not have happened already?

If there's one saving grace, it's that Canadian Mae Martin – usually a quick-thinking high-flyer in this series – is just as bad as the other contestants, proving that it's not just the Brits who need to hit the books.

Alexander Armstrong in Sri Lanka

9.00pm Channel 5

Catch up via My5

After a packed train ride (during which, for some inexplicable reason, passengers scream and whoop once darkness falls – bet you don't get that on your evening commute) Alexander Armstrong needs refreshment. As he's in the heart of Sri Lanka that means Ceylon tea.

It's a nice, sedate start for a travelogue but Xander seems to relish looking a fool so happily strips off to be smeared with all sorts of gunk (including something like porridge) as part of a rejuvenation treatment at an ayurvedic centre in Kandy. He says it makes him feel 20 years younger – you'll have to take his word for that. JR

Steve Pemberton and Reece Shearsmith have played gay roles before, but I believe this is the first edition in which they've been a couple. In The Last Weekend, Shearsmith gives us Chas, a peevish, superannuated pop star still sporting blond highlights, while Pemberton is Joe, a weary soul in declining health.

We join them on their ninth anniversary as they arrive at a log cabin in the Highlands, where they bicker and unwind. Not much more should be said about this final episode, except that the delightful Sheila Reid (Pemberton's mother-in-law Madge in Benidorm) pops up as a kindly housekeeper. PATRICK MULKERN

Great British Dog Walks with Phil Spencer

9.00pm More4 Catch up via C4 streaming

NEW SERIES

Not, as you might imagine from the title, suggestions for gentle strolls in your neighbourhood with a four-legged friend, but an epic coast-to-coast hike by Location, Location's Phil Spencer with his energetic pointer Luna and various celebrity pals. Graphics of grid co-ordinates, mileage and weather conditions bolster what is essentially a chance for Phil to have amiable chats with his guests as they walk.

He starts on a chilly spring day through Cumbria with SAS: Who Dares Wins' Billy Billingham and his bulldog Alfie. They admire the scenery (and pick up dog poo) while Phil hears about Billy's army career, how Alfie snores "like a drunken paratrooper" and the importance of a cuppa. JR

8.00 MasterChef

The remaining seven hopefuls have to step outside their comfort zone to take on a brand new brief – cooking a dish which is “so wrong that it's right”. While two contestants are eliminated, the successful five head to the Francis Crick Institute in central London, Europe's largest biomedical laboratory, where they must cook a five-course celebratory lunch to mark the 70th anniversary of the discovery of DNA. Working under the gimlet eye of acclaimed chef Jozef Youssef, who devises dishes that create the ultimate multi-sensory fine-dining experience, they are tasked with re-creating one of Jozef's technically demanding recipes. There's no room for error as prestigious guests include knights of the realm and a Nobel Peace Prize winner. Continues tomorrow 8.30pm.

9.00 Gordon Ramsay's Future Food Stars

8/8 Series 2. After eight intense weeks, the culinary contest reaches its climax. Gordon invites the final three to Ibrox Stadium in Glasgow, a place where he was forced to end his footballing career with Rangers and turn his hand to food. Can the finalists embrace change and create a limited-edition Scottish version of their products to launch in front of a home crowd? Gordon gives each one a world-renowned expert to help turn their merchandise around and take them to the next level. Then, it's the most dramatic grilling of their lives as all three endeavour to convince Gordon to back them with a £150,000 investment. Both series are available on iPlayer.

FILMS

Film4 14

11.00am The Running Man ★★★★★ Director Carol Reed turns a thoroughly run-of-the-mill potboiler into a hugely entertaining three-handed thriller. Laurence Harvey, Lee Remick, Alan Bates (1963, PG) (S) (AD)
1.10pm Tobruk ★★★ Rock Hudson is on a mission to blow up enemy fuel lines in this occasionally stodgy, often entertaining, Second World War adventure. (1966, 12) (S) (AD)
3.25 Hatar! ★★★★★ Wonderful safari romp in which hunters have their lives thrown up in the air when a female photographer comes to stay. Review p67. John Wayne, Elsa Martinelli, Hardy Kruger (1962, U) (S)

6.35pm Gods of Egypt ★ Creative, action-packed and chaotic fantasy adventure. Nikolaj Coster-Waldau, Brenton Thwaites (2016, 12) (S) (AD)

9.00 Men in Black 2 ★★ The bickering secret agents take on a nefarious alien queen in this thinly plotted sequel. Tommy Lee Jones, Will Smith, Lara Flynn Boyle (2002, PG) (S) (AD)

10.45 Shallow Grave ★★★★★ Exuberant black comedy drama in which three Edinburgh flatmates slowly turn on each other after colluding in a crime. Kerry Fox, Christopher Eccleston (1994, 18) (S)

12.35-4.00am Onoda ★★★★★ Involving and very moving epic adventure about the Japanese Second World War soldier who camped in a Filipino jungle until the 1970s, unaware that the war was over. Review, right. Yuya Endo (2021, 15) (S)

FILM REVIEWS

Joe Pesci is the butt of the duo's jokes. JOHN FERGUSON (US 1992, violence, swearing, HD)

The Color Purple ★★★★★
9.30-11.55pm BBC4 15

DRAMA Steven Spielberg's adaptation of Alice Walker's bestseller about a young black woman's struggle is a dignified attempt to turn a radical and often difficult book into a mainstream movie. Whoopi Goldberg is wonderful as Celie, Danny Glover and Margaret Avery are sublime in support, and watch out for a pre-TV-fame Oprah Winfrey. SUE HEAL (US 1985, violence, swearing, HD) Whoopi Goldberg feature, p26

Robin Hood ★★★
10.05pm-12.50am ITV4 12

ADVENTURE Russell Crowe reunited with his Gladiator director Ridley Scott for this retelling of the Robin Hood legend. It's a complex vision of the tale, with Mark Strong as the politically motivated baddie trying to bring about a French invasion. Crowe's romance with Cate Blanchett's Marion is well handled, but the film impresses most with its visceral battle scenes. ANNA RICHARDS (US/Jpn 2010, violence, HD)

Onoda ★★★★★
12.35-4.00am Film4 15

BIOPIC This gripping movie recounts the remarkable true story of soldier Hiroo Onoda (played in youth by Endo Yuya and later by Tsuda Kanji), who hid in the jungle for almost three decades, unaware the Second World War was over. Director Arthur Harari cleaves close to Onoda throughout, in an intense character study of camaraderie and commitment. AMBER WILKINSON (Fr/Jpn/Ger/Bel/It/Camb 2021, violence, swearing, HD)

FILM OF THE DAY

Eyewitness ★★★

10.00pm-12.05am Talking Pictures TV 15

THRILLER Shy night janitor William Hurt foolishly pretends to know something about a murder at his building in order to get close to TV newswoman Sigourney Weaver in this sub-"Hitch" cocktail of New York paranoia and fairy-tale romance from Bullitt director Peter Yates. It's a slick and enjoyable movie, with Yates deftly moving his classy cast (including Irene Worth, Christopher Plummer, James Woods and Morgan Freeman) through one mind-bending plot contortion after another, and the suspense becomes truly nail-biting. ALAN JONES (US 1981, violence, swearing, a sex scene)

The March Hare ★★★

Talking Pictures TV U

DRAMA Best remembered for Philip Green's jaunty theme music, this horse-racing romp gains from the fact that it was filmed in colour and CinemaScope by the great Jack Hildyard (Bridge on the River Kwai). It has good-looking leads in Terence Morgan and Peggy Cummins who, together with a sly performance from Cyril Cusack, keep it all watchable. TONY SLOMAN (UK 1956)

McIntock! ★★★

1.20-4.00pm 5 Action U

COMEDY This rollicking John Wayne western is a real Wayne family affair: it co-stars one son, Patrick, while another, Michael, produced the movie. It's basically a rewrite of The Taming of the Shrew, with all the pre-feminist attitudes endemic to that Shakespeare comedy – attitudes, one suspects, held by the Duke himself. Rowdy, rude and rather dated. TS (US 1963)

She ★★★

2.45-4.50pm Legend U

ADVENTURE Ursula Andress acquits herself well in this version of H Rider Haggard's much-filmed fantasy. She plays the 2,000-year-old queen of a lost African kingdom who is still yearning for the embrace of a lover she killed centuries ago. The film looks good, with exotic jungle backdrops, but it doesn't quite have the epic quality that it aspires to. PETER FREEDMAN (UK 1965)

The Switch ★★★

6.35-8.00pm
Talking Pictures TV U

CRIME Mostly made for buttons, British B-movies have a modest reputation – but this cross-Channel smuggling saga is one of the better ones. Anthony Steel plays a customs officer who liaises with detective Dermot Walsh after identical sports cars are stolen from the same mews address. Enlivening the search is Dawn Beret, playing a short-fused thug's chirpy girlfriend. DAVID PARKINSON (UK 1963, BW)

Lethal Weapon 3 ★★★

9.00-11.25pm TCM 15

THRILLER Although the law of diminishing returns is starting to have an effect, the mindless mayhem and large-scale set pieces of this action extravaganza will keep fans of the series satisfied. This time around, Mel Gibson gets a girl after his own heart (cop Rene Russo), soon-to-retire partner Danny Glover looks more worried than ever, and

DRAMA Sister Boniface Mysteries

9.00pm Drama Catch up via UKTV Play

A mere strip of sticky-backed plastic is all that separates the fictional children's show Jolly Roger created here from Blue Peter in its 1960s heyday. There are three presenters in the mould of Peter, John and Val, as well as pets, badges and a martinet editor called Dinah Morgan (played by Abigail Thaw) who's imperious and uncompromising. Can't think who she might be modelled on...

Anyway, it's Dinah who you ought to keep an eye on, as she's the one set to get done in when the programme heads out on the road to report from Sister Boniface's village. Well, you are clearly asking for trouble visiting somewhere called Great Slaughter.

Needless to say, the clean-cut presenters are keeping all kinds of unwholesome secrets. Though in what may be a first, there's also a possible case of parrot-cide when Jolly Roger's much-loved Poopdeck Pete goes missing. As you can probably tell from the tease, season two of this simple, wimpy detective drama isn't destined to be any less tongue-in-cheek than the first.

DAVID BROWN

FORCE OF HABIT
Sister Boniface (Lorna Watson) unravels a new mystery with the help of Felix (Jerry Iwu, left), Peggy (Ami Metcalfe) and Sam (Max Brown)

The Big Interiors Battle

8.00pm C4

Catch up via C4 streaming

The last time the fledgeling designers attempted a team challenge, it wasn't a success. So the obvious thing to do is to set another group task.

The remaining three must come up with a new concept for the common room space in a kids' outdoor adventure centre in the Peak District. The one who's chosen leads the task with the other two having to put aside their egos and work as assistants.

"I don't know how Dara's mind works," one of them sighs as they await her decision. You might be wondering how it works, too, this week, but all is explained.

Susan Calman's Grand Day Out

8.00pm Channel 5

Catch up via My 5

Wales has more castles per square mile than anywhere in the world, but it's not battlements and ramparts that's exciting Susan Calman. It's the prospect of visiting Caerphilly, birthplace of comedian Tommy Cooper, where she meets its fez-wearing mayor.

It's one of several unusual encounters that include playing Welsh baseball and listening to a harpist amid the leafy environs of the National Botanic Gardens. She also has a tiny Doctor Who moment at Dunraven Bay, but Ncuti Gatwa has nothing to worry about. JR

Hidden Treasures of the National Trust

9.00pm BBC2

Catch up via iPlayer

A mid-terrace Liverpool council house is an unlikely National Trust property, but 20 Forthlin Road was Paul McCartney's family home and, despite some public reservation, the Trust bought it in 1995. Since then, they've been trying to track down the authentic "fake stone" wallpaper in the living room as documented in photos taken by younger brother Mike at the time. "Maybe you should ask our kid," he adds endearingly.

We also learn about two other unusual 20th-century NT treasures, including portrait photographer Edward Chamberé Hardman's home in Shropshire. JR

I Killed My Husband

9.00pm, 10.00pm More 4

Catch up via C4 streaming

NEW SERIES A woman stands staring over a bridge before eventually driving away. Back home the woman, Anna (Erika Sainte), is clearly distraught even before the police arrive asking about her husband.

Initially the flashbacks in this complex French thriller (another Walter Presents offering) are tantalising rather than illuminating, but gradually we gather that her charismatic husband Manuel was manipulative so, we assume, she snapped and killed him.

But, as unorthodox police officer Caldera (Tiphaine Daviot) starts to unearth in this double bill, there's more to this than meets the eye. JR

COMEDY DRAMA

Black Ops

9.30pm BBC1

Catch up via iPlayer

Are there big twists to come in this undercover cop comedy? This week, the fleeting presence of veteran actors like Katherine Kelly and Zoë Wanamaker (the latter sitting silently in the background of one scene) suggests they may have a larger part to play in the final two episodes. Unless it's just a giant red herring...

Certainly, there's a lot they could unspool with some shock revelations in this episode that leave deep-cover PCSOs Dom and Kay in hot water. Played by young actors Gbemisola Ikumelo and Hammed Animashaun, Dom and Kay are an entertaining duo and beside better-known co-stars, they naturally hold their own.

COMEDY DRAMA

Bump

11.25pm, 11.55pm (11.55pm only in Northern Ireland) BBC1

Catch up via iPlayer

The characters may be a little older now, but life is not getting any easier in this likeable Australian comedy drama. If the title once referred to Oly's pregnancy, it now seems to mean the ups and downs of life.

Once a high-achieving student, Oly is now spending her evenings getting drunk and vandalising churches, which doesn't impress Santi, the father of her five-year-old daughter Jacinda. Their co-parenting is going through a rocky patch.

The soapy storylines are amusing but more realistic than our home-grown efforts (OK, maybe not the jellyfish fight) while Santi's Chilean family provide the laughs. JR

NEW SERIES Knives Out writer/director Rian Johnson has clearly developed a taste for the murder mystery. After making two whodunnits starring Daniel Craig, he's also created this new series about an offbeat sleuth featuring Natasha Lyonne's Charlie Cale, a wisecracking poker savant who can perfectly detect any bluff or lie.

While Knives Out is pure Christie confection, Poker Face takes the lead from another classic – Peter Falk's Columbo – with each episode revealing the murderer at the outset. It's up to our hero to find out what we already know.

In other words, it's more of a "howcatchem" and it works brilliantly. They don't make this sort of classy, episodic TV much in the US any more, and the pure enjoyment of watching might make you wonder why. HF

FILM REVIEWS

FILM OF THE DAY

Eighth Grade ★★★★★

9.00-10.30pm BBC3

15

DRAMA With its fresh-faced cast and keen ear for youth speak, Eighth Grade feels more authentic than most teen movies. Elsie Fisher gives a delightful, naturalistic performance as 13-year-old Kayla, who spends her spare time recording self-help videos on subjects like "Being Yourself" or "How to Be Confident" despite being quiet and socially awkward herself. The story is relatively uneventful, but the feature debut of writer/director Bo Burnham captures the teenage experience to a tee, complete with lots of cringe-worthy situations. STEPHEN CARTY (US 2018, swearing, HD)

Whispering Smith ★★★

1.00-2.50pm

Great Action

PG

WESTERN Alan Ladd's first starring western is more like a detective story, in which he plays an undercover agent on the trail of train wreckers. It was his first film in colour, made just five years before he achieved immortality in Shane. The film is briskly handled by journeyman director Leslie Fenton, who brings the story to a rousing climax. BRIAN BAXTER (US 1948)

The Red Pony ★★

PG

DRAMA This adaptation of John Steinbeck's tale of a boy and his horse is an awkward blend of children's picture and social realist drama. Myrna Loy is miscast as the boy's mum, but Robert Mitchum is impressive as the ranch hand. The highlight is the fine score by Aaron Copland, who also wrote the music for Lewis Milestone's earlier Steinbeck adaptation, Of Mice and Men. ADRIAN TURNER (US 1949, violence, HD)

The Scorpion King ★★★★★

12

ADVENTURE Director Chuck Russell's spin-off from The Mummy Returns is fine escapist hokum. When an evil warlord (Steven Brand)

Dangerous Minds ★★★★★

10.00pm-12 midnight MTV 15

DRAMA Michelle Pfeiffer is solid in this tale based on a true story, as an ex-marine who takes a teaching job at a tough inner-city school and must earn the respect of the students. The film spawned a huge hit in Coolio's Gangster's Paradise, but Andy Garcia fared less well – all his scenes were left on the cutting-room floor. DAVID PARKINSON (US 1995, violence, swearing)

Crawl ★★★★★

15

HORROR Hungry alligators are the stars of this lean, mean creature feature from Alexandre Aja. During a hurricane, competitive swimmer Kaya Scodelario hunts for her father (Barry Pepper) and becomes trapped in the basement of their Florida family home, surrounded by reptiles. The film is loaded with scares and walks a tightrope between suspense and horror. AJ (US 2019, violence, swearing, HD)

The Photograph ★★★

12

DRAMA A mother's regret inspires her daughter to take a risk in writer/director Stella Meghie's earnest drama. Mae (Issa Rae) and Michael (LaKeith Stanfield) meet following the death of Mae's mother Christina, and the story flits between the pair's courtship and Christina's decades-old love affair. It's a tad chaste for a film about passion, but it's sporadically witty and sumptuously shot. EMMA SIMMONDS (US 2020, swearing, sex scenes, HD)

Sky Premiere

6.00am As 6pm 8.10 As 2pm
10.05 The Old Way ★★★★★ Nicolas Cage is on understated form in this solid western. (2023, 15) 11.55 Travellers ★★ Energetic Italian fantasy. Matteo Schiavone (2022) 2.00pm Alone Together ★★ Sweetly low-key romance. (2022) 3.55 Lyle, Lyle, Crocodile ★★★★★ Oddball family crowd-pleaser about a boy who befriends a shy reptile. Javier Bardem, Constance Wu, Winslow Fegley (2022, PG) 6.00pm Mrs Harris Goes to Paris ★★★★★ Lesley Manville is charming in this lovely 1950s-set tale about a working-class war widow. Room 101 with Paul Merton
Wednesday 6.30pm Radio 4

THE PARLOUR GAME Room 101, in which guests consign the things they hate to history, has survived many formats. Launched on Radio 5 in 1992, it became a BBC2 television show two years later, both hosted by Nick Hancock. Paul Merton – who had been Hancock's first guest – then took over, and after a five-year break it returned on BBC1 with Frank Skinner.

Now it's come full circle, back on the radio – Radio 4 this time – hosted again by Merton.

Why, I ask Merton, does the format endure despite so many changes, cancellations and revivals? "I think it's quite revealing when people talk about things that irritate them," he says. "It's the opposite of Desert Island Discs, where they talk about music they couldn't be without. You could make the case that when people are choosing things they like, they're showing the best side of themselves. Whereas on our show somebody might pick a Mozart concerto because their first wife played it every night or something."

It also allows the audience to see a different side of a guest, he adds. "Take someone like Claudia Winkleman [in this week's edition], who is exceptional in our series. She's a huge name, we see her on Strictly, but we don't often see her being given free rein to say whatever she likes. Or Mark Steel. He's a political comedian but he wanted to put tinned custard in Room

'We've given Claudia Winkleman free rein to say whatever she likes'

101. So we did a blind taste test where he had to try a vegan custard, a powdered custard, and a tinned custard. I think you can guess which one he preferred!"

There are obvious differences in presenting a radio show compared with a television series. Skinner's most recent TV version, which Merton says he never saw, relied increasingly on props and video clips. Merton concedes that radio is more restrictive but adds, "There are other things you can do. Claudia chose picnics, so we conjured up the atmosphere of a picnic with buzzing bees. Radio is very good for that."

In shows recorded in front of an audience at a London theatre, Merton's other guests are broadcaster Steph McGovern and comedians Phil Wang, Desiree Burch and Julian Clary. Paul O'Grady was also due to record an edition, but died suddenly two weeks before the booking. "That was a great shock and very sad," says Merton. "He would have been brilliant."

MY PET HATES

Paul Merton is bringing Room 101 back to radio – and says what you loathe reveals more about you than what you adore

After decades on Just a Minute, Merton loves the intimacy of being able to see the audience without cameras in the way. "I wore a suit to give it a sense of occasion," he says. "It's just you and a guest on two comfy chairs, so it's more like theatre and the audience response was even more enthusiastic than they had been on TV."

THE CONCEPT COMES, of course, from George Orwell's Nineteen Eighty-Four, although in the book a prisoner in Room 101 was stuck with his worst fears. It also invented the term "Big Brother is watching you", which has become common parlance for surveillance and also lent its name to the reality show. Does he think we are creeping towards the dystopian future Orwell predicted?

"I read it when I was a teenager," says Merton. "I watched the film version with John Hurt last year. It was very well made but a pretty grim story and a miserable experience."

"Maybe we want more escapism, rather than something that reads like a prediction of what's happening now." Something that spins Orwell into a parlour game, perhaps...

WHAT IRKS MERTON

1 CYCLISTS WHO DON'T OBEY TRAFFIC LIGHTS AND RIDE ON PAVEMENTS. I was crossing a road at a green light and six cyclists just rode across. I said it was a green light and one of them told me to eff off. I'm sure most cyclists do behave well and you only notice the minority. I don't know if it's the blood rushing around the body, but it seems to turn some of them into really horrible people.

2 PEOPLE USING PHRASES THAT ARE MEANT TO BE COMEDIC BUT AREN'T. I hate it when people jokingly say, "No pressure," in a pressurised situation, or make a weak joke and say, "See what I did there?" Probably because I have quite an austere attitude on Have I Got News for You, strangers don't come up to me and try to make jokes. Which is a blessing.

3 HELICOPTERS. How they fly is totally unnatural. I was in one once and the vertical take-off was terrifying. Also, you know if they get into trouble, there's no safe landing. They spiral!

4 CHATTY HAIRDRESSERS. If there was a chain of hairdressers who advertised their business with the slogan "We won't talk to you", I'd use them every time. "Going somewhere nice for your holidays?" "No, I've picked the most dangerous warzone I could find."

DISCUSSION

Taking Issue with Shakespeare

Monday–Friday 1.45pm Radio 4

This is a really stimulating take on William Shakespeare – and a welcome one after the series' puzzling disappearance from the schedules last month – in which the academic Emma Smith considers what light the playwright can shed on contemporary concerns.

A roster of top thinkers joins her, and the conversations that result – notably Will Self on Hamlet and toxic masculinity – are the kind that would surely benefit every A-level English student. The series marks 400 years since the publication of the First Folio, which Smith thinks might be the most significant Shakespeare anniversary of them all. SIMON O'HAGAN

MUSIC

Composer of the Week

Monday–Friday 12 noon Radio 3

Change is in the air with R3's new controller, Sam Jackson. For 24 years Composer of the Week has been Donald Macleod's domain, but for ten weeks this year, starting on Monday, Kate Molleson (above) will bring her own flavour to the show. As host of R3's New Music Show, she knows her way round the avant-garde, and she'll be at home with the music of 20th-century iconoclast György Ligeti in the Hungarian composer's centenary year. SO'H

DRAMA

The Ballad of Syd and Morgan

Saturday 3.00pm Radio 4

In Cambridge in 1968, Syd Barrett (below), who's just left Pink Floyd, meets novelist EM Forster. "They never met as far as we know," admits Haydn Middleton, who wrote the 2018 fan fiction on which this adaptation is based. But fine writing and sensitive performances by Simon Russell Beale and Tyger Drew-Honey convince us that, had they met, this is the kind of conversation the men of two eras would have had.

DRAMA

Drama on 3: Women of Troy

Sunday 7.30pm Radio 3

The horror of war never goes away. No wonder Euripides's tragedy about the fate of the women left behind when the Greeks overrun Troy has been adapted so many times. In Linda Marshall Griffiths's new version, word is spread by social media about what's going on. In one particularly harrowing story, the voice of a young woman relates how she took her mind to another place while multiple soldiers raped her by thinking about her route to school. Maxine Peake (above) is Hecuba, heartbreaking in her sorrow and magnificent in her fury. FIONA HUGHES

AMBRIDGE DIARY

The Archers

Sunday–Friday Radio 4

The screws are turning on poor Helen (Louiza Patikas, above) as the malign presence of Rob starts to take its toll. While Pat and Ian worry for her welfare, Helen turns to an old friend for advice – but will she like what she hears? On the cricket pitch, Tom channels David Warner as he fights dirty in a battle with Tracy over the same player. Meanwhile, everything goes awry with Susan's plans for Tracy's hen do and the night ends in drama. Old feelings stir for Adam, which could lead to trouble. DAVID CRAWFORD

BEST NEW PRESENTER

Life after Prison

Since last October Zak Addae-Kodua and Jules Rowan have occupied a niche that will be unknown territory for most of us. The former prisoners, both of whom have turned their lives around, co-host podcasts for National Prison Radio intended to help anyone trying to adapt to the outside world. Their guests include a wide variety of people affected by the criminal justice system. I admit I intended to skim the shows, but was soon gripped by stories I had never heard before.

Deborah James's podcast brought hope to millions

SHINING ON

WINNER OF THE IMPACT AWARD You, Me & the Big C

Tony Livesey's emotional final on-air conversation with Dame Deborah James on Radio 5 Live provided Radio Times's moment of the year. When You, Me & the Big C – the podcast in which James chronicled her life with bowel cancer in typically unflinching detail and with unflagging humour – launched in 2018, the producers hoped that they might attract 20,000 listeners at best. But by the time James died in June 2022 it had become a national phenomenon. Lauren Mahon, the original surviving presenter, is moving on but the hope is the podcast will continue in other hands. It's not too late to catch up. DAVID HEPWORTH

PICK OF THE WEEK

CREATIVE INNOVATION AWARD WINNER

Fun Kids' Mission Transmission

There are very few radio shows that hold a world record, but on Monday 21 February 2022 Fun Kids snatched one at the Royal Observatory Greenwich by broadcasting the first show to be sent into deep space, which – in theory – will run for ever! It included messages and questions sent in by young listeners from around the world. Plus David James trying to explain football to aliens. DAVID CRAWFORD

BEST NEWS COVERAGE The Smugglers' Trail

The tragic consequences of people-smuggling continue to make headlines, but this gripping series from BBC producer/presenter Sue Mitchell gets to the heart of this nefarious trade. With staunch assistance from soldier-turned-aid-worker Rob Lawrie, Mitchell manages to uncover just how murky it is. One gang leader reveals the huge amounts of cash made and then laundered, but there's genuine menace from the interview at night in a forest with armed men present. JEREMY ASPINALL

BEST NEW PODCAST Colouring in Britain

Tomi Dixon tells the little-known stories of four people of colour who have had an influence on the UK, including poet Benjamin Zephaniah, civil rights campaigner Paul Stephenson, nursing pioneer Princess Campbell and political activist Claudia Jones. "Radio is new to me," he says, "but it already feels like home, because of the way people have reacted. I think my mum's going to put the award on the mantel, so when anyone comes in, she'll be like: 'That's my son's award!'" LAURA RUTKOWSKI

BEST NEW RADIO SHOW Room 5

Helena Merriman's moving series has caught the attention of health professionals, who feel they can learn from those given life-changing diagnoses – as happened to Merriman herself – and have incorporated them into the training of doctors and psychologists. Enhanced by the work of sound designer Eloise Whitmore (she and Merriman worked together on the Cold War-era series Tunnel 29), Room 5 is a work of great humanity, fully deserving of its endorsement. ### BEST SPORTS SHOW Moment of Truth

A 15-part series on League One football teams Rotherham United and Oxford United may not sound promising, but as executive producer Simon Clancy says, "It's about two teams at the back-end of their season, but it isn't just about football, it's about families." Sound engineer Liam Thorne felt for the managers: "What really sunk in for me is how hard it is. There's so much pressure, it ruins people's lives, they're waking up with blood in their mouths, it's unbelievable." A real-life antidote to Ted Lasso's idealism. LR

BEST COMEDY The Skewer: the Queen

Satirising the death of the Queen could amount to treason, but Jon Holmes's brilliant soundscape deftly avoids offence by focusing on the ensuing media chatter. Of the award, Holmes says: "We won it two years in a row and this is the third year, so I thought, 'This is not gonna happen.' I'm gobsmacked. When the Queen died, we brought comedy to the depressed nation and I like to think it's what she would have wanted." The Skewer is due to return for series 9 this year, so no one is safe from Holmes's unique brand of humour. LR

BEST AUDIOBOOK OR READING A Heart That Works

Odd as it sounds, Rob Delaney's bestselling book about the loss of his two-year-old son Henry is life-affirming. Delaney was a stand-up before he came to wider attention in Channel 4 sitcom Catastrophe and he can't hide his funny bones. Coupled with his warm American drawl, his perfect timing gives the necessary uplift to the difficult events. In the biggest lift of all, love gets through the darkness in the end. FIONA HUGHES

BEST DRAMA Dear Harry Kane

A letter to his footballing idol is the framework for this harrowing story of a young Sri Lankan man called Nisal, who moves to Qatar to work for his family. Nisal is a lifelong Tottenham Hotspur fan and excited to be building the stadium in which his hero, Spurs striker Harry Kane, will soon play in the World Cup. But exploitative working conditions break his spirit; Olivier Award-winning actor Hiran Abeysekera movingly portrays a man for whom the beautiful game becomes a shattered dream. CAROLINE FROST

Streams of Consciousness

JK Rowling podcast proves the medium has come of age

THE WITCH TRIALS OF JK ROWLING podcast feels like the coming of age for podcasting as a medium. The very existence of a seven-part exploration of the furore that arose when the bestselling author weighed in on transgender issues proves that podcasting now does things other media either can't or won't. The latter may be because there is fear of staff, readers, licence fee payers or because of reluctance to embark on one of those "journeys" without knowing where it ends.

I'm sure the story of how JK Rowling decided she was going to open her home and heart to host Megan Phelps-Roper isn't quite as simple as the podcast makes it sound. I suspect Rowling is the kind of person who would not do this without running it past her team. Clearly the fact that Megan grew up in the West-boro Baptist Church where she had hands-on experience of witch-hunting didn't hurt one bit. The fact that Rowling would be allowed to have her say at length, as do other voices, probably clinched it.

THE HUNTED
Harry Potter author
JK Rowling

HAD OTHER MEDIA possessed the will it's difficult to believe they could have bettered this exploration of how the trans issue came to collide with the mad science of digital communication. Book writers like to take sides. Actors need to know they'll be wearing the white hat. TV documentaries prefer to begin with the conclusions. Because you don't actually see a human face in The Witch Trials, you're forced to engage with ideas, not personalities. "Why is it so hard to know what's right?" the podcast pleads near the end. That distant sound you hear is Plato clearing his throat.

The average listener, baffled by terminology in which the trans debate is conducted and taken aback by the venom that so often results, is likely to come away with one thought. In this pitiless age of social media, who in their right mind would still want to be famous?

TODAY'S CHOICES

Opera on 3: Kaija Saariaho's Innocence

6.30pm Radio 3

A waitress at a wedding party recognises the bridegroom as the brother of the boy who shot dead her teenage daughter and nine schoolmates a decade before. The plot of Finnish composer Kaija Saariaho's opera proved all too painfully topical when the end of its UK premiere run at the Royal Opera House coincided with the school shooting in Serbia earlier this month. Haunting the present-day action with ghosts from the past, the opera turns into a discussion of guilt and blame, forgiveness and redemption, as the waitress Tereza, sung by mezzo Jenny Carlstedt (above), reveals the groom's family secret to the bride and guests.

MARK PAPPENHEIM

Archive on 4: The Socrates of San Francisco

8.00pm Radio 4

Howard Luck Gossage may have been an innovative force in the advertising industry in the 1950s and 60s, but he was also its greatest critic. More interested in inspiring change by making good ideas work in the real world (like Friends of the Earth, for instance), he based his agency in a converted firehouse in San Francisco where the likes of John Steinbeck and Tom Wolfe could rub shoulders with Ken Kesey and the Grateful Dead. This fascinating portrait of a true iconoclast reveals why his influence remains today.

The Tower Museum – Derry/Londonderry. Neil MacGregor is in Derry/Londonderry, where the Tower Museum strives to broaden the city's reputation away from one of division by celebrating the lost industry of shirt-making. In the early 20th century, Derry shirts were exported all over the world. Although there is almost nothing left of that once booming trade, there remains a pride in the shirt, chosen by the museum to demonstrate their sense of what matters to the local community. 3.00 Drama: The Ballad of Syd and Morgan

11 Roger James Elsgood's drama based on Haydn Middleton's novel imagining an encounter in 1968 between novelist EM Forster and Syd Barrett of Pink Floyd. The two men of very different generations enjoyed great success very early in their lives, only to find themselves no longer driven to create further. While Forster helps the younger man make peace with this change in direction, he also finds himself gaining confidence to be more open about his sexuality. With Simon Russell Beale as Forster, Tyger Drew-Honey as Barrett and Madeleine Lestay as a college bedder. See choice: page 111.

TODAY'S CHOICES

Love Stories: A Room with a View

3.00pm Radio 4
Snobby cousin Charlotte is chaperoning Miss Lucy Honeychurch on a tour of Italy and looks down on the "socialist" Mr Emerson, even as he offers to swap his and his son's rooms at the pension so the ladies can have the view of Florence they had expected. Nevertheless the exchange takes place and the world is never the same again. The first of a two-part adaptation of EM Forster's gentle satire on Edwardian society, with Rosie Day as the spirited Lucy and Luke Thallon as the lovelorn younger Emerson, the role in Merchant Ivory's 1985 film that made a name for Julian Sands.

Private Passions

12 noon Radio 3
Ten years ago Norman Ackroyd was the first subject of the BBC4 series What Do Artists Do All Day? Today the internationally acclaimed landscape artist again describes his visits to the far-flung British locations that inspire his dramatic etchings of rock formations. "Even though I'm here right in the middle of London," he says, "mentally I'm right out on the top of the Shetlands." His "private passions" range from Schubert and Beethoven to Bob Dylan and the hymn Cwm Rhondda.

TODAY'S CHOICES

The Essay: Death in Trieste

10.45pm Radio 3
If murder mystery is your cup of tea, then the death of Johann Winckelmann in a Trieste hotel room in 1768 should pique the interest. The celebrated art historian, who inspired the neoclassical movement and the likes of Goethe and Nietzsche, was strangled, stabbed seven times and took hours to die. His grisly demise is the catalyst for Professor Seán Williams to explore what he calls "true crime turned cultural history", as future episodes not only chart the capture of the perpetrator but also how this crime from the past resonates in the present. JEREMY ASPINALL

Does the Irish Republic Want Reunification?

4.00pm Radio 4
In the 25 years since the Good Friday Agreement was signed, both Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland have undergone huge change, economically and socially. In theory those changes bring the prospect of reunification closer, and for many people, both on the island of Ireland and beyond, it's a matter of historic destiny. But is it that simple? Andrea Catherwood's outstandingly clear and thoughtful report focuses on the Republic's position, which is rather more equivocal than an outsider might imagine. SIMON O'HAGAN

TODAY'S CHOICES

Radio 3 in Concert

7.30pm Radio 3
South African-born cellist Abel Selaocoe (above) is among today's most charismatic and versatile young musicians – a composer and improviser as well as a performer – and also one of the most unpredictable: at his BBC Proms debut in 2021, he dazzled his audience by opening his set with a virtuosic display of Xhosa overtone singing before he had even bowed a single note on his cello, which he then went on to use as a percussion instrument whenever the musical mood took him. In tonight's collaboration with the BBC Singers, he'll be interspersing the all-night vigil of Rachmaninov's Russian Orthodox Vespers with his own musical reflections on African twilights.

MARK PAPPENHEIM

The Documentary: The Ballad of Beirut

9.30am/8.05pm World Service
Recent history has not been kind to the residents of Lebanon's capital city. The collapse of the country's financial system in 2019, followed by the ammonium nitrate explosion that tore through Beirut the following year, has left many people destitute. For writer Lina Mounzer, there is now a tragicomic quality to everyday life in Beirut, one punctuated by electricity shortages controlled by "generator mafias" and skyrocketing inflation. Here, Mounzer records what she and her fellow Beirutis have to endure to survive in this city on the brink. Among the irate grocers and taxi drivers she speaks to her friends, fellow writers and activists, about their hopes and fears for the future. TOM GOULDING

7.30 Radio 3 in Concert

RT Night-time and dusk have inspired some of the most beautiful music ever written, including Rachmaninov's Vespers (1915), the quiet and deeply moving profession of the composer's dedicated faith. Tonight its movements are interwoven with serene snapshots of different African twilights by Abel Selaocoe in a concert from last Friday at Milton Court in London. Presented by Martin Handley, BBC Singers, Abel Selaocoe (cello and voice), conductor Sofi Jeannin
Rachmaninov All-Night Vigil (Vespers), interwoven with music of African twilight

10.00 Free Thinking

TODAY'S CHOICES

Drama: Happy Hour

2.15pm Radio 4

Two old friends in the pub shoot the breeze over a bottle of Pinot and Jägerbombs. And that's all there is to Happy Hour, apart from the body out the back that they are waiting for someone to discover. It's the corpse, Emily tells Chloe, of the man who had been harassing her until she killed him. But the real story here is of these two young working-class women having an entire play to themselves. With her own kind of poetry and flashes of wit, writer Liv Fowler conjures a world rarely visible, where subjects discussed include which life to live, the financial inaccessibility of university and the problem that is men.

FIONA HUGHES

Radio 3 in Concert

7.30pm Radio 3

The Russian symbolist composer and pianist Alexander Scriabin died at the height of his fame, aged only 43, from blood poisoning induced by an infected pimple on his upper lip. It was a sadly prosaic end for an increasingly mystical composer whose final work, Mysterium, aspired to bring about the birth of a new world through an "armageddon" of the arts. Premiered in Paris in 1905, before he embraced the quasi-religious cult of theosophy, his third symphony, The Divine Poem, comprises sections entitled "Struggles", "Delights" and "Divine Play".

TODAY'S CHOICES

Princess

4.00pm Radio 4

It goes without saying that this series, which has dealt with princesses of every hue, would not be complete without the Countess of Snowdon. Princess Margaret (above), who was given and gave herself no purpose, other than providing newspaper copy, was called a spare long before the arrival of Prince Harry. She was imperious, spirited, funny, tragic. "Has anyone really got close to the truth?" asks Anita Anand. No, and you shouldn't expect any bombshells here. But it's always fun to hear Craig Brown reading from his outrageous book Ma'am Darling ("perfect for fans of The Crown") while William Hanson, authority on etiquette, does share new insight into HRH's relationship with her big sister. Could it be that Margaret was partly responsible for the Queen subtly reshaping her ultra-conservative image?

DAVID MCGILLIVRAY

Ramblings

3.00pm Radio 4

Ashdown Forest in East Sussex was the inspiration for Hundred Acre Wood in AA Milne's Winnie the Pooh books and attracts visitors from around the world, searching for Pooh Sticks Bridge, Roo's Sandy Pit and the Heffalump Trap. But what most of those visitors don't realise is that the ten square miles of open access land is neither wood nor forest. It is in fact a heath, one of the rarest habitats in the world – supposedly more rare than tropical rainforests. Clare Balding takes a walk with a group of people keen to raise awareness of the land's natural beauty, including a podcaster who creates soundscapes to tell stories of the forest and, naturally, a woman with dogs.

a New History of an Old Idea4/5. The West and Modernity. The 19th century may have been the most strident age of the grand narrative of Western Civilisation and the West. Four-time prime minister William Gladstone inherited this legacy but had his own questions about "the slave question" and Irish home rule. Activist Edward Said came to challenge the supremacy of the West in his then radical and seminal writings that asked questions we continue to wrangle with today. Read by Nina Sosanya.

TODAY'S CHOICES

Welcome to the Neighbourhood with Jayde Adams

2.45pm Radio 4
All of us who've found ourselves part of a neighbourhood WhatsApp group in recent years will have received an education – sometimes surprising, often amusing – in people's everyday concerns. Welcome to the Neighbourhood spotted the potential for comedy gold in this, and is now back for a second series. No preview was available, but the first of Jayde Adams's guests – all of them members of neighbourhood WhatsApp groups – is DJ Nick Grimshaw, with whom Adams (above) has fun learning about a gaseous attack in a supermarket in Carlisle, the neighbours of Grimshaw's who turn paparazzi at a time of crisis, and a treasure of the Knights Templar that turns out to be all it's cracked up to be. With The Skewer's Jon Holmes involved behind the scenes, laughs are guaranteed. SIMON O'HAGAN

Heart and Soul

11.30am World Service
American journalist Michael Goldfarb investigates a conspicuous contradiction in the founding principles of the United States, namely that religion and politics, church and state, are separate. As the voices of self-styled "evangelical" Christians have become more influential, especially within the Republican Party, Goldfarb goes in search of how and why this has happened. Noting the irony that "evangelical" has replaced "protestant" as a form of denomination in order to avoid any inference of protest, he also looks back at previous "Great Awakenings" of religious fervour in America's past to add some enlightening historical context. JEREMY ASPINALL

10.45 Book at Bedtime: The Making of Another Major Motion Picture Masterpiece

10/10. Tom Hanks reads his debut novel. Robby Andersen, aka Trev-Vor, is enjoying his retirement from the days of subversive comics and now runs a sweet coffee shop and walks with a cane. His niece and nephew are surprised to know he wrote The Legend of Firefall, and Robby is surprised to learn its being made into a film with none other than Wren Lane, shot in none other than Lone Butte. Returning to his home town Robby is overwhelmed. A year later, life has changed for everyone involved in Knightsnade: The Lathe of Firefall one way or another. Robby finally sees the ending to Uncle Bob's story in full Technicolor. For details see Monday

Face behind the voice Ian Payne LBC

Age 60
Current job
LBC's phone-in host, Monday to Friday, 4-7am.
CV The son of an RAF pilot, he was born in West

Germany. Raised and educated in the UK, after a variety of odd jobs he became a trainee journalist at BBC Radio Lancashire in 1986. From 1988 he was first on Radio 2, then at Radio 4 producing Today, followed by Radio 5 Live, presenting the afternoon show.

From 2003 he was at Sky Sports, presenting Monday Night Football, Soccer Special and Goals on Sunday. He returned to 5 Live in 2010, then in 2013 became a sports correspondent for ITV News. He joined LBC in 2014, and from 2018 presented the weekend early breakfast show. In 2020 he hosted drivetime, then last year his phone-in show was 10pm-1am. "I worked out that I've broadcast all 24 hours."

Social media – yes or no?
"Lapsed. I can't be doing with the extra anxiety that it adds to my life. I'm only doing this because my mum loves the Radio Times and she wants me to do it." ["We'll mention that!"] "That would make her day. Her name is Phyllis, she's 90, and she's from Tipperary."

Best moment "In 1991 I was sent by the Today programme to the World Athletics Championships in Tokyo. I sat no more than ten metres away from the greatest long jump in history. In 1968 Bob Beamon had jumped 29 feet and no one had got close since. But that day Mike Powell and Carl Lewis both jumped farther than Beamon. I was euphoric. You have no idea how long 29 feet is until you look at it."

Worst moment "I'm a Leeds fan and I knew Gary Speed as a friend. I had to read out on air that he'd died and then conduct an hour's discussion on it with guests. God knows how I got through it."

Off air Father of three grown-up children, he's now single and lives in Brentford, west London. "The two things I've ever spent money on were a TV (absurdly expensive) and a mattress – the most important thing you can own. If you're not getting a good night's sleep, doing these crazy hours, forget it."

First radio memory "Working in a psychiatric hospital laundry, the only thing that kept me going was the BBC's Wimbledon coverage on the radio. I asked the guy I was working with, 'Do they get paid for that?' He said, 'Yeah.' That was it. I went off and did a post-graduate course in radio and TV journalism."

Favourite broadcasters "Obviously Des Lynam is the doyen of my era. Jeff Stelling is a genius. And Howard Stern proves that you can get away with being yourself, you don't have to obey all the rules."

Ambition/Dream job "This one. I just want to have a band of loyal listeners and share a joke. That's it."

Secret skills "I was a goat burier. I was taking a gap year, on a goat farm in New Zealand. There were two males left with all their bits. The other 40 were only there for their fur and were put in a field that didn't have much grass. My job was to search for corpses and bury them." DAVID MCGILLIVRAY

BBC Radio Scotland

Face behind the voice Ian Payne LBC

Age 60

Current job

LBC's phone-in host, Monday to Friday, 4-7am.

CV The son of an RAF pilot, he was born in West

Germany. Raised and educated in the UK, after a variety of odd jobs he became a trainee journalist at BBC Radio Lancashire in 1986. From 1988 he was first on Radio 2, then at Radio 4 producing Today, followed by Radio 5 Live, presenting the afternoon show.

From 2003 he was at Sky Sports, presenting Monday Night Football, Soccer Special and Goals on Sunday. He returned to 5 Live in 2010, then in 2013 became a sports correspondent for ITV News. He joined LBC in 2014, and from 2018 presented the weekend early breakfast show. In 2020 he hosted drivetime, then last year his phone-in show was 10pm-1am. "I worked out that I've broadcast all 24 hours."

Social media – yes or no?

"Lapsed. I can't be doing with the extra anxiety that it adds to my life. I'm only doing this because my mum loves the Radio Times and she wants me to do it." ["We'll mention that!"] "That would make her day. Her name is Phyllis, she's 90, and she's from Tipperary."

Best moment "In 1991 I was sent by the Today programme to the World Athletics Championships in Tokyo. I sat no more than ten metres away from the greatest long jump in history. In 1968 Bob Beamon had jumped 29 feet and no one had got close since. But that day Mike Powell and Carl Lewis both jumped farther than Beamon. I was euphoric. You have no idea how long 29 feet is until you look at it."

Longest moment "I'm a Leeds fan and I knew Gary Speed as a friend. I had to read out on air that he'd died and then conduct an hour's discussion on it with guests. God knows how I got through it."

Off air Father of three grown-up children, he's now single and lives in Brentford, west London. "The two things I've ever spent money on were a TV (absurdly expensive) and a mattress – the most important thing you can own. If you're not

First radio memory "Working in a psychiatric hospital laundry, the only thing that kept me going was the BBC's Wimbledon coverage on the radio. I asked the guy I was working with, 'Do they get paid for that?' He said, 'Yeah.' That was it. I went off and did a post-graduate course in radio and TV journalism."

Favourite broadcasters

"Obviously Des Lynam is the doyen of my era. Jeff Stelling is a genius. And Howard Stern proves that you can get away with being yourself, you don't have to obey all the rules."

Ambition/Dream job "This one. I just want to have a band of loyal listeners and share a joke. That's it."

Secret skills "I was a goat burier. I was taking a gap year, on a goat farm in New Zealand. There were two males left with all their bits. The other 40 were only there for their fur and were put in a field that didn't have much grass. My job was to search for corpses and bury them." DAVID MCGILLIVRAY

7.00am New Every Sunday

Act of worship from St Albert's Catholic Chaplaincy with Fr Dermot Morrin, Honorary Roman Catholic Chaplain at the University of Edinburgh.

7.30 Stark Talk

Edi's guest is one of Scotland's busiest and popular musicians. With her cello she calls Stella, Su-a Lee is immediately recognisable with her trademark streak of crimson hair, a clue to her vibrant personality. She was born in South Korea and came to the UK when she was one, and as she tells Edi, she was blessed by people who supported her musically. At the age of nine she gained a scholarship to Cheetham's music school in Manchester, went from there to study in New York, and is now assistant principal cellist with Scottish Chamber. Scotland has always been a great love – and a place for healing. In a personal tribute, she climbed Ben Nevis in snow to play a lament in memory of her first husband who died shortly after they were married, but she has married again – to folk composer and musician Hamish Napier.

BBC Radio Ulster

Face behind the voice Ian Payne LBC

Age 60

Current job

LBC's phone-in host, Monday to Friday, 4-7am.

CV The son of an RAF pilot, he was born in West

Germany. Raised and educated in the UK, after a variety of odd jobs he became a trainee journalist at BBC Radio Lancashire in 1986. From 1988 he was first on Radio 2, then at Radio 4 producing Today, followed by Radio 5 Live, presenting the afternoon show.

From 2003 he was at Sky Sports, presenting Monday Night Football, Soccer Special and Goals on Sunday. He returned to 5 Live in 2010, then in 2013 became a sports correspondent for ITV News. He joined LBC in 2014, and from 2018 presented the weekend early breakfast show. In 2020 he hosted drivetime, then last year his phone-in show was 10pm-1am. "I worked out that I've broadcast all 24 hours."

Social media – yes or no?

"Lapsed. I can't be doing with the extra anxiety that it adds to my life. I'm only doing this because my mum loves the Radio Times and she wants me to do it." ["We'll mention that!"] "That would make her day. Her name is Phyllis, she's 90, and she's from Tipperary."

Best moment "In 1991 I was sent by the Today programme to the World Athletics Championships in Tokyo. I sat no more than ten metres away from the greatest long jump in history. In 1968 Bob Beamon had jumped 29 feet and no one had got close since. But that day Mike Powell and Carl Lewis both jumped farther than Beamon. I was euphoric. You have no idea how long 29 feet is until you look at it."

Worst moment "I'm a Leeds fan and I knew Gary Speed as a friend. I had to read out on air that he'd died and then conduct an hour's discussion on it with guests. God knows how I got through it."

Off air Father of three grown-up children, he's now single and lives in Brentford, west London. "The two things I've ever spent money on were a TV (absurdly expensive) and a mattress – the most important thing you can own. If you're not

First radio memory "Working in a psychiatric hospital laundry, the only thing that kept me going was the BBC's Wimbledon coverage on the radio. I asked the guy I was working with, 'Do they get paid for that?' He said, 'Yeah.' That was it. I went off and did a post-graduate course in radio and TV journalism."

Favourite broadcasters

"Obviously Des Lynam is the doyen of my era. Jeff Stelling is a genius. And Howard Stern proves that you can get away with being yourself, you don't have to obey all the rules."

Ambition/Dream job

"This one. I just want to have a band of loyal listeners and share a joke. That's it." Secret skills "I was a goat burier. I was taking a gap year, on a goat farm in New Zealand. There were two males left with all their bits. The other 40 were only there for their fur and were put in a field that didn't have much grass. My job was to search for corpses and bury them." DAVID MCGILLIVRAY

BBC Radio Wales

Face behind the voice Ian Payne LBC

Age 60
Current job
LBC's phone-in host, Monday to Friday, 4-7am.
CV The son of an RAF pilot, he was born in West

Germany. Raised and educated in the UK, after a variety of odd jobs he became a trainee journalist at BBC Radio Lancashire in 1986. From 1988 he was first on Radio 2, then at Radio 4 producing Today, followed by Radio 5 Live, presenting the afternoon show.

From 2003 he was at Sky Sports, presenting Monday Night Football, Soccer Special and Goals on Sunday. He returned to 5 Live in 2010, then in 2013 became a sports correspondent for ITV News. He joined LBC in 2014, and from 2018 presented the weekend early breakfast show. In 2020 he hosted drivetime, then last year his phone-in show was 10pm-1am. "I worked out that I've broadcast all 24 hours."

Social media – yes or no?
"Lapsed. I can't be doing with the extra anxiety that it adds to my life. I'm only doing this because my mum loves the Radio Times and she wants me to do it." ["We'll mention that!"] "That would make her day. Her name is Phyllis, she's 90, and she's from Tipperary."

Best moment "In 1991 I was sent by the Today programme to the World Athletics Championships in Tokyo. I sat no more than ten metres away from the greatest long jump in history. In 1968 Bob Beamon had jumped 29 feet and no one had got close since. But that day Mike Powell and Carl Lewis both jumped farther than Beamon. I was euphoric. You have no idea how long 29 feet is until you look at it."
Worst moment "I'm a Leeds fan and I knew Gary Speed as a friend. I had to read out on air that he'd died and then conduct an hour's discussion on it with guests. God knows how I got through it."

Off air Father of three grown-up children, he's now single and lives in Brentford, west London. "The two things I've ever spent money on were a TV (absurdly expensive) and a mattress – the most important thing you can own. If you're not

First radio memory "Working in a psychiatric hospital laundry, the only thing that kept me going was the BBC's Wimbledon coverage on the radio. I asked the guy I was working with, 'Do they get paid for that?' He said, 'Yeah.' That was it. I went off and did a post-graduate course in radio and TV journalism."

Favourite broadcasters
"Obviously Des Lynam is the doyen of my era. Jeff Stelling is a genius. And Howard Stern proves that you can get away with being yourself, you don't have to obey all the rules."

Ambition/Dream job "This one. I just want to have a band of loyal listeners and share a joke. That's it."
Secret skills "I was a goat burier. I was taking a gap year, on a goat farm in New Zealand. There were two males left with all their bits. The other 40 were only there for their fur and were put in a field that didn't have much grass. My job was to search for corpses and bury them." DAVID MCGILLIVRAY

WHATEVER your sleep problems, the dream of a good night's sleep has now become a reality – thanks to a breakthrough invention – the Gx Suspension Pillow. All conventional pillows flatten significantly during sleep – becoming less supportive and more uncomfortable as the night progresses. The result of this is disturbed and broken sleep, frustration and the fruitless search for a better pillow. That search is now over!

To stop the flattening we've come up with a solution that's so simple it's ingenious. By the clever installation of 'double X' internal ties we have produced the world's first pillow to retain much more of its plumped shape all night long.

Harley Street Consultant and back pain specialist, Dr Deane Halpenny, recommends Gx Pillows:

"I can honestly say that your pillow has made the world of difference...and fully endorse your pillow as being quite unique in its ability to maintain support throughout the night"

The ties work to pull the pillow in and up so that your head and neck are gently cradled and supported in softly sprung comfort. As well as having the revolutionary internal ties, the pillow shell is 100% cotton with our superb hypoallergenic Polycos filling, and we have added a unique integral air vent to help keep you cool through the night.

As if all these benefits were not enough, you can purchase the pillow with our 30-night comfort guarantee – total satisfaction or your money back*.

Tens of thousands of delighted customers have already rediscovered the benefits of a great night's sleep, why not join them? Now available with 25% off, use code RT16.

Actor Rula Lenska had this to say:

"It is rare that something advertised as unique and life changing turns out to be true! I have a chronic back and neck situation and I can honestly say these pillows make a huge difference!! Comfortable...supportive...and positively magical for my neck!! Congratulations! Many, many thanks"

OUR MUSICAL THEATRE OF DREAMS

Mark Cooper helped Jools Holland dream up Later... Now he's talked to some of the stars who made the show such a magical music hit

Later... with Jools Holland
Saturday 9.50pm BBC2

I STARTED LATER... with Jools Holland and director Janet Fraser-Crook in October 1992, and finished with the 26th Hootenanny in December 2018. We must have filmed over 500 shows in those years, and I never missed one. So when I came to write my account of how we built our musical theatre of dreams I did so as a witness to countless moments of magic and mayhem. I could finally share war stories of how Smokey Robinson turned up three hours late in autumn 2009 and kept deputising guitarist Eric Clapton twiddling his thumbs, nearly missing his slot; or how two weeks later I had to persuade Jay-Z out of his dressing room and explain why he couldn't just film his three songs and go. I could recall Christine and the Queens' or Stormzy's debuts; or how late bookings such as Seasick Steve or KT Tunstall stole the show and had their lives changed for ever. I could explain how we'd spun the Hootenanny out of Later... and how our first New Year's Eve extravaganza in 1993 was totally alcohol-free, much to the disgust of studio guests like Chris Evans. I could write in detail about musical genres like Britpop, trip-hop, world music, hip-hop and grime, and how each had been key parts of the journey.

WHEN I'D HAD my say, I realised I couldn't really explain what it's like to actually perform on Later..., to stare across the studio at four or five other artists you've only just met, to be a brand new artist playing opposite a legend like Sir Paul McCartney (as both Adele and Benjamin Clementine have done), or why Later... veterans like the Foo Fighters keep coming back. So I spoke to some Later... returners.

'You never knew what you were going to be confronted with...'

NICK CAVE

"One of the reasons we love playing the show is we're exposed to music we might not otherwise have heard," explains Dave Grohl. "It's a voyage of discovery for us as well as the viewers. I remember being on the show with Arcade Fire and Black Eyed Peas, and this Portuguese singer we'd never heard of. She looked like an opera singer and suddenly there she was in front of us in the middle of the floor. I couldn't believe that this sound and this emotion was coming out of a human being. How long is it since we played on the same show as Mariza? It must be 20-odd years and yet I can still remember sitting on a drum riser and thinking 'Oh god, I am so happy I am a musician!'"

"You never knew what you were going to be confronted with when you went to Later..., and I guess that was the beauty and the horror of it," recalls Nick Cave, taking up the theme. "I

A new take on the meaning of Western civilisation

THE WEST: A NEW HISTORY OF AN OLD IDEA
BY NAOÍSE MAC SWEENEY

Book of the Week Mon–Fri
9.45am (FM), 12.30am Radio 4

It's well acknowledged now that Western history as we have mostly been taught it has been carefully shaped by its authors. In The West: a New History of an Old Idea (£22, WH Allen), historian Naoise Mac Sweeney re-examines how we view our history through the lens of 14 figures from the past, charting the creation of the idea of a "Western civilisation" and exploring how this version of history no longer serves its oft-applied imperialist purpose.

Once upon a Time in Northern Ireland
Mon 9.00pm BBC2

It's been 25 years since the Good Friday Agreement, but for many people the results are still making themselves felt in many areas of Northern Irish society. Malachi O'Doherty grew up in Belfast during the Troubles and has written several books on the subject. His latest, How to Fix Northern Ireland (£16.99, Atlantic Books) investigates the sectarian divide and the deep-seated issues reaching back hundreds of years, and why the Agreement itself is not the answer many had hoped for. See page 28

THE GREAT BRITISH SEWING BEE: THE SKILLS

The Great British Sewing Bee Wed 9.00pm BBC1

As series nine begins, the second book in the dressmaking series is ready for those who want to get crafty at home. The Great British Sewing Bee: the Skills (£16.99, Quadrille) has all you need to take your sewing to the next level. This intermediate guide to sewing offers advice on how to use different fabrics, professional finishes and plenty more for at-home tailors to sink their sewing teeth into. See page 10 remember playing next to the Darkness in 2003. Warren Ellis and I were there on our own to play this delicate little flower of a song, He Wants You. The Darkness were right before us, full of all the piss and vinegar of a band having their moment – they had spandex, hair spray, the huge amplifiers. I'm not a fan of that kind of music, but they were inside their performance, giving everything. It was transcendent. We had to follow them, and there was no way our little song could survive that onslaught. Their singer was changing into a new leotard behind Warren's amp, which was also distracting."

"You're hoping to do something that will turn Jools and everybody in the room on," reminisces Jack White. "As the music goes round the room, the temperature rises as the artists bounce off each other. I'd never even heard of Amy Winehouse until I was in that studio for the second time with the Raconteurs in 2006, so it was great to discover her. We were stood next to each other when they took the group photo, and she seemed quite cold and uninterested in talking to me. I thought, 'Hmm, she doesn't seem to be a fan of mine or interested in speaking about music or anything.'

"Years later I met her in the hallway of some festival with Jay-Z and Beyoncé and she apologised for being that way that day. She said, 'My boyfriend at the time said if you eye-f*** Jack White one more time, I'm breaking up with you!' How cool is it that these moments on the show breed these encounters? Later...s a great place like that for the music, too; you never know when the magic will happen!" MARK COOPER

TALES TO TELL

CHELSEA BLOOMS!

Joe Swift is gearing up for the annual gardening celebration that is the RHS Chelsea Flower Show more welcome than ever.

The growers will have had a tricky time with the unpredictable weather, but they are horticultural magicians and always turn up trumps. And this year the show looks packed and varied – just how we like it.

There are 11 Show Gardens (the big ones on Main Avenue), seven Sanctuary Gardens (smaller affairs that highlight the benefits of gardening on our wellbeing), and six All About Plants Gardens (inside the Great Pavilion and designed in collaboration with a UK charity). These gardens have been planned for months, if not years, but are built and planted on site in just three weeks. I've done a few in my time, and still find it astonishing how everything comes together in the last few days.

For visitors who have limited space and are looking for inspiration there are four Balcony Gardens and five Container Gardens. And for those with no outside space at all, there are the exotic Houseplant Studios, too.

Inside the Great Pavilion (aka the Big Tent!) you'll find a sensory overload with sumptuous plants from all over the world (from chrysanthemums and cacti to roses and restios) and plenty of expert advice on how to grow them. Dotted around there's contemporary and traditional floral design: within every category will be designs from the sublime to the frankly outrageous... and everyone, from growers to designers, is hoping for an elusive Chelsea Gold Medal.

What will I be searching out? Horatio's Garden is close to my heart, having designed something similar myself for Stoke Mandeville Hospital. Charlotte Harris and Hugo Bugg's immersive design has a brimming water table and planting influenced by the flora of the wooded valleys of Sheffield – and after the show the garden will be relocated to Sheffield's Princess Royal Spinal Injuries Centre. Cleve West's Centrepoint Garden looks interesting – nature has taken over a demolished house – and Darren Hawkes's Samaritans' Listening Garden looks great on paper and encourages people to sit, talk, listen and be heard.

I'll be with Monty Don, Sophie Raworth and the rest of the team bringing you daily coverage. It's a long week; wish me luck!

There's daily coverage of the RHS Chelsea Flower Show Mon–Fri on BBC1 and BBC2, with a countdown to the show on Sunday on BBC1. See feature: page 24

BEGINNER'S GUIDE TO...

Pergolas and gazebos

We all love to sit in the shade beneath a structure dripping in plants; the sense of seclusion and privacy in one's own garden is hard to beat. Here's how to do it...

SENSORY OVERLOAD

In the Great Pavilion of the RHS Chelsea Flower Show, there's a feast of colour and shape to suit every style of garden

■ THE STYLE

There are many off-the-peg products in all sorts of finishes and styles. Ensure the structure you buy works with your garden style. Consider having one made or adapted from an off-the-peg product. If you're handy, make or customise one yourself – add a colour stain and details such as finials – to add a personal touch.

■ THE STRENGTH

Some structures are only designed for a few light climbers. For more substantial long-term climbers, such as a wisteria or honeysuckle, the structure will need the integral strength to cope and the posts or uprights will need to be concreted into the ground.

■ THE SITE

Consider why you want one in the first place – that should determine its size and placing. Do you want to create shade in a hot spot? Increase privacy from neighbours' windows? Be careful placing one straight on or near to the back of the house, which might make it too gloomy inside in winter.

■ THE PLANTING

In the first year, think about growing some annual climbers up it (such as sweet peas and morning glory) while the more permanent plants get established. Plants like climbing roses, honeysuckle, jasmine, clematis, wisteria or a grapevine work nicely. You may only need one wisteria or grapevine, but with roses you may want one per post.

GREENWORKS CORDLESS BRUSH CUTTER AND LINE TRIMMER £329.99 plus p&p**

This line trimmer has a 40cm cutting width and a dual line nylon cutter head with auto bump feed. When you need more cutter line, simply tap the head on the floor while in use and the cord will extend to its correct length. This ease of use and large cutting width make it a useful tool to have for keeping your garden neat and tidy. The dual battery aspect allows you to stop thinking about tripping over cords, and no petrol means zero in-use emissions. 2 x batteries and 1 x twin charger included.

GREENWORKS CORDLESS BLOWER VACUUM £309.99 plus p&p**

This cordless leaf blower/vacuum is ideal for small to medium gardens thanks to a compact design and 2-in-1 function. This high-powered machine can reach air speeds of almost 200mph, making clearing your garden a breeze. Effortlessly switch between blowing and vacuuming to suit your needs, as the 40L capacity bag collects your leaves. Plus, no cables or petrol to think about. 2 x 4AH Batteries and 1 x charger included.

GREENWORKS PRESSURE WASHER £139.99 plus p&p**

Now is the time to clear the dirt and moss that has built up in your gardens, on patios and on cars. The powerful 1400w motor means no cleaning task is too tough. The power nozzle and turbo nozzle allow you to find the right pressure, plus with a foam sprayer simply add your chosen pressure washer detergent to aid the breakdown of dirt. A five-metre hose allows you to move around freely as you work.

GEEZER OF OZ

Danny Dyer has swapped the ducking and diving of EastEnders for a drama set a world away in Australia. But did it end up being a home from home?

WHEN A MIDDLE-AGED man in half-moon spectacles pops up on my Zoom screen, I'm not sure I recognise him. But the minute he opens his mouth, there's no doubt: Danny Dyer, late of EastEnders, presenter of the Channel 4 reality show Scared of the Dark and soon to star in Channel 5's intense new drama Heat is here to talk about filming the latter in Australia. I've taken out most of the expletives...

The Australian outback is a long way from Albert Square, Danny. Were you trying to make a point?

It was my first post-EastEnders job, but nah. I've always been intrigued with Australia because it's just so f***ing far away. It's a whole day ahead of us – it's like time travel! My dad came out and said he was gonna see which horses won the races and then ring home and put some bets on. And I couldn't believe it, going out there: I flew seven hours to Dubai, got a bit p***ed on that flight, nearly missed my connection, then sat down and the screen said it was another 14 and a half hours to Melbourne!

Where did you stay? What did you do?

Heat is set in the outback, in the middle of nowhere, with forest fires threatening the villa where all the characters are holed up – it's a real pressure-cooker atmosphere, with all these secrets and betrayals flying about. But they put us actors up right in the heart of Melbourne. We filmed it in winter, and it was cold and rainy every day, so mostly we just ate all this amazing Aussie food. I went to some incredible Italian restaurants, had the best cheese toasties in the world, had my Sunday roast at a little Irish pub, ate a lot of Chinese dumplings and drank their beautiful lager. There was a gym in my complex, but I never saw the f***er once.

Would you go back?

Heat does leave things open at the end, but I wouldn't go back without taking my kids, cos I really missed them. Because of the time difference,

I couldn't call them in the day. I was getting up for work and they were going to bed.

Perhaps other work will take you back there, or that's where Mick Carter ended up after his car plunged off the cliff in your last episode of EastEnders?

That's a hell of a swim. But it would be an interesting spin-off, Carter in Australia. I don't regret leaving, but it was really emotional for me. Mick's exit felt like a real "full stop", but maybe it was a "dot, dot, dot".

Or I'm a Celebrity... Get Me Out of Here!?

Not in a million years. Why do people do it? I mean, maybe they've got a big tax bill, or they need to raise their profile. But I don't need the money or my profile raised. And it's brutal on your personality, too: to be voted out first must be a real kick up the b*****s. Especially if Matt Hancock's still in. I prefer the Ant and Dec role: do a bit of filming in the morning, mocking the celebrities, then go and play golf all day.

DANNY DOWN UNDER
Danny Dyer, who plays Steve in the Channel 5 drama Heat, spent time in Melbourne (main image) and the outback (above)

Did you get on with the Aussies?

I love 'em. They've got a great sense of humour, just like Londoners. They kept warning me about "drop bears", these weird creatures that can fall out of trees on you, until I worked out they were winding me up. Even more surprising was that people recognised me. Normally, once I get on a plane to go abroad, I'm anonymous – unless I go to Ibiza, in which case I'm screwed. But in Oz, they still have all our old comedies on TV, like Eight Out of Ten Cats Does Countdown, which I did years ago.

Did you like being recognised on the other side of the planet?

Well I'm 46 this year, and I've been famous for most of my adult life. It's intoxicating, but you can get to a point where you don't know what you are any more, because you're just a cartoon character. And the media will turn on you. That's what Dani [his daughter, of Love Island fame] found. She went through some very dark days but she had support around her, she had me. I never had that, because I come from a very working-class background, and I had no one to talk to about it until [playwright] Harold Pinter took me under his wing. But at one point, I had this crazy level of fame and no money. I thought, "I'm really famous, like David Beckham. I must be really rich and have a mansion and guard dogs running around, like him." But it wasn't the case actually – and I had my own very dark days. I'm quite proud of myself for not doing anything stupid, for coming through it, and – I hope – for being a better person on the other side of it. ED GRENNBY

Heat starring Danny Dyer will be coming soon to Channel 5

ARE YOU PAYING TOO MUCH?

Social tariffs can halve the cost of your broadband if you're eligible, says Paul Lewis

OVER FOUR MILLION people on low incomes are paying too much for their broadband connection. Almost all major broadband providers offer what are called "social tariffs" to people on means-tested benefits such as Pension Credit and Universal Credit. Some may include people on benefits for disabled people like Attendance Allowance and Personal Independence Payment (PIP). Social tariffs can connected. There can be extra charges if you download masses of data, but a standard package is more than adequate for normal everyday use. Nowadays banking, shopping, claiming benefits, paying tax and more is all done most easily online. Fast internet access is rapidly becoming as important as the telephone was a couple of generations ago. Without it you're disenfranchised – campaigners call it digital exclusion.

'Only one in 20 claims the cheaper rates'

halve the cost of broadband, slashing £200 a year off the standard price. But only about one in 20 eligible customers claims the cheaper rates. Broadband regulator Ofcom is calling on providers to make customers aware of their social tariffs after its research found that more than half the people eligible simply did not know they existed.

Social tariffs aren't just cheaper; they're also not subject to the eye-watering annual price rises that saw most providers whack up prices by between ten and 17 per cent last month.

Broadband gives you access to the internet at home and you do not pay for the time you are

IF YOU ALREADY have broadband ask your provider about a social tariff and how to switch to one. There should be no charge to do that, and if you want to leave it later to switch to another provider there should be no charge for that, either.

If you do not have broadband because you think you cannot afford it, then ask the firm you pay for your phone or mobile about social tariffs for broadband. Or contact one of the big providers: BT, Sky, Virgin or Vodafone.

Even with a social tariff, broadband will cost you £15 or £20 a month. But it should make your financial life a great deal easier and could save you money. For more information, search which.co.uk for "broadband social tariffs".

QUESTIONS? Send any questions to Paul.Lewis@radiotimes.com. I cannot answer you personally, but I will reflect them in this column.

RT MONEY PARTNER

WHAT IS EQUITY RELEASE?

Find out if you could unlock tax-free cash from your home to help you live your life, your way

If you're looking to boost your finances, you might be able to unlock the value that has grown in your property as a tax-free lump sum of money. This is known as equity release.

Radio Times has partnered with Age Partnership+, part of the UK's number one equity release adviser*, to bring you an equity release service. If you're a homeowner aged 55 and over, their team are available to explore your options and tell you everything you need to know about equity release, including the effect on the amount of inheritance you can leave and if your entitlement to means-tested benefits could be affected now or in the future.

With a no-obligation personalised illustration they will help you understand the features and risks, and explain that equity release may involve a lifetime mortgage, which is secured against your property, or a home reversion plan. Equity release requires paying off any existing mortgage, and any money released, plus accrued interest would be repaid upon death or moving into long-term care.

Your FREE Radio Times guide to equity release, written by RT's Paul Lewis, can help explain how equity release works, and if it could be right for you.

DICTIONARY CORNER Susie Dent

Word of the week Mondegreen

Many of us will have a song lyric we have somehow misheard but never really questioned.

"We built this city on sausage rolls" is one popular example; the correct line, of course, is "on rock and roll".

Such mishearings have an unlikely name in "mondegreen". The word was first mentioned in a 1954 Harper's Magazine article by Sylvia Wright, who wrote of her own misinterpretation of a phrase in the Scottish ballad The Bonnie Earl O'Moray. Here, instead of "They hae slain the Earl O'Moray/And laid him on the green", Wright understood it to be "They hae slain the Earl O'Moray/And Lady Mondegreen".

My own lyrical slips of the ear include "Lord of the Dance Settee" ("Lord of the Dance, said he") and Culture Club's Comma Chameleon.

TALKING POINT

Coronation highs and lows

What a wonderful day I spent in the company of Huw Edwards and Clare Balding (6 May BBC TV). They really brought the coronation to life for all of us enjoying the stunning pomp and pageantry from our living rooms.

I was only one when the late Queen was crowned, and I have no doubt that the televising of the 2023 event was a completely different challenge – but one that seemed like a breeze for Clare and Huw! Not forgetting Kirsty Young and her studio guests for a simply fabulous day.

Michele Platman
Birmingham

...I enjoyed the BBC's coverage of the coronation. However, how disappointing that there were no shots of the wonderful, talented Abbey organist, Peter Holder, who was the glue to the whole service. There were plenty of shots of posh hats, celebrities and orchestral soloists.

Sylvia Harkness
Whatton in the Vale,
Nottinghamshire

...In the build-up to the coronation I was told, several times, by the BBC national broadcaster that Westminster Abbey is "the place where all British monarchs have been crowned since 1066".

"British monarchs", maybe, or "some British monarchs", or even "all British monarchs since 1603" – but not all British monarchs since 1066, unless all the Scottish kings and queens between 1066 and 1603 sneaked down in the night.

Get it right the next time, whenever that might be!

John Purves
Ballater, Aberdeenshire

...The wall-to-wall coverage across all the print and broadcast media did not reflect many people's overwhelming indifference, and was difficult to avoid. We deserve better (or at least an alternative).

HISTORIC

KEY PLAYER

Steven Taylor London NW6

...I hate to say this but the BBC coverage of the coronation was inferior to that of Sky. I wanted to see what was happening in and around the Abbey and along the route, I did not want to see a plethora of talking heads. Sky managed to have commentary over live images.

Yvonne Rose
Bedale, North Yorkshire

...Why did the BBC feel the need to duplicate their coverage? The coronation was live on BBC1, BBC2, Radios 3, 4 and 5 live, the World Service and all local radio channels. It was covered extensively on the evening news, followed by a round-up programme. Not everyone was that interested.

Tom Glenbuck South London

...A word of appreciation for Radio 4's coverage of the coronation. The commentators at each location communicated both the scene and the mood of the moment with great clarity, without having recourse to the striking images available on television. Altogether a vivid tapestry of words and music.

John Gardiner
Barnet, north London

...A huge thank you to the two BSL interpreters for the coronation on BBC2. It made a tremendous difference to my experience of watching it. Sorry, I don't know their names.

Annette Brown Leeds

They were Matthew Banks and Eddie Moriarty from Red Bee Media, both regular TV interpreters for the BBC, and we are happy to give them credit here.

...This will probably be the first and last time I will get to see a coronation in my lifetime. I felt so emotional and proud to be British/Welsh and will cherish it for ever.

My German friend was watching live with her parents in east Germany, too... the whole world has come together for this beautiful occasion. Brilliant Britain at its best.

Helen Regan
Cardiff

...I'd have happily paid my TV licence fee again to be at The Coronation Concert (7 May BBC1). Bryn Terfel and Andrea Bocelli, followed by Lionel Richie – brilliant. But to see the pleasure on the faces of our King and Queen was priceless.

On huge events, to paraphrase Carly Simon, nobody (BBC) does it better. Well done.

Nigel Eaton
Knutsford, Cheshire

WATERWAY TO RELAX!

Such a pleasure to have watched the latest series of Robbie Cumming's Canal Boat Diaries (BBC4). Each episode is a half-hour of calm and quiet as Robbie takes us along on his journeys on England's canals and waterways.

He gives us lots of interesting facts about the places he passes. Even when things go wrong on his narrowboat, he's happy to share them with us. Such an endearing programme.

Wilma Donaghy
Dunfermline, Fife

DESERT ISLAND DELIGHT

Historian Peter Hennessy on Desert Island Discs (7 May) was a refreshing antidote to the present-day obsession with celebrities. Humour with gravitas, first-rate intellectual content along with approachability, and a range of music to match. This was also Lauren Laverne at her best, informed and engaged. Both sounded as if they were delighting in each other's company.

MISS PIGGY'S REGAL AIRS

We were allowed to see that The Muppets' Kermit the Frog had made it to the royal box at The Coronation Concert (7 May BBC1), where he waved a Union flag in front of the Duke of Edinburgh, but what happened to Miss Piggy?

Are we to assume that she wandered off with Hugh Bonneville? Or maybe she managed to hook a real Lord on her way...

Iris Watts

content on iPlayer in the best possible quality, such as the latest David Attenborough series, have to put up with a BBC logo burned into the corner, whereas BBC1 viewers get to enjoy a clean, logo-free image.

Why does the BBC do this? Netflix doesn't cover all their content with their logos. Even ITVX Premium keeps their images logo-free. If the BBC can give us a clean UHD image on iPlayer for the coronation, surely they can do it for Blue Lights?

Jack Bunsby
Chelmsford, Essex
A BBC spokesperson responds:
"We currently use a BBC digital onscreen graphic for the majority of content on iPlayer, but there are some exceptions including some live content." So, alas, we still await an explanation.

ON NO ACCOUNT IGNORE!

Don't be fooled by the inauspicious title – Colin from Accounts (Tuesday BBC2) is a little gem! A cracking comedy with great characters, a lovely little dog and just-right adult humour. Even my older teenagers sit with me to watch it.

LETTER OF THE WEEK

Don't demonise sugar

I'm worried by the way diabetes is being portrayed in MasterChef (BBC1). It's not true that diabetics can't eat sugar. My daughter, 30, was diagnosed at five. It was traumatic but, supported by a specialist nurse, we treated her the same as everyone else but carefully managed sugar in the consumption of slower digestible starchy food to maintain a healthy blood sugar level. Blood sugar levels are managed through matching the insulin with the carb content of food and drink. The Diabetes UK website asks: what can I eat with Type 1 diabetes? Answer: anything! The only things to avoid, as a way of quenching thirst, are sugary drinks including fruit juices. The myths being perpetuated in this series are ignorant at best.

THE INSIDE TRACK

'I have a million ideas and make them happen'

Banjo Beale, the presenter of BBC2's Designing the Hebrides, believes in mudlarking, digging in dumps and searching in scrapyards. He says, "You can spin anything into gold." The same could be said of his own career as an interior designer. Born in a small town in Australia's Blue Mountains, he tells RT that he "grew up in a house on a car racing track, and while everyone was outside watching the racing, I'd be inside rearranging the furniture. But for whatever reason I didn't pursue interior design."

Moving to London, he became an ideas director at an advertising agency until, eight years ago, he and his husband Ro decided it wasn't the life for them. "We found this farm on the island of Mull, learnt how to be cheese-makers and never left... I was inspired by Chris, the 87-year-old lady who owns the farm. She was 50 when she started it with her late husband and they built it up from nothing."

"I finally found the courage here to apply to go on Interior Design Masters with Alan Carr [BBC1]. I think I was the last one cast as they thought, 'What does an Aussie

TARTAN LAIR
Banjo Beale in his office, designing a collection of recycled wool blankets cheese-maker on a remote island know about interior design?"

He won. As a result, he was offered "fabulous opportunities to do up places in London", but he said no and Designing the Hebrides (BBC Scotland/BBC2) was born.

Beale reveals he doesn't have design carte blanche in his own home, which he "cobbled together from an old kit house rotting in a field. I still have to pitch everything to Ro. He'd like to live in an eccentric, artistic house, but I like it to look more put together! On an island you can't just pick up flatpack furniture – but you can do so much with a bit of ingenuity, elbow grease and imagination."

Salvage and recycling are his watchwords. "The smaller the budget, the bigger the ideas," he says. "In Designing the Hebrides I create a gin bar at the farm [they make gin from the whey]. I turn a copper water tank into a bench top, old bells into pendant lights, the cheese shelves into cladding and potato sacks into curtains – the whole place is a love letter to Mull."

And he's never short of work. "I've always got a million and one ideas," he says, "and I teach myself how to make them happen."

He has a book, Wild Isle Style, coming out later this year, which is all about "design that's good for the planet and good for the pocket". And he's a judge on Scotland's Home of the Year (Monday BBC1 Scotland/iPlayer): "I get to travel around and have a nosey through people's homes – it's a dream job." All six episodes of Designing the Hebrides are available on iPlayer recently played a lawyer in Dalgliesh (4/5 May Channel 5) and a publisher in Magpie Murders (BBC1). And he looked exactly the same in each – in fact, I could almost swear he was wearing the same suit and tie! Is there a shortage of actors willing to star in whodunnits?

Ellie Weld

Twickenham, south-west London

TREE SURGERY

The ongoing story in Doctors (weekdays

BBC1) of those at the Mill Health Centre in Letherbridge trying to save the Beechwalk from developers contains a blunder. From the 10 May episode I can see at a glance that this isn't a delightful row of beech trees but common or garden lime trees. One can only hope that the GPs know a whole lot more about diagnosing illness than identifying trees.

EMER KENNY

The EastEnders star on acting while pregnant, posing nude and roles for women

What's the view from your sofa?

We have a big corner sofa, which is my favourite place on earth. It's massive and you can dissolve into it. There are a coffee table, plants, books, a fireplace; above that a big white TV, which is so big it's obnoxious. My husband [presenter Rick Edwards] and I work in TV, and we love TV, so why not? Go big or go home!

What have you enjoyed recently?

We've been watching Succession and we've just started The Diplomat on Netflix. Keri Russell plays the lead and she's really good in it. My favourite type of TV is one that blurs genre: comedy with a strong narrative, or drama that is funny. The last thing I was blown away by was Severance on Apple TV+. It was such a big concept and so well delivered. I loved the weird, eccentric moments and you could tell a comedy mind like Ben Stiller was directing.

Who controls the remote?

It's a pretty even tussle – we agree on TV, but we differ on film. Rick likes popcorn action films and I like indie films or character studies, so we compromise and meet in the middle. The good news for me is Rick has a breakfast radio show, so he has to go to bed at 7.30pm!

Tell us about being selected for the BBC Writers Academy – was that a conscious decision to switch from acting to writing?

I'd been auditioning but was frustrated with the roles I was getting and the scripts I was reading. I entered a competition at the BBC and got into a scheme where I ended up writing on [EastEnders spin-off] E20. Two days before they started filming, they hadn't cast Zsa Zsa and the producer asked me to audition. There's a stigma attached to soap – you're entering into something that can be quite tricky. Two days later I was in Albert Square. From there I went on to write for Holby City, EastEnders and became a part of the BBC family.

Did you become a writer in order to create better roles for women?

When I was a teenager, I got offered a really, really good role – but there was a scene in which I had to wear a thong bikini and bend over. I was so terrified and uncomfortable that I turned the role down. I still think about it because that role could have been career-changing. At that moment I realised I never wanted to have to compromise myself to do the work that I wanted to do. That was a big drive for me to write and give other actresses, not just myself, great roles where they don't have to bend over in a bikini.

In 2010 you posed nude for Rolf Harris as he painted a picture for Arena. Do you think a young actor would be asked to strip off for a documentary today?

I had to do what I had to do because that was the world we were in. It has got better. I found it hard, especially as a first-time writer and executive producer [on Karen Pirie], to use my voice. Often as women we're taught to be sweet, pliable and not make a fuss, so I found it hard to say, "I don't want that, I want it this way." It's sad that it took me until I was 30 to

MY LIFE IN TV

TV TURN OFF?
I shouldn't say this – because my husband's a quiz show host – but quizzes! They make me feel stupid.

SNACK AND DRINK OF CHOICE?
A 7Up Free and a Kinder Bueno!

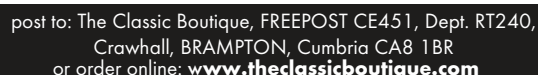

get there! The bit we really need to change is that most female showrunners are adapting someone else's work, not writing their own... Although, I've done it myself and it was brilliant.

You have a three-month-old baby boy with your husband Rick. Was it coincidence that your character Natasha is pregnant in the new series of Channel 4 heist comedy The Curse?

When we were in the writer's room, I was so scared to tell them! It's such a big fear among actresses that you will miss out on work because you're pregnant and the character isn't! I know the boys so well, I was in the writing room, it was a second series and I was still afraid! I told them I was pregnant and asked if we could write it into the show. They were amazing. They said, "This is going to be iconic!" It was a great opportunity because we realised having a pregnant character in any room, if there's danger, raises the stakes so much! This series is bigger, bolder and better than the first. KELLY-ANNE TAYLOR

The Curse Series 2 can be streamed on Channel 4
